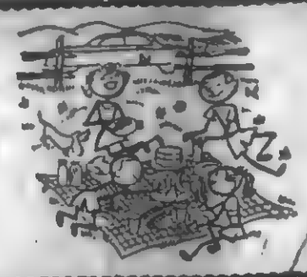
Whn the Metropolitan Opera Company sets up shop in Cleveland the week of Apr. 23, a number of its leading singers are returning to their home state.

Tenor Robert Nagy, who has in his five years at the Met become a specialist in minor roles, hails from Lorain. That is not many lake shore miles west of the Cleveland Public Auditorium where he will be singing in "Aida" (Apr. 25), "Salome" (Apr. 27), "Lucia di Lammermoor" (Apr. 28) and "Girl of the Golden West" (Sunday afternoon Apr 29.

Beverly Fleischman

In Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West," another denizen of the mining camp will be Clifford Harvout, a baritone from Norwood.

As for the heroine, Minnie, the "Girl" of the title Ohio can at least claim a few of her student years.



Leontyne Price was born in Mississippi, but went to school at Central College, Wilberforce, before entering the Juilliard School of Music in New York.

In Cleveland's first night, Apr. 23, Miss Price has the title role in Puccini's "Tosca."

From Canton comes Blanche Thebom to sing the role of Herodias, wicked mother of a more evil daughter in "Salome" (Apr. 27).

Reservations for the eight-performance opera season are being handled for the Central Ohio area by the Hast-Amend boxoffice, Summers' Music Store, 114 E. Broad-st.

GIVING FINAL APPROVAL to a box of chocolates is the Maramor candy kitchen supervisor, Miss Eleanor Damm, 110 Erie-rd while two packers box the sweets ready for sale.

IT'S A SWEET JOB:

Candy-Making At The Maramor

Have you ever wanted to be let loose in a candy store? To be able to eat your fill of creamy chocolates, peanut clusters or peppermint patties?

The employes of the Maramor candy kitchen face this temptation daily and admit they don't always conquer it.

A few of the sidelights in the art of candy-making were discovered on a trip through the chocolate caverns beneath the Maramor Candy and Gift Shop, 127 E. Broad-st, where the staff cooks, dips, and packages more than 1200 pounds of sweets per week.

A man who loves his own cooking is the chief candy chef, Buford Thompson. "I eat a lot of candy," smiled Buford as he expertly rolled a filling for a peanut crispy that later would be sliced and dipped.

"How long does it take to be a candy-man?"

"At least a year to learn and then lots of practice." Buford has been "practicing" for 35 years.

The candy staff begins its day at 8:30 when the giant copper kettles of chocolate begin to bubble.

Fillings for the candies are made first: the time varying for each recipe. A nugget filling, for example, takes more than four hours to make.

After fillings are cooked and cooled they progress to the dipping room. There, in a temperature controlled at 64 degrees, dippers coat a filling and put the identifying mark on top with one deft motion. The trick? To plunge this sweet into the chocolate vat and let a stream of chocolate run down the little finger—with the right twist of the hand, the candy is given its distinguishing mark.

The person responsible for the operation of the candy kitchen is Miss Eleanor Damm, who for 35 years has initiated recipes, designed packages, and has done the chocolate tasting.

"What is the most significant change in the kitchen since she has been there?"

"The addition of the packaging and wrapping machines."

However, part of the kitchen's uniqueness is that half of the candy-making is still done by hand.

"How do you feel about chocolate after tasting it every day for 35 years?"

"I still love it," replied Miss Damm, sampling a vanilla cream.

"Could we have a few recipes to take home?"

"They are locked in the safe every night—about a hundred in all."

In the last stage before displaying and selling, the chocolates are placed on the moving conveyor belt where they are hand-picked for boxing.

Employe Treva All summed up the attitude of her fellow workers surrounded by this sweet abundance. "It's tempting," she replied with enthusiasm, but kept on packing.

Louisiana Purchase was consumated Dec. 20, 1803.

Charming Old Homes Worth A Sunday Trip

If you have caught either the sesquicentennial fever, are a history or architecture buff, or, if you are just plain fascinated with old houses, you'll want to be among the Apr. 29 visitors to Chillicothe—a nice Sunday's drive away.

On that day, from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., the Ross County Historical Society will sponsor its second tour of "Our Homes." Visitors will have the rare treat of seeing behind the well-trimmed hedges of some of the most charming and history-filled houses in Ohio. The six homes on the tour—all more than a century old—are private residences which will be open to the public for this one day only.

Many stories surround these houses, of both historical and human interest. For example, "Tanglewood" (pictured above) was a haven for runaway slaves during the Civil War days and was once owned by the famed American naturalist William Edwin Safford, the first American Vice Governor of Guam.

A part of one of these homes will be a familiar sight to Columbusites: the ornamental wrought iron fence surrounding the "Major Mason's" house formerly enclosed the Broad-st residence of Columbus art patron, Dr. Frederick W. Schumacher.

All of the houses on the tour are of architectural interest-reflecting European influences brought by the waves of families from foreign shores. There are examples of contrasting trends from Federal, through Classic and Gothic revivals to the Victorian.

The settlers who established homes in Chillicothe left a rich heritage revealed in the houses they built—a heritage which is kept alive by the present owners. A visit to "Our Homes" will be a unique Sunday outing for the whole family.

There will be a contribution of $2 for the tour, which will also include a visit to the Society's Museum. Additional information and tickets may be obtained from Ross County Historical Society, Box 248, Chillicothe, Ohio.

HILLTOP LIBRARY CONTRACTS LET

Contracts totaling $58,930 for an addition to Hilltop Branch Library, 2955 W. Broad-st, were awarded Monday, Apr. 16, by the Columbus Public Library board of trustees to the lowest bidders. Agreements call for the completion of all work by Nov. 15.

The general construction went to Waller & Lund Co., for $38,964. Ace Plumbing Co. was awarded the $14,429 plumbing, heating and air conditioning contract. The $5,537 electrical contract went to the Superior Electric Co.

Library officials also disclosed that the house and lot on the southeast corner of Binns-blvd and W. Broad-st had been purchased by the library at a price of $26,500. The Ace Building and Wrecking Co. charged $675 to raze the house and prepare the lot to serve as a parking area for library patrons. The lot, measuring 45 by 140 feet, is expected to accommodate 18 automobiles.

More Than 100 Boys, Girls Take Part In 'Y' Bunny Hunt

More than 100 boys and girls and their parents braved chilly weather last Saturday morning to participate in the Annual Bunny Hunt sponsored by the Hilltop Y's Men's Club. "Y" members scanned the hunting grounds at the "Y" for 16 prize eggs and numerous chocolate

Chris Glaros, chairman of the Boys' Work Committee, was assisted by Roy Agin, John Clay, Charles Martin, Harry Miller and Bert Korte in seeing that the eggs were well hidden and that the search was adequately supervised.

The Y's Men's Club is a service organization of the Hilltop "Y". Funds to finance various projects such as the Bunny Hunt, Gra-Y Relays, Gra-Y Talent Show, and other projects throughout the year are made possible by activities such as the Christmas Tree Sale and the Strawberry Festival which has been set for June 6. Club members soon will be selling tickets for the June 6 event for 50 cents for adults or children.

BOYS DITCH DAD'S NEW CAR

A GAME of "cowboys and engines" ended up this way Friday evening when a 14-year-old Hilltop boy and his brother, 12, went for a spin in their father's car and were chased by police. The new auto bumped parked cars on Wayne-av, Wicklow, and then skidded into the corner of a porch (center, background) at 2479 Sullivant-av. The boys were booked on a delinquency charge. Two similar invasions of front yards by marauding cars were reported on Demorest-rd and on Stephen-dr during the weekend.

City School Music Fest Is Planned

The 26th annual Festival of Music of Columbus Public Schools will be presented by Columbus Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, at 8 p.m. Friday, Apr. 27 in St. John Arena.

This year's festival is a city-wide effort of more than 3000 public school pupils as their contribution to the Columbus Sesquicentennial.

Theme of the program is "1812 Columbus 1962" and music and pictorial scenes will be built around Columbus history.

Jerry Kaye of Eastmoor Junior-Senior High School is festival chairman. Production numbers are under the direction of Kenneth Keller, director of music for the Columbus Public Schools, and Mrs. Katherine McGill, assistant director.

Mrs. Grover Chamberlain, 3510 Race-st, is general chairman of the festival and Mrs. M. D. Sheatsley, 110 Ceramic-dr, president of Columbus Council, is honorary chairman.

Tickets may be purchased at any of the schools. Proceeds from the project will be used for the scholarship fund, student aid fund, and to maintain services to Parent-Teacher associations.

Hilltop Men To Head OSU Fund Drive

Three Hilltop residents will assume responsibilities for principal divisions in the 24th Annual Columbus and Franklin County campaign for the Ohio State University Development Fund, which opens Apr. 23.

They are: Thomas J. Murnane, 2930 Palmetto-st, Special Gifts Division; Dwight P. Ely, 2955 Palmetto-st, Hilltop Division; and Robert F. Roller, 26 N. Burgess-av, Battelle Division.

Division leader appointments were announced today by Everett D. Reese, chairman of the Development Fund's Board of Directors and by Mrs. Ralph C. Barnett, 1617 Essex-rd, general chairman for Franklin County.

The campaign will open with nearly 700 volunteers making 6,000 home or office calls on Ohio State alumni.

Gifts are used by the University for scholarship, student aid and fundamental research. These are projects not supported by legislative monies.

Masons Plan Easter Service

The Hilltop will be well represented when the Knights Templar of Columbus holds its 29th Annual Easter Sunrise Service at the RKO Palace Theatre at 6:30 Sunday.

Percy D. Miller, 2235 Sullivant-av, is commander of Mt. Vernon Commandery No. 1 and Stanley D. Carter, 189 S. Ogden-av, is commander of Columbus Commandery No. 69, while Clarence E. Mahoney, 195 S. Algonquin-av, is general chairman. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. C. D. Didier, pastor of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church.

The Knights will parade from the Masonic Temple to the theatre and return, led by Aladin Temple Shrine Band.

ALOHA, QUEEN HELEN!

A REAL HAWAIIAN-type regal greeting was part of the celebrating for a Hilltop woman, Mrs. Helen M. Blinn, 904 Chestershire-rd, who was chosen "Queen For A Day" last week at Veh Memorial. Mrs. Blinn is pictured above as she receives a lei from Kahiki Supper Club manager, Craig Moore. Among other things, Mrs. Blinn won a trip to Ireland. Her wish was to be able to take a secretarial course so she could have a better job to care for her twin sons. Jack Bailey MC'ed the show on its week-long visit to Columbus.

It is estimated that 340 lives a year will be saved upon completion of Ohio's interstate system.

10-Pound Bass Landed In Florida By Ohioan

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors
By ROB COCHRAN

My eyes almost bugged out as my neighbor, Bob Fedder, of Derbycrest unwrapped a package in brown paper, for inside was a 10-pound, 2-ounce largemouth bass. Fedder is a kind-hearted soul and didn't lead me on with a fanciful tale of how he caught it in local waters. His father, Robert J. Feddern, West Jefferson, had brought it back from Florida to show people how big fish grow in the southland.

The elder Feddern is a 72-year-old freshwater fisherman, and on his trips to Florida does not venture near saltwater. Concentrating on bass he has made some spectacular catches. He brought home the big one's smaller brother which weighed between seven and eight pounds.

All the stories and articles in the world will not prepare you fo. the jolt you get when you see a really big bass from the deep South. I had been reading about them for years, but not until I was in Arkansas a few years ago did I meet one face to face. To a native Ohioan, such a fish seems impossible. In fact, there is quite a famous story about a northern fisherman who saw his first stringer of southern bass and exclaimed, "The man who caught those is a liar!"

Robert Feddern can be a little more casual about such monsterous fish. He is an old hand at fishing the waters near Lakeland—a good tip to remember if you're lucky enough to spend any time in Florida.

As long as we're talking about fishing, we might as well continue. The subject of anise oil came up the other day, and as every angler has heard, it has other uses than flavoring Christmas cookies. It is reputed to have almost magical powers over fish, and when used in fish baits is supposed to be deadly.

Beginning about the first time I went fishing, and continuing each year since then, the anis story has been related to me. The first thing each informant says, is that it is against the law to use when fishing.

I do not know for sure whether anise oil will attract fish, but I do know that it is not illegal to use when fishing. You mix it in doughballs, or dip minnows or artificial lures in it. You might even toss a few drops over your left shoulder if you think that will do any good.

Far be it from me to squelch any fishing secrets—I need all the help I can get. But it has never been proven to me that anise oil will improve your catch. If you feel differently about the use of anise, I would like to know about the times you think it has caught fish. Write to me in care of this [illegible].

Easter Dinner 'Go-With' Suggested

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:
MEATS AND POULTRY — Ham, turkeys, lamb, pork roasts, beef ribs, large eggs.
FRUITS — Grapefruit, Valencia oranges, bananas, rhubarb.
VEGETABLES — Asparagus, potatoes, carrots, tomatoes, onions.
OTHER FOODS — Fresh smelts, dairy products, cranberry products, canned peaches, honey.

Easter dinner is traditionally highlighted with a rosy brown-sugar cured ham. Whether you choose a ham that is "fully-cooked," "cook-before-eating" or canned, you can make it fit the occasion with an attractive glaze and some trimmings.

Mrs. Franks

For a bit of frill and flavor, remove the ham from the oven one half hour before it is finished heating or baking. Pour off the drippings and arrange drained peach halves (they're on the good buy list) around the ham in the pan. Next, coat the fat surface of the ham and the peaches with melted raspberry jelly. Return the ham to the oven to finish cooking and to set the glaze. Remember to fill the peach halves with more jelly before serving around the ham, add sprigs of parsley.

Or, you may want to serve turkey instead of the more traditional baked ham for Easter this year. You'll have a good reason — turkeys are a real buy because of millions of pounds in storage.

Roasting a turkey on Sunday morning is simple if you forget about the stuffing — and it's good without. Cranberries are just as good in April as in November and you'll like the present prices on the canned sauce or jelly. Notice the new attractive quart bottles of cranberry juice, same juice, but in a new container.

Asparagus Tempts Appetite

A colorful dish that is always tempting with any meat is fresh asparagus. It's economical now that big shipments from California have caused prices to tumble. Quality is excellent. Try a tangy cheddar cheese sauce over the asparagus.

Potatoes remain the bargain vegetable whether you serve the old or the new. They're so easy —and good—if you boil them with the skins, gash and fill with sour cream mixed with chives. You can't go wrong on broccoli, cauliflower or glazed carrots as a side vegetable. Florida sweet corn, with lowered price tags, may interest you this week and new corn squash are not too expensive.

For A Salad, either tomatoes or citrus fruits are tops. You'll find more local greenhouse tomatoes around this week and vineripes from Florida are plentiful with reasonable price tags. Lettuce is improved; both green and dry onions are down in price; dainty water cress is available for garnishing.

The eating quality of grapefruit is at its very best. You're wise to use lots of them while prices are low. Pineapple and rhubarb are other, good fruit choices. Strawberry supplies continue to lag because of cool weather, but you'll find enough good ones to brighten your Easter salads and desserts.

Fresh Fish For a Treat

Fish markets are offering the first catch of Lake Erie perch, in spite of icy channels. Dealers say the lake water is very cold, which means fine flavored perch. Smelts are excellent and inexpensive — all dressed for the pan at around 35 cents per pound.

Says Ohio Judges Lack Fortitude To Declare Sunday Laws Illegal

To the Editor:

The proposal by the Lawson Milk Co. that we have a referendum on the unconstitutional Sunday Closing Laws of Ohio, while a step in the right direction, is only a step.

It would be more to the point to utilize the effort and money spent on the referendum to elect at least one judge in the state with the intestinal fortitude to declare the Sunday Closing Laws what they really are: glaringly unconstitutional and of no effect in a constitutional democracy.

Any person who has read enough law to qualify for even a police court bench, knows that under our constitutions, state and national, you can't have a law applying only to certain individuals and not to others. In other words all laws must apply equally to all people.

These illogical and plainly unconstitutional Sunday Closing Laws say to the citizen operating a gasoline filling station on one corner: "You may conduct your business seven days a week;" then to his neighbor conducting a grocery store on the opposite corner: "You are a criminal if you operate your business on the first day of the week."

The second count of unconstitutionality of these crazy laws is that they attempt to enforce religious rites. If your religious training convinces you that 6,000 years ago God created the universe and everything in it in six days, and was so tired from His strenuous labors that He set aside the seventh day as a perpetual day of rest for Himself and your people, you are excused from observance of the law setting aside the first day of the week for religious observance. But if your religion teaches you that God rested on the first day before beginning His labors of creation, you must refrain from labor on this day (unless you are engaged in certain legal (?) business or occupation) under penalty of being branded a criminal and hauled off to gool.

Judges are politicians, unfortunately; and like all politicians they are elected and crave re-election. Even a relatively small number of ignorant, prejudiced, fanatic voters must be courted by politicians.

And thus truth, justice and reason are sacrificed on the altar of political expediency.

Declared Immature Creatures Endanger Books, Movies

LET'S DEFINE MAN

In response to Mr. Gregg's comment, (Editorial Page, Apr. 4-5) that "evil lurks in the hearts of ((individual) men", I would like to say that he is talking about so-called man, or the creature working his way up from one cell life in matter and he is not talking about man made in the image and likeness of God.

To the degree that one is either a "sinner" or "receiver of sin" he is not man. Many think that everything walking on two legs is considered man, but that is not true. To say that one with distorted thinking is man is like saying that a tightly closed bud is a blossom in full bloom.

A two-legged creature isn't even a human being until he has taken on enough of the divine hues to warrant calling him hu-man. We have our model for perfect manhood in the New Testament in the person of Jesus, and anything less than that is merely working his way up to manhood. Jesus was "the first fruits of them that slept".

Take two creatures standing side by side. One seems capable of every sin and he would just as soon commit one as not. He is nearer animal than man because of his almost total lack of real intelligence and ability to reason rightly. The other one tries to live as near as possible to the Decalogue and the Sermon on the Mount. He would do no one any harm mentally or physically. This man is working up to immortality and he will soon be completely unfolded and can then be called man.

I wish that only such people could be our writers and publishers and producers of movies, but such is not the case. Instead we have immature and undeveloped creatures still trying to discover sex and wanting to show everyone else what they are thinking about. Now it is the same kind of people who enjoy these things.

The ones I feel for are the young and inexperienced ones who are supposed to be finding the principle of life and a pattern for living and have such a hard time doing it with the books and movies of this literary deteriorated age. For their sakes I would that "no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in his brothers way.

The law wouldn't permit these undeveloped and immature creatures to put dope dens in the neighborhood to tempt our younger set, or to sell them liquor or cigarettes to ruin them physically, but the law hasn't progressed to the place yet where it will not allow filthy minds to empty themselves on society, thereby continually keeping the wrong concept of man before the people. Workers in the art of living need good models.

Thank God for such people as John Glenn and Jerry Lucas. Such models are worth millions to the mothers of America.

Aims, Membership Of Civil Liberties Union Defined

It was disturbing to read the imputations and innuendoes cast at the American Civil Liberties Union in letters published recently in The Dispatch Mail Bag as replies to the letter there by George Hochfield, chairman, Columbus Chapter, ACLU.

Founded in 1920 by Roger Baldwin, the ACLU is the only permanent national non-partisan organization devoted solely to defending the Bill of Rights for everybody. The ACLU fights for the civil liberties even of those whose anti-democratic opinions it abhors.

Primarily, it is engaged in a struggle in four areas, with one being that it is against those indiscriminate federal, state and local measures which, though aimed at Communists, threaten the civil liberties of all Americans.

"Only those persons whose devotion to civil liberties is not qualified by adherence to Communist, Fascist, Ku Klux Klan, or other totalitarian doctrine can become members of the ACLU.

Here is what the St. Louis Post-Dispatch has to say about this thoroughly patriotic organization: "The ACLU has established its fearlessly independent reputation, and particularly its freedom from Communist control, by years of evenhanded defense of a principle—the freedom of principle of the Bill of Rights."

Mr. Hochfield deserves our commendation and not condemnation for his vigilance over our precious Bill of Rights.

Cordially,
Charles N. Pepper

This wonderland of miracle products all made with Natural Gas!

Fantastic—but true. Thousands of familiar items we use today are made using invisible natural gas as a chemical raw material.

Just as the baker uses sugar and flour as basic ingredients of a cake, chemists use the ingredient chemicals of natural gas to help create modern wonder products.

Natural gas is a "building block" in the chemical composition of nearly the entire list of things we know as "synthetics"—versatile plastics, like vinyl and polyethylene, long-lasting materials like Orlon, Nylon, and Dynel, "miracle" drugs and vitamin pills, modern cleaning detergents and solvents.

This is the field of petrochemistry—one of America's fastest growing industries—where natural gas is taken apart so that manufacturers can put together a wonderland of modern miracle products for you.

SUNSHINE RECREATION

PRE TEEN DANCE

The children who come to the Pre Teen Dance at Sunshine Recreation Center will enjoy a special treat when they present the Easter Bonnet and Bunny Parade at the dance Friday, Apr. 20. The children will design and construct their bonnets and ears at craft sessions. Any child who wishes to participate in this activity should come to the center after school.

SEWING

A new sewing class has been started at Sunshine for the pre-teen girls. The group meets every Monday and Wednesday from 5 until 6. The first project for the group is a pattern project. The girls will make a summer sport outfit consisting of a top and shorts. Any girls interested should contact Jean Bigley at Sunshine.

ARTS AND CRAFTS

Special outfits have been planned around the Easter theme. The children are making Easter baskets and bonnets in preparation for the Easter Bonnet Parade. The children are also making baskets to be used for collecting Easter eggs at the Easter Egg Hunt.

RIFLE CLUBS

The Girls' Rifle Club was formed Apr. 9 at Sunshine. There is room for more girls in the class. Come and join on Monday nights at 7.

The objective of the rifle club is to teach the principles of marksmanship in an organized atmosphere under the constant supervision of a leader; to produce a lasting lesson in gun handling by having an opportunity to experience each safety point, to qualify each participant in all phases of marksmanship to help encourage and instill a cooperative play activity in the participants.

BOYS' LEADERS CLUB

The Boys' Leaders Club of Sunshine is reorganizing for all boys 13-18. At the first meeting a carnival and a fishing trip in May were planned. The club hopes to have about 15 regular members. There are still openings for about seven more boys. If interested in the Boys' Leaders Club, contact Bob Mason at Sunshine.

TRACK

Interest in track is gaining as the outdoor season opens. Several spring and summer track meets are being scheduled with events for girls and boys of different age groups. Plans are being made to use the track at Central High School.

VOLLEYBALL

The volleyball teams are practicing for the tournament to be held at Whetstone Apr. 23. Sunshine will send several teams to this event.

BADMINTON

Badminton is integrated into the volleyball program at Sunshine and many of the younger children enjoy this activity.

BOXING

The boxing team is preparing for a match with the Mansfield team, which will be held Apr. 24.

This wonderland of miracle products all made with Natural Gas!
A suitcase made from natural gas? A dress? A man's suit?
Fantastic—but true. Thousands of familiar items we use today are made using invisible natural gas as a chemical raw material.
Just as the baker uses sugar and flour as basic ingredients of a cake, chemists use the ingredient chemicals of natural gas to help create modern wonder products.
Natural gas is a "building block" in the chemical composition of nearly the entire list of things we know as "synthetics"—versatile plastics, like vinyl and polyethylene, long-lasting materials like Orlon, Nylon, and Dynel, "miracle" drugs and vitamin pills, modern cleaning detergents and solvents.
This is the field of petrochemistry—one of America's fastest growing industries—where natural gas is taken apart so that manufacturers can put together a wonderland of modern miracle products for you.

When The Sun Rises On A Horizon Club Ritual, Look Out!

A Bugle In The Bedroom!

Aided and abetted by fellow members of We-Ti-Si Horizon club. Anita Fino sounds a pre-dawn bugle command in the bedroom of Rita Zaglanis, 235 Letchworth-av.

AM I AWAKE?

Poor Rita, she can't believe her ears, or eyes!

By MARCUS ORR

Twenty-two kidnapings took place in the West area last Saturday before sunup, yet the police didn't make an arrest. Sound fantastic?

Seventy-five females kept a secret from 23 others. Even more amazing!

That's what happened when seven groups of Horizon Club teenage girls initiated three new groups into their fellowship. Horizon Clubbers are Camp Fire Girls who are advancing into the junior and senior high school set. They retain much of the familiar Camp Fire program but give added emphasis on self-improvement and community adjustment.

With self-improvement in mind the Horizon Clubbers decided to impress upon their inductees that it just isn't cricket to be late to things. So, after a 5:30 a.m. breakfast the girls went to each new member's home, roused her with a shrieking bugle call, bundled her up minus a hairpin or two, and took her to Thompson Recreation Center.

At Thompson more than 300 Horizon Clubbers from all over Columbus and Franklin County gathered, groggy but giggling, to begin their spring initiation rites.

And the morning sun was just rising on the horizon of a delinquency-defying segment of our young people.

THE BIG FUMBLE

Now where is that other sock?

. . . AND AWAY WE GO!

Into the chill morning air Rita is ushered into a car and taken to North Columbus for breakfast with 300 other girls. Twenty-two West area girls went through this the same morning. The We-Ti-Si's also "kidnaped" Donna Jenks, Dorothy Flowers, Alice Miller, Dianne Pappas, Bonnie Johnson and Dianne Miller.

PLOTTERS EAT BREAKFAST

Would-be-kidnapers eat a 5:30 a.m. breakfast at the home of Anita Fino, before they tackle those to be initiated. Left to right are Paula Gillogly, Tamara Taggart, Judy Sowers, Donna Wolfe, Lynne Seger, Nancy Kerr, Mindy Stauch, Candy Canaday, Sandy Thompson, Susan Jones, Linda Ruoff and Pam Jones. Sybil Barenek is their leader.

Registrations In Progress For Cub Scout Kite Contests

Registrations are coming in for the Southwest District Cub Scout Kite Flying contest, the first event of its kind to be held here. It will be held 2:30 p.m., Sunday, Apr. [redacted] at the Southwest City School office grounds, [redacted] Harrisburg-pk. In case of [redacted] the date will be May 6.

This is a father and son project and is for homemade kites only. Each contestant must sign [redacted] by 2:30 p.m. Apr. 29 with the registrar at the field. There is a nickel fee for each entry.

Each pack which sends a representative in any of the events must send one dollar to the Boy Scout Office at 1428 E. Broad-st by Apr. 23, enclosing an estimate as to the number of contestants they will have. All monies will be used to pay for prizes and expenses, said Scout Executive Everett Bacon.

Prizes To Be Awarded

First, second and third place winners will be awarded prizes. Participating packs are to receive a recognition ribbon. A trophy will be awarded to the pack with the most first place winners.

There will be a number of categories and each contestant may enter as many as he desires. Only one entry is allowed to a category.

Cub Scouts must be registered in a currently registered pack as lapsed units are not eligible.

To qualify for any event, all kites must be in flight, that is out at least 50 feet, and in the air a full three minutes. No wire line is to be used.

Categories of competition are for the highest flying kite, most unique, largest kite of standard diamond design, smallest kite of standard diamond design, largest box kite, smallest box kite, and Chinese-Japanese type. All kites must meet the flying requirements.

In the highest flying kite competition, any type of kite will be allowed. Judging will take place ten minutes after the starting whistle.

AUBLEGRAPH

BY JOHN AUBLE, JR.
Hartley Sports Editor

President Kennedy Proved He Had 'Stuff' On The Ball

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Being in the nation's Capital on a special assignment for Hartley Newspapers proved to be timed just right since baseball was officially opened in this city last week.

Both the President and the Senators starred.

There's no doubt about it, President John Kennedy has a lot on the ball.

He showed improvement in opening the American League season Monday. It took him two balls last year, one going over the heads of the players, but it just took one Monday—and it was well placed.

The President's ceremonial toss looked to be a low, fast ball and was flubbed by a trio of athletics and ended up as a recovered fumble by Washington relief pitcher, Marty Kutyna.

Mr. Kennedy seemingly had much more "stuff" on the ball than Benny Daniels whose first hurl in the spankin' new D.C. Stadium was slammed into left field for a single by Jake Wood of the Tigers.

Due to a tremendous traffic problem in Washington, the Presidential route to the stadium was changed and he arrived, hatless, a little after the 2 p.m. starting time.

There were some 21 in the Presidential party and the big laugh was "who's minding the store on Pennsylvania-av?"

Aublegraphing . . .

Back at home from THE Capital City to this Capital City, the sports scene is just as lively. Here's some things you might keep in mind:

Looking back a couple of years ago, many basketball fans wil remember former Ohio Stater Jumpin' Joe Roberts.

The talented star will be the guest speaker at the fifth annual Father and Son banquet, 6:30 p.m., on May 4 at St. Philip's Episcopal Church in St. Stephen's Parish Hall, 30 W. Woodruff-av.

Roberts has been with Syracuse in the National Basketball Assn. for the past two seasons. The program is being sponsored by the Men's Fellowship of St. Philip's.

The Central Ohio Home Plate Club is rapidly approaching its 130 membership limit according to President Dick House.

Members who have been selling the Jet tickets are urged to report to Jet Ticket Director Dave Miller.

Bexley Grad Making It Big . . .

I got word this week that Rick Thatcher, a Bexley High School graduate, is living proof that an athlete can also be a top scholar and this local lad is making it really big.

He earned three letters in football and four in swimming at Bexley and is now a junior at Ohio University. He played guard on the Bobcat eleven last fall.

Thatcher is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Thatcher, 165 Croswell-rd and is grabbing more than his share of scholastic honors in his field of electrical engineering.

He was recently pledged to Tau Beta Pi, which recognizes outstanding engineering students; Eta Kappa Nu, for electrical engineering students, and the "J" Club, on the basis of scholarship, character and achievement in extra curricular activities.

SELLING JET BADGES

REPEAT YEAR? Maybe so. Anyway, that's what Rachel Bishop, 11, 330 E. Richardson-av, thinks. She's a member of the Girl Scouts and is shown holding four baseballs in hopeful significance that 1962 will bring the Columbus Jet Baseball Club another International League pennant. Rachel is selling Junior Jet Badges for 50 cents each.

Ready Wins First Game

The Bishop Ready freshmen baseball team won its first game of the season behind the pitching of Pat Ellis, and batting of catcher Jack Compton and newcomer Mark Youngfleish.

Ellis hurled a near-perfect one hitter, in the 4-0 win over Darby Varsity. Ellis, 14, struck out 17 of the 24 batters he faced, while his teammates hit the losing pitcher for five hits, scoring four runs. Both clubs were errorless.

GAL TEAMS READY

Ohio Relays This Saturday In OSU Stadium

Bishop Hartley will have a couple of relay teams in the women's division of the Ohio Relays next Saturday in Ohio State's stadium. The Ohio Track club also will be presented.

Hartley will be one of the 12 Columbus area schools, the other 11 being in the Men's division.

The other Columbus area schools are:

Academy, Central, East, Linden, North, South, West, Arlington, Bexley, Hilliard and Worthington.

Other schools included are Akron North, Ashland, Berea, Cleveland East and John Marshall, Dayton Roosevelt, Euclid, Kettering Fairmont, Mansfield, Marion, Mayfield Heights, Shaker Heights and Springfield.

A total of 300 boys will vie for high school honors. There are 50 entries in the women's division. Middletown and Chillicothe will join Hartley and the Ohio Track club gals.

Local Bowlers Will Join In Benefit Matches Apr. 22-23

Many Central Ohio bowlers are expected to compete in a nation-wide "Beat the Champs" contest carrying a $100,000 prize jackpot during "Bowl Down Cancer Week," Apr. 22-28, according to Mrs. Flo Schulz, Columbus, chairman of the special week benefit.

"Beat the Champs" is approved by the American Bowling Congress and the Women's International Bowling Congress. All proceeds from a 50-cent entry fee for the contest will be donated to the American Cancer Society.

Bowlers will match their skills against Dick Weber and Shirley Garms, 1962 BPAA All-Star Tournament champions.

"Beat the Champs" requires each contestant to roll a three-game series on a handicap basis. Men will attempt to beat Weber's score, women against Mrs. Garms. The champions will bowl their score-setting games on television approximately two weeks after the contest is completed on Apr. 28.

Every bowler entering the contest will be granted an 80 per cent handicap of the difference between his current average and a 200 pin scratch. Handicaps will be computed on a single game basis, dropping all fractions.

A bowler's single game handicap, multiplied by three will determine his total handicap, to be used in determining his "Beat the Champs" score. League secretaries will have available a handicap schedule to eliminate the need for computing individual handicaps.

Only scores of league play during Apr. 22-28 will be admissible in the competition, with one exception.

For those leagues in which play ends after Apr. 7, but before "Bowl Down Cancer Week," permission is granted to enter "Beat the Champs, only on the last night of league play.

Names and scores of these winners will be collected at BPAA headquarters.

At the Henry Fords' Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary party, a reporter asked Mr. Ford: "What is your formula for a successful marriage?" "The same as for a successful car," replied Mr. Ford. "Stick to one model."

2 Teams Get Metro Loop Franchises

Members of the Sunshine Metro Softball League met last week to discuss plans for their season opener, May 9.

Eleven new teams sought franchises but only two were admitted. They are Anderson's Concrete and Freddies Bar and Grill.

Holdovers include Columbus Water Service, Smitty's Restaurant, Red Star Bar and Grill, Sycamore Recreation, Miller's Drive-In and Patio Bar and Grill.

The league plays at Sunshine Park each Wednesday evening.

Wins Promotion

John W. Thomas, 24, whose wife, Jacqueline, and parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thomas, live at 1535 Safford-av, was promoted to specialist four in Germany where he is serving with the 59th Artillery.

Thomas attended West High School and was employed by General Motors Corporation before entering the Army.

BUSINESS REVIEW

HAROLD SLYH, roofing and siding specialist at 2343 Valleyview-dr, offers his customers personally tailored advice and free estimates on remodeling problems.

Specialty Of Harold Slyh Is Alside Aluminum Siding

Success based on quality products, experience and reasonable prices has been the business motto and fortune of Harold Slyh, 2343 Valleyview-dr, for more than 14 years. Since its inception his firm has used only nationally known quality products.

His largest selling item is Alside aluminum siding with baked on enamel. Alside is available in more than 100 combinations of styles and colors. Its lasting durability is attested to by viewing the thousands of installations over the years.

Experience working for 17 years in the roofing and siding field with a large organization has helped him assist the home owner in choosing the product best suited to his needs and desires. Two brothers, Howard and Guy Cothern, representing the second generation of their family to install Alside siding, have worked for Slyh for over eight years. This combination of experience has accounted for the fact that "90 per cent of our work comes from home owners who are referred to us by customers for whom we have installed siding," stated Slyh.

He said aluminum siding is not only an outstanding value as an improvement product, but it also eliminates future painting and upkeep, modernizes the outward appearance of the house, and helps maintain even temperature. One of his newest items is aluminum gutter which resists chipping, cracking or peeling of paint applied to its surface.

Slyh has a long active record for his service in community affairs including presidency of the Hilltop Business Association, member of the Hilltop Kiwanis, Masonic Lodge, 372, Shrine and Scottish Rite.

The Slyhs live at 575 Chestershire-rd.

Disabled Vets Seek Support

The bill before Congress for increasing support for disabled veterans will be discussed at the Monday, May 7 meeting of the Disabled American Veterans and at the May 6 meeting of World War I Barracks 461, according to H. O. Parke, post commander of the DAV and legislative chairman of the WWI group.

According to Parke, the way to help pass the bill this year is for all service connected disabled veterans and their friends to write Senator Frank J. Lausche and Senator Stephen Young at the Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., asking that they support this bill as written.

The bill unanimously passed the House of Representatives and would increase the compensation of all service connected disabled veterans.

Americans have a battle at hand. There is a monster loose in our midst, and slowly but surely he is eating our foundations right out from under us just the way Lenin decreed it should be done . . . Tax and destroy!

Ohio's Mother of Year

For awhile Saturday I wondered if I wasn't being a real brave soul . . . one of about 20 men among some 350 ladies gathered at the Athletic Club to honor Mrs. John Glenn, Sr., as Ohio's Mother of the Year.

But really, men were not needed at this party! The ladies should be proud of the fine performance from every individual and especially in their selection of Mrs. Glenn.

John Glenn, Jr., again did the right thing when he sent a message advising that the people of Ohio were "today learning what I have known all my life" when the astronaut's mother was so honored.

A word of praise is due Mrs. Chester A. Smith and all her fine committee.

And a special commendation for these words:

"If there is righteousness in the heart, there is beauty in the character. If there is beauty in the character there will be harmony in the home. If there is harmony in the home there will be order in the nation and if there is order in the nation there will be peace in the world."

Food For Thought . . .

Significant food for thought was ladled out by speakers at two public gatherings we attended this past week.

This, from Charles T. Vetter, Jr., training officer of the U S Information Agency; "We've got to dramatize the opportunity for quick change provided in the fabric of a free society . . it's hard to point out the ills of a dictatorship to those who have never known anything else. We have a great deal to offer the world, but we must find a positive way of telling our story."

Vetter said the current campaign to "buy an extra U. S. Savings Bond" is breathing vitality into our effort to communicate better.

From Herbert Evans, president of Peoples Broadcasting Corp, before the Ohio Osteopathic Association of Physicians and Surgeons: "We haven't been intelligent enough to solve the high cost of medical care in this country . . . so the problem will have to be solved by social legislation. Some kind of medicare is coming."

Evans said we are in what may go down in history as the "Frantic 10 Years" of human existence. "We are on the verge of the finest life, or of no life at all."

Little Skunk Stirs A Big Stink; Canines Quarantined

The Franklin County Board of Health has issued a county-wide dog quarantine upon the request of Commissioner Robert A. Evans.

Evans made the request Monday following discovery of a rabid skunk that bit a puppy in Canal Winchester last Thursday.

The skunk attacked the dog in the back yard at the home of Maj. and Mrs. John Lappo, 245 Woodview-dr. Both animals were destroyed.

Howard Reynolds, Assistant Commissioner at the county health department warned all residents to "beware of any wild animal that becomes brave."

"If he has rabies he will come up and hunt you," Reynolds warned. Wild animals such as the fox normally shy away from humans, he reported.

The quarantine, which went into effect Monday, prescribes that all animals must be kept on their own premises, and if off, on a leash and under the direct control of a responsible person.

The quarantine has been set for an indefinite period while health officials try to determine whether other rabid animals are loose in the county.

Reynolds reported that there is no way of knowing for sure and that the health department would have to wait and see if any more reports of rabid animals running loose are turned in to them.

"We don't have any idea where the skunk came from," Reynolds said.

Another problem facing the health department is whether the animal had a litter of young that might be infected.

"We will have to wait and see," Reynolds said.

He added the county will enforce the animal curfew strictly.

The Humane Society and all officials with police powers were ordered to pick up any stray animals.

Tests at the Ohio State University proved the skunk infected, the first rabid animal to be found in the county in two years.

The Columbus Health Department is expected to seek stricter enforcement of the dog laws. Suburban cities are also cracking down on strays.

An estimated 150 strays were picked up last week, a spokesman at the animal shelter reported.

Citations issued to dog owners have increased and a drive to alert those who own animals of the situation is presently underway.

EGG 'SCRAMBLE' AT GREAT WESTERN

Your Youth

By Hilltop YMCA Staff

Many of the Gra-Y and Indian Guide boys are now in the process of selling Jet badges. These badges can be used by boys and girls under 18. The badge entitles them to enter some 50 Columbus Jet baseball games when accompanied by an adult, by just presenting the badge that costs 50 cents. Money received from the sale will be used to further the development of the outside area behind the "Y".

The Stamp Club showed an increase in membership last Monday under the able leadership of Gene McGurer. The next scheduled meeting for youth and adults will be Monday, Apr. 23, at 7:30, and it will be held at the Hilltop YMCA.

Bill Johannes and Rick Finke are looking forward to a weekend filled with learning about Ohio government. These two boys will meet at the State Capitol Apr. 27 and will participate in the annual Youth in Government sponsored by the Ohio-West Virginia Area Council.

A movie will be featured this Saturday in the "Y" at 10 a.m. The following week will be reserved for youth center activities and craft. It, too, will begin at 10.

The Gra-Y Talent Show is now scheduled for Thursday, Apr. 26, at 7:15. Judging and prizes will be awarded by the Hilltop Y's Men's Club. Each Gra-Y will have two contestants. The Gra-Y Council will meet at 6:30 on the same evening at the Hilltop "Y".

The Hilltop Longhouse will meet tonight at 8:30 at the "Y". The recent Match Box Derby will be evaluated. Plans will be announced for the weekend Indian Guide outing at Camp Willson June 8-10. All tribes are urged to discuss this weekend with their Big and Little Braves and plan to attend this outstanding event.

West Senior Hi-Y was well represented at the annual Hi-Y City Day. Glenn Rohrer held the top position as the Columbus youth mayor. Official mayor and Hilltop resident, Ralston Westlake, spent the day showing Glenn his various duties. Other boys active last Wednesday were Dick Colvin, Larry Snider, Chuck Whetstone, Dennis Moyer, Lynn Strayer, Odell Walters, Jack Trotter, Lee McQuerry and Ron Volz.

City Firm Gets 2 Sewer Jobs

The Thompson-Conle Co., 1340 Windsor-av, submitted a low bid of $394,668 for the Fairwood-Frebis 72-inch storm sewer to serve the South Side.

The city also granted the Complete General Construction Co., 1221 E. Fifth-av, a $219,230 contract for the Hilltop sanitary sewer project.

The Hilltop project calls for a 36-inch sanitary sewer extension from Sullivant-av and Kingsford-rd to connect with the Big Run main trunk sewer to the southeast.

What's On The Menu For Tomorrow?

Last week our John Auble returned from a trip to Washington where he looked in on the American farm problem. Like everything else today, this is a big problem because agriculture in itself is so big, and more of a problem because the government is a part of it.

While we should be thankful for our very full larder we must be reminded all the time of what is ahead of us . . . being able to produce so much and then failing to come up with a distribution system that will allow this production to get to the stomachs of people who need it.

While we do such things as provide a naval vessel as a "yacht" for Emperor of Ethiopia, we allow our food surpluses to pile up and in many quarters of the world people are in a stage of starvation.

And while our surpluses grow, just take a look at what's ahead. The government says we may have another 25 million acres of crop land available by 1975 through advances in technology.

At the same time we are developing tractors that will be operated by automatic pilots, electric sensing devices will kill insects, and electronics will manage the whole of a farm operating from seeding to harvesting.

Go a step ahead and look to your menu. You will be eating your entire meal that was produced indoors by chemical processes, or the ocean may be our only farm.

Eat up! Foods of tomorrow may not be so appetizing. One thing sure, there should be plenty for everyone if we can but develop a way to distribute it to those who need it.

H. D. Speakman Suffers Fall

Harvey David Speakman, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Speakman of 740 Renick-av, was reported in good condition today by Children's Hospital.

The youth fell 20 feet Tuesday from the Central-av railroad viaduct to the sidewalk below. Police reported that the boy told them he often crossed the viaduct on his way home from school.

He was originally taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital suffering from a fracture of the right elbow and hip. His condition there was listed as fair. He was transferred to Children's Hospital last night.

Slaughter House Plans Expansion

Public hearing will be held at 5 p.m. Friday, Apr. 27 on a request for variance on zoning rules to permit the expansion of a slaughter house at 294 Greenlawn-av. Herman Falter Packing Co. plans the addition.

CROWD AT SUNSHINE PARK CLINIC LISTENS ATTENTIVELY TO DERBY TIPS

Soap Box Derby List Grows Fast

Hundred Boys Sign; Clinics Well Attended

Soap Box Derby fever is rising!

The announcement early this month that the classic downhill race for boys and their motorless cars was coming back to Columbus has already resulted in an entry list that exceeds 100.

The second clinic for prospective drivers (ages 11 through 15) and their parents and friends brought a crowd to Sunshine Recreation Center. Derby Director Tom Hawk said he was very pleased from the response, especially in the Hilltop Record-West Side News circulation area.

Preliminary plans to hold the race on W. Broad-st Hill, just west of Central-av, received Mayor Westlake's blessing. However, Derby directors were not able to arrange rerouting of City Transit buses during the time trials Saturday afternoon, July 14, or during the race the next day.

A minimum of 50 cars must be prepared before the race can be sanctioned. Hawk said it is almost impossible to determine now how many boys will race this year. The co-sponsors—Columbus Jaycees, local Chevrolet dealers and WLW-C television—have decided to hold registrations open as long as possible because of the late start. Chevrolet dealers have entry blanks.

Derby Director Hawk said that while the number of registrants is encouraging "it's the number of wheels sold that is a truer indication." Running gears (costing about $15) must meet rigid standards. The rest of the car, to be built by the boys, must not cost more than $20.

Area Teachers Receive $500 Grants For Study

Four Hilltop teachers are among the 10 recipients of $500 grants, awarded Columbus Public School teachers each year to advance their professional knowledge.

The $5000 fund, gift of an anonymous donor, is divided among the 10 applicants whose purpose, in the opinion of the School Board, merits the grant.

Mrs. Ann Earl, 115 Eldon-av, teacher of a special class at Fairmoor Elementary, will attend Syracuse University in New York this summer, taking a course entitled "The Brain Injured Child."

Currently teaching a class of neurologically handicapped children she feels the additional training will help her provide a program of education that will help her students learn within the realm of their capabilities.

Richard March, 518 Savannah-dr, English instructor at Central High School, will experiment with programmed learning in the field of English.

At the start of the course, each student will receive the same diagnostic-type booklet, and after completion, pupils will branch off to other booklets according to interests, capabilities and vocational goals.

Class discussion will deal with general information. Marsh plans to use 14 booklets in the course, and will use the project in his English classes during the 1962-63 school year.

Joseph O'Rourke, 3127 Gerbert-rd, also on the faculty at Central as a Latin teacher, will use his grant to study and develop programmed materials on vocabulary.

He will attend a two-weeks workshop in New York City, and then will organize a workshop here for teachers who might be interested in the self-instructional methods.

Mrs. Rita Viera, 1951 Northwest-blvd, fourth and fifth grade teacher at Avondale, will prepare tape recordings for the new music texts for grades one through six.

Tapes will give an explanatory foreword for each song, such as key, time, signature, and notes, and will be available at the Board of Education Library.

Workhouse Land Buy Authorized

The proposed $15,100 expenditure for 5.8 acres of land on Jackson-pk for construction of a women's workhouse was approved by Columbus City Council Monday night.

The property had been the subject of a two-month controversy between Councilmen Robert T. Southwick and William R. Fornof and other council members over the cost of the site.

Architects and other members of council convinced Southwick and Fornof that property presently owned by the city did not meet specifications.

According to architects, the city-owned property was less than the required 800 feet from the Men's Workhouse, was too close to quarry operations, and lacked privacy.

Council gave City Service Director Ernest J. Stork authority to purchase the land from Aladdin Crippled Children's Hospital Association.

Stork said that construction would begin within six weeks and the project should be completed by March of 1963.

He estimated the total cost at $350,000.

Funeral service will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Faith Lutheran Church, Whitehall.

He was a graduate of Capital University. He had served Lutheran churches in Ohio and Michigan. His last pastorate was at Coldwater, Ohio. He was a member of Faith Lutheran Church.

MAD SCRAMBLES ARE GAMBLES

Park, Civic Groups Feel There's Something Rotten In Egg Hunts

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

So dad read somewhere that an Easter egg hunt was going to be held in his neighborhood last Saturday and he decided that it would be a good chance to take the little kid out and show him some parental guidance.

And the kid is three-years-old and has never been in an egg hunt before and he gets all excited and takes a bath and dresses up and shines his shoes even combs his hair.

But, the kid isn't alone because other youngsters in the area did the same thing since it's a big day for them and they heard about finding the big prize eggs, boy, and winning things.

So they all report early Saturday morning at local parks throughout this city and get divided up into age groups and some of the older kids lie about their age so that they'll have a better chance.

And there's some good ol' smart-alecky kids who think it would be big fun to pull some real funny Easter egg tricks so they color some old rotten ones and throw them into the hunt area.

Some even poke a small hole in the eggs and drain out the yolks which they replace with ink or something that can make a big mess on pretty party dresses on a sunny Saturday morning.

A few parents get a little jealous about those eggs going to the kids and decide to cop a few for themselves and they push their way through the lines and grab a couple and they smile and everyone thinks it's a big joke.

And some of the little guys get pushed out of the way by the big guys and the crying starts but nobody really seems to care.

Isn't that fun?

It doesn't seem to be—at least not to

COMPLAINTS RARE IN WEST AREA . . .

Despite egg hunt difficulties elsewhere, reports from those who worked the West Side and Hilltop hunts were favorable. A Hilltop Community Council spokesman said the Westgate hunt was "the most orderly in a long time. The older children did a marvelous job of guiding the young ones," she said.

Chuck Moore, who helped coordinate the events at Glenwood and Westgate parks, said attendance was above average . . . "and they found every one of our 2,350 eggs. At 4:30 p.m. they were still scrounging."

Don McCann reported a turnout of about 600 at Sunshine Park. Connie Pickens, nine, 1063 Sullivant-av, found the golden egg which netted her a large stuffed toy bunny.

COLORFUL PROGRAM PLANNED

Columbus Jets Will Open Tonight

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.
Hartley Sports Editor

For the true, up-to-the-minute sports followers, here's the story:

The home-town Columbus Jets open tonight, 8 o'clock, against Toronto at Jet Stadium.

That's all you need to know.

Now, for those who think a home plate is something you eat off of, a bit more explanation is needed.

The fact is that the Columbus Jets is our hometown team. They've brought baseball up to its greatest strength ever in this city by winning the International League pennant last year and they'll be trying for another one beginning this evening.

General Manager Harold Cooper said many times that the Jets are playing big-league ball and that's anything but an overstatement. The best thing about the Jet organization is, perhaps, its work with youngsters through the Youth Foundation . . . but that's another story.

BACK FROM SOUTH

The team is as ready as it'll ever be for the opening night debut. They flew in Monday from Daytona Beach, Fla., following training there and were feted to a luncheon Tuesday noon by the Agonis Club.

To build Columbus baseball up even bigger, this city's Mayor Ralston Westlake proclaimed Apr. 22-28 as "Columbus Jets Baseball Week."

A sellout crowd has been guaranteed by the Big Bear Stores, which bought out the grandstands for the first two nights. Only reserve seats are box seats.

So, the excitement has been mounting.

HERE'S LINE-UP

The gates open at 6 p.m. and Ray Cinclone's band will begin playing at 6:45. The musicians will be on hand to toot during the middle half of each inning until 9:15 p.m.

At 7:40 p.m., Joe Hill will introduce Jet Manager Larry Shepard, the starting Jet lineup and other Jet players, and Toronto Manager Charlie Dressen.

At 7:50 p.m. Mayor Westlake will be introduced along with Miss Columbus Sesquicentennial Queen Sue Zollinger. Miss Zollinger will also throw out the first ball at 7:50 p.m. Next the "Play Ball" cry will rise and unfurl like a brightly-colored blanket at 8 p.m.

EIGHTH SEASON

The opening will be the eighth for the Jets in the International loop.

The defending Jets will start a lineup composed of many different faces than those which opposed Syracuse in the 1961 opener. Only Johnny Powers in the outfield and Charlie Leonard at first base are likely repeaters.

From the 1961 opener, shortstop Buddy Pritchard is on the disabled list, second baseman Johnny Schaive is with the Washington Senators, centerfielder Larry Elliot is with Pittsburgh, as is rightfielder Donn Clendenon and catcher Don Leppert. Third baseman Ed Seda is still in school in San Diego and starting pitcher Tom Parsons is nursing a sore elbow.

If there's any truth to the statement about not being able

Lions' Candy Sale Slated

Local Lions Club members will take part in a statewide candy sale Apr. 30 through May 5, to raise money to fight blindness.

Solicitations will cover all shopping areas of Columbus and Reynoldsburg, in an all-out effort Friday, May 4. A donations goal of $150,000 has been set.

Sale chairman John M. Waring said proceeds will go to eye research foundations at Ohio State and two other universities.

JOHN R. DENNIS

Dennis Says Ohio Solons Have Failed

John R. Dennis, Columbus attorney and Democrat candidate for state representative, has charged past legislators with "failure to maintain revenues and shifting the burden of state needs to real estate owners."

Dennis, 554 Wyandot-pl, Hilliard, father of three children, said the next general assembly must widen the base of Ohio's income sources to minimize the tax burden of urban property owners.

He pointed out that Ohio is considered the fifth richest state in the Union but is "outranked by most in areas of traditional state action such as education, welfare, conservation and recreation."

Dennis is a 1957 graduate of the Ohio State University College of Law and practices with Phillip Stout and Robert Phillips at 2494 W. Broad-st. He is co-chairman of the Hilliard Civil Service Commission.

3 Area Students To Be Honored

Three Hartley area students will be among 40 in the College of Engineering at Ohio State University to be honored for outstanding scholarship.

The awards will be presented Friday, May 4, at the ninth annual Conference for Engineers and Architects to be held in Ohio Union.

Selected for the honors are: John D. Birle, 226 Columbian-av; Theodore R. Comstock, Jr., 1040 Jackson-pk; and Paul D. Smith, 4581 Harrisburg-pk, Grove City.

'Jobs For Youth' Campaign Kicked Off At YWCA Meet

Ralph Gabele, manager of the Columbus Ohio State Employment Service stated that approximately 2600 of the area high school graduates this spring will not be going on to college and will enter the labor market. This figure does not include the high school and college dropouts who also will be looking for permanent employment, nor does it include the high school and college students who will seek summertime employment.

The statement came Apr. 17, at a luncheon meeting in the YWCA where some 35 representatives of various civic and service groups, labor and business, were on hand to lend support to the "Jobs For Youth" campaign recently launched by the University Kiwanis Club and the Ohio State Employment Service.

Tom Easley, of University Kiwanis, chaired the meeting. He spoke of the need for employment of some 2600 young people in Franklin County.

Easley pointed out that "Unemployment and delinquency go hand in hand. The future of our community is also involved with the reception and opportunities which our youth encounter today."

Said Gabele: "Employers must take a second look at youthful employes. Every year from 1960 through 1964 approximately 2.6 million youngsters reach the age of 18 . . . In 1965 that figure jumps to 3.8 million, a 50 per cent increase. Meanwhile our 'prime' labor force, those workers in the age group of 25 to 45 will decrease . . . we urge them (local employers) to put youth on the job."

Among the local groups backing the campaign here are: University Kiwanis Club, Sertoma Club, Youth Employment Service, Urban League, Long Street YMCA, Spring Street YMCA, YWCA, United Community Council Settlement Houses, Columbus Public Schools, Ohio State University, Franklin County Schools, City of Columbus, AFL-CIO, Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Near East Side Committee, The Columbus Dispatch, and the Ohio State Employment Service.

'Law Day' Is May 1

Law Day will be observed in Columbus and throughout the nation May 1.

Proclaimed by President Kennedy, the observance "will emphasize the rule of law in the United States as contrasted to the rule of force under communism."

Members of a Law Day committee of the Columbus Bar Association are Robert N. Shamansky, Paul M. Benson, William Brown, William Carrol, G. Jack Crites, Hugh W. Dean, Robert Farmer, O. Allan Gulker, John Holzapfel, Blaine B. Hunkins, Vernon Kartzinger, James Maxwell Jr. and Ralph Smith.

The committee arranged for Ohio Supreme Court Justice C. William O'Neill, former governor, to speak at the association's noon luncheon Wednesday. He discussed the day and its meaning to lawyers.

Local clergymen, veterans groups and other organizations have been asked to join in commemorating Law Day.

Cooking, Camping Can Be Fun; Club Leaders Learn How

By JACK ALLEN

Children and adults who will participate in camping programs supervised by service organizations this summer can be certain they'll eat well.

Leaders from the Girl Scouts, Red Cross, Camp Fire Girls and other United Community Council organizations are going to school to learn the finer techniques of camping, including some really exciting ways to cook out.

The camping school, being conducted through the cooperation of the Columbus Metropolitan Parks, is divided into six sections and is covering everything about camping out, including psychology.

With experienced campers from the different groups leading the session, veterans and tenderfeet of the great outdoors are getting the insight on modern, advanced "roughing it."

This past week some 60 people from all over Ohio and several neighboring states attended the fourth session at Blacklick Woods, listening to wise words on "Camp Attitudes" in an indoor lecture, and experiencing the thrills of a real Hawaiian Imu outdoors.

With Camp Fire Girl leaders directing traffic, the leaders who will keep "little Johnny" busy this summer baked potatoes, cooked chicken, and — you'll never guess — prepared cherry cobbler.

There was no open fire with the familiar fork and hot dog, but some really ingenious reflector ovens made out of boxes, coat hangers and aluminum foil, as well as an oven made out of a potato chip can.

The technique of building the fire, construction of a reflector shield, preparation of the oven and the food were all part of the job. And — with patience and a lot of wood chopping, everything turned out swell.

The reflector oven method was pretty new to most of those attending the session, and the Hawaiian Imu (cooking in the ground) was of special interest even to the leaders.

The Imu required advanced preparation by digging a hole, building a fire in the hole and, after several hours, placing the wrapped food in the hole and covering it over.

Although the methods demonstrated would not interest those in a hurry, starving to death, or impatient, you can be certain those out for a good time this summer will enjoy the welcomed departure from the cooking forks and open hearth covered with an iron grill.

TIN CAN OVENS may provide the extra something to the taste of camp cooking. The procedure was demonstrated at Blacklick Woods during a camping school for leaders of various United Community Council Organizations which will handle the outdoor programs this summer in Ohio. Sand in the bottom of the makeshift oven assures even heat for baking such items as potatoes and even dessert.

Concern Seeks Permit

Custom Built Homes, Inc., 1300 Harrisburg-pk. has filed an application for a state liquor permit that entitles the owner to serve beer, wine and spirituous liquor-by-the-glass until 2:30 a.m.

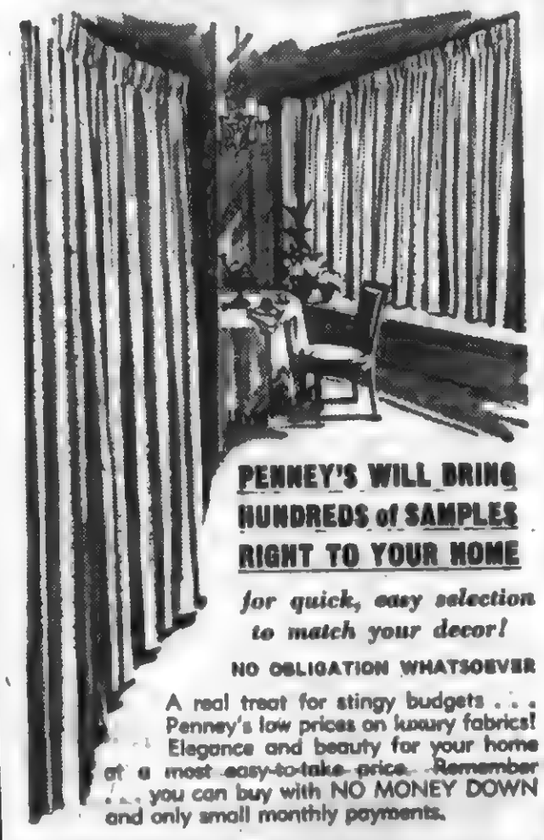
VA Office Moves

Cincinnati regional office of the Veterans Administration has announced a new address.

Mail from veterans and their dependents formerly sent to 200 E. Sixth-st, should now be sent to 222 E. Central-pkwy.

James C. Robison, office manager, said veterans should give the office a change of address when moving from one place to another.

There are 452 motor vehicles per 1,000 people in Ohio.



Indiana Alumni To Meet

Local alumni of Indiana University have been invited to a meeting Monday, Apr. 30, at which the speaker will be a dean from the Hoosier campus, E. J. Kuntz. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Seneca Hotel. James J. Woltman, 4408 Wanda-Lane-rd, is in charge of arrangements.

Are You A Teacher's Pet Peeve? Read On

As a parent, you probably have your pet peeves so far as school is concerned. They send you too many notes, or they don't keep you well enough informed; they think Junior has nothing to do but schoolwork, or they aren't "challenging" Junior.

Well, teachers have their pet peeves among parents, too. Here are some of them, and you may want to check how you rate on the peeve list:

1. Parents who forget the milk or lunch money. Classes have been known to clip teacher for her entire Monday paycheck.

2. Parents who send Junior to kindergarten or primary classes in clothes they can't manage — boots too small for the shoes, snowpants with clover-leaf zippers, coats with one-inch buttons and half-inch buttonholes.

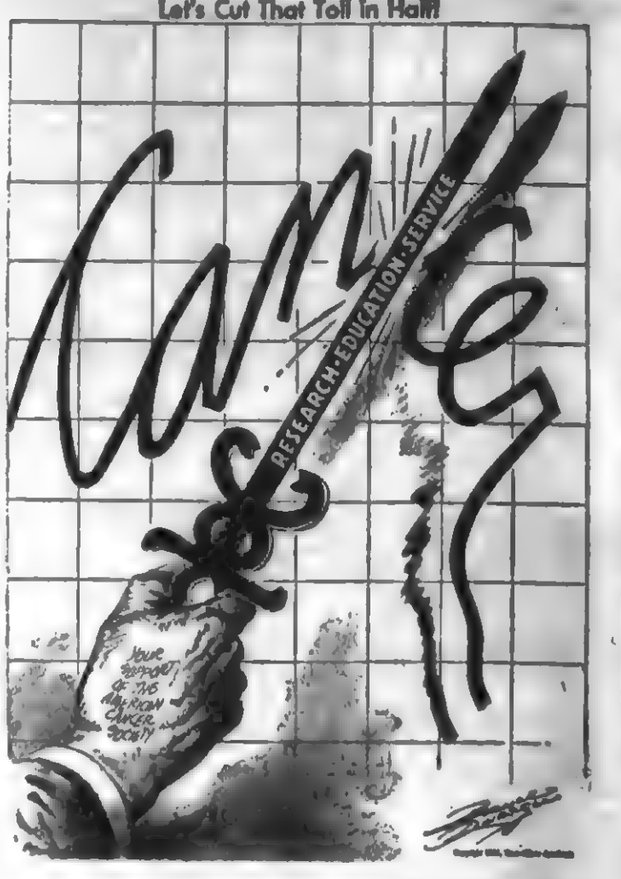
3. Parents who let kid brother (a pre-schooler) "visit" school. (Such kid brothers are usually itchy, noisy, damp, dirty, and completely impossible).

4. Parents who never visit school or go to PTA meetings but know all about the teachers—and tell everyone. Usually the wildest fabrications, of course.

5. Parents who send their children to school when they are coming down with the measles, flu, chicken pox, or tummy ache — or before they recover. There's the parent who sends the bottle reading, "Junior's cough syrup — one teaspoonful each hour on the hour, please."

6. Parents who ignore the carfully worded warnings on Junior's report card for five straight grading periods and at the end of the year come bellowing into the schoolroom demanding to know what teacher means by flunking Junior in arithmetic.

7. Parents who demand to know why Junior isn't in the fast reading group, after listening to the half-hour exposition of the school grouping policy at PTA early in the year.



8. Parents who slyly pry for Junior's I.Q. when they know that school policy is to issue only general information (because I.Q. scores are not exact measures anyway).

9. Parents who are PTA bigwigs knocking and saying, "I'm sorry to interrupt, but we have to recruit volunteers for the spring frolic. Would you mind tending the water pistol booth?" (It's not so much that teacher minds tending the booth, but she gets plenty of interruptions anyway.)

10. Parents who swallow every childish evasion of the truth that Junior devised to explain any poor mark he gets — particularly the evasion that goes, "She's always picking on me."

Teachers know that parents are human, and they forgive a lot. But teachers are human beings too, and they appreciate all the help they can get. Remember Junior's last birthday party? Think of having to superintend that bunch every day for 180 days.

We're Winning Cancer War

The American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute have designated 1962 as Cancer Progress Year in an effort to point up the advances made against cancer in the last 25 years.

While they cannot offer anything as spectacular as the man in space science has given us, they can show, in human terms, dramatic and remarkable results. Twenty-five years ago about 160,000 persons were alive, cured of cancer. Today there are more than 1,100,000. The number is increasing each day.

The cure rate for cancer climbed from one out of seven in the late 1930's to one out of three in the late 1950's. Today, according to the Society, it could be one out of two if all cancers were diagnosed early and treated promptly.

While the final conquest of cancer is not in sight, the Society and the Institute can take great satisfaction in their uphill struggle. In 1962 some 42,000 men, women and children will be saved from cancer who would have died had they developed the disease 10 years ago. This is indeed compelling reason for all to join in observing Cancer Progress Year.

Progress against cancer is attributed to two major factors. First, developments in research which have resulted in new diagnostic techniques and improved methods of treatment. Second, response to public and professional education which has resulted in earlier detection, prompt treatment and better, more available facilities.

Among the goals of Cancer Progress Year are, "to intensify the efforts being made to persuade the public to act for its own protection, to improve the care of the cancer patient, and to step up all programs to speed the final victory over cancer." Final victory will come from the laboratory, and while today we are in the midst of the most massive research attack ever launched against a disease, there is still great need for expanding the cancer research effort.

These are worthy goals. The best way to observe Cancer Progress Year is to have a health checkup and to make a contribution to the American Cancer Society's April Crusade.

Jenkin Jones Article Prompts Whitehall Man To Ask 'Where Do We Begin?'

To the Editor:

You are to be commended highly for printing the full page article authored by Jenkin Lloyd Jones.

I cannot find adequate words to express my appreciation for the opportunity to read his comments. It is comforting to know we have men like him still living in U.S.A. But, it is a pity there are not many more like him around. If ever we should have read an article and taken it to heart, this was the time.

This brings to mind the local controversy, over school "tests" in which such questions as "which would you rather do, spit on the American Flag or spit on the Cross?" were asked of teen-agers. One can surely wonder how far down the ladder we will let ourselves be pushed.

We in Whitehall have a way to go - - - Sunday business as usual, magazine racks littered with coarse, if not filthy, literature . . .

Where do we begin first?

Francis C. Beggan

In your Mar. 29 edition you had a most inspiring and instructive speech by Mr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones.

I want to congratulate you on your wisdom and patriotism in printing this speech — thank you! I only wish that every newspaper in America would print it.

(Mrs.) Marguerite C. Corbett

I agree with Mr. Loehnert and many others that your publication of "Who Is Tampering with the Soul of America" was a real service to the people.

I mentioned it in my Sunday School class and read parts of it in connection with my lesson. Several borrowed it and more are anxious to read it in its entirety.

Babies Of The Wild Should Be Seen But Not Picked Up, Game Experts Say

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

Fishing along Little Darby Creek about a week ago I found the first mourning dove nest I'd seen this season. Closer inspection revealed that it held two little doves about a day or two old. They were ugly rascals, and looked nothing like the sleek parent that stayed nearby putting on a broken wing act.

But it will not be long until the cute youngsters of the wildlife world are about. A little rabbit or squirrel is much more appealing than a dove nestling, and a fawn is just about irresistible. This is the time of year when people try to adopt wild children.

Walter Evans, Franklin County game protector, says not to do it. Many of the well-meaning people who pick up little animals are violating the law, and most of them do not want the pets after they have them domesticated. By taming animals, just about every chance for them to survive in the wild again has been destroyed.

It has often been said that there are no animal orphans. Nature is deadly, and any baby left on its own dies quickly from one cause or another. While nature is deadly, it is also merciful.

If you find a baby animal that is alive, it is almost a certainty that its mother is watching you. The only course of action is to enjoy looking at it for a few moments, and then let it alone. To chase it, pick it up or touch it in any way is not only against state regulations but is not humane.

Can Become Dangerous

Another factor about this business of adopting wild children is that many of them become dangerous when they reach adulthood. Deer or bears are very unpredictable, and even if you get permits to keep them they will present a constant danger to you and your family.

Smaller animals can not be trusted either. Cub raccoons are cuddly and intelligent, but once they are grown they aren't so cuddly. Squirrels have a nasty habit of biting people they do not like, and woodchucks can also inflict a painful cut. Only a few people are gifted with the ability to gain the complete confidence of a formerly wild animal, and turn it into a real pet.

To an animal the outdoors is his home. A cardboard box and a dish of milk do not mean anything to him, and chances are these artificial conditions will be his death sentence.

This, then, is a plea to do yourself, the animal and Walter Evans a big favor — do not pick up wildlife babies.

ONE MAN'S Opinion . . .

Beware Of The Man In The Crowd . . .

Somewhere today a man conceals himself in a crowd, waiting for a world's rendezvous with destiny.

He is the mortal enemy of all humanity.

Pale with the infectious sickness two blazing wars failed to cauterize, his body reeks of decay and destruction.

Coffman

This man is a paid assassin. His price is cheap. He has asked only to be left unannoyed by matters of consequence in a world he has contracted to destroy.

He is cleverly disguised. No agency of law and order can pursue him. You or I might be mistaken for him.

His weapons can knock us senseless. But he will never be found bearing as much as a toothpick with which to inflict bodily harm.

This arch-criminal has so shrouded his conspiracy his neighbors — knowing not his treachery —open their hearts to him.

Frightening?

I think so.

Edgar Allen Poe wrote he feared most the "Man of the Crowd", faceless, bereft of spirit or purpose, a creature whose existence is justified only by biological circumstance.

This man moves among us today.

He is always in our midst. Yet, when we try to single him out, he is never there.

Moving like poisonous sludge in the mainstream of daily life, our enemy pledges allegiance to no cause. In times of national and global crises his credo is "It doesn't concern me."

He is "for" or "against" nothing. By example and influence he encourages others to abandon their convictions to avoid inconvenience or discomfort.

Conflict may promote conciliation if man learns to resolve differences for a better life. But indecision and lack of concern promote only chaos.

We can ill-afford a surplus of the "me-for-nothing-but-me" breed in times rich with opportunity and dark with impending tragedy.

And yet through the crowd he moves. Day by day his list of compatriots grows. Only you—active, concerned with mankind's welfare you—can stop him.

His name is Indifference.

RON L. COFFMAN

As we pray for comfort, we are no longer sad or lonely, no longer depressed by conditions or circumstances. We are comforted by the realization that each experience can be made into an opportunity for us to grow in understanding.

The Bible:
Be of good cheer: rise.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

More Trading Stamps Enter Food Marketing

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits — Grapefruit, juice oranges, bananas, canned peaches.

Protein Foods — Broiler-fryers, eggs, fresh smelts, chuck roasts, dairy products.

Many food shoppers collect trading stamps but few are sure of what they do to their pocketbooks. Here are some of the latest trends in stamp activity and reasons for their use that may help you to evaluate them.

Mrs. Franks

Recently the nation's largest food chain moved into the trading stamp game, with the introduction of stamps in several hundred stores in their eastern division and in several other parts of the country. The company is expected to extend stamps to its Ohio stores soon. This move, which appears to have been made reluctantly, followed many years of holding out against stamps. A number of smaller chains have also introduced stamps during the past year.

This new splurge in trading stamp activity raises anew questions about stamp plans — their purpose, cost, effect on prices and how consumers should evaluate them.

THE RECENT ENTRIES into the stamp field make stamp-giving nearly a universal policy of food chains. In addition, more than a third of the nation's independent supermarkets give trading stamps. In total, estimates are that over 40 percent of all food sold is accompanied by stamps. And this will likely increase significantly in 1962.

FOOD STORES are by far the top customer of the trading stamp industry. In 1956, grocery stores accounted for 57 percent of the stamp business, according to USDA studies. Another 20 percent was done through service stations. Food stores probably account for an even larger part of the stamp business now. For example, stamp sales to all retailers amounted to 375 million dollars in 1956. Last year, food stores alone paid out 500 million for stamps.

TRADING STAMPS are not new in the retail business. In fact, they were used as early as the 1890's and have been in and out of the picture periodically since. But in recent years their growth has been phenomenal. Records show that of th approximately 225 stamp companies in business in 1958, over 60 percent of them have operated less than five years.

WHY STORES GIVE STAMPS

The only purpose a store has in adopting trading stamps is to increase its volume of business, as a means of maintaining or increasing profits. Therefore, stamp-giving is another way of advertising and promoting a store's products and service. Stamp-giving would appear to have competitive advantages only when some stores in an area do not offer stamps, or if stamp plans available in an area differ in their redemption values or alternatives.

Thus some stores may introduce stamps to gain a sales advantage over competing non-stamp stores. Others may be forced into the stamp business by their competitors. And once in the stamp game, it appears difficult to withdraw.

Next week, we'll look further into the trading stamp question by discussing the cost, effects on price and how you can make most effective use of stamps.

It Happens Every Election . . .

HOUSEWIVES TURN PUBLISHERS

Confusion and cooperation, hard work with a lot of fun along the way and, finally, the rewarding satisfaction of a job well-done . . .

Weeks of united effort came to an end last week for the League of Women Voters with the publication of their Voters Information Bulletin.

Published before each election and distributed free to any organization or voter requesting a copy, the non-partisan bulletin lists each candidate with a biographical sketch and each issue on the ballot.

The current issue of the Bulletin, planned for the May 8 primary, contains an eight page section of state office-seekers and eight pages of those on the Franklin County level.

Copies are available to voters at any library.

The exacting task of contacting each candidate, compiling information from their answers, incorporating it all into the Bulletin, reading page proofs from the printer, assembling the sections by hand, and finally, delivering 35,000 copies, is all done by volunteers from the League.

Anyone actively engaged in publishing the Bulletin is aided by other members, who free her from home by taking over baby-sitting chores and household management.

Mrs. Dean Luse, 409 Carilla-ln, Lincoln Village, in charge of mass distribution, explained her two pre-schoolers were completely confused during the last hectic week. "They had a different 'mother' every day—and some days more than one."

And the entire household of Mrs. Robert Lear, 856 Mark-pl, was disrupted for weeks on end with phone calls, messages and visits from county candidates returning their information.

The downtown YMCA was the scene of the final frantic week, when the locally-printed eight-page county section was inserted into the state section, printed and shipped in from Cleveland.

Women from all 15 units gathered to assemble the Bulletin—most left their children with other members but some needed to bring them along, to play quietly in the corner with a favorite toy.

In adidtion to deliveries to libraries, businesses, churches, organizations, school civic classes, social agencies, hospitals and individuals who requested copies, the League has a mailing list of 2000 newspapers, radio and television stations, ministers, school principals and candidates.

The League, non-partisan and non-money-making, includes no endorsements or opinions in the publication. The Bulletin is financed entirely through contributions from interested persons.

The League of Women Voters, an outgrowth of two organizations, has been in existence since after the suffrage movement, and now numbers 132,000 members nationally.

There are 450 members in the 15 units of the Columbus League. Membership in the group is open to any interested woman voter.

West Unit Holds Meet

West Unit of the League of Women Voters met last evening at the home of Mrs. Robert Lear, 856 Mark-pl.

Voters Information Bulletins for the May primary were distributed to members.

Mrs. Lear compiled the information contained in the non-partisan bulletins.

The topic, "Education Beyond the High School in Ohio," was presented for discussion by Mrs. Alfred W. Carey, Jr., of 641 S. Powhatan-av, and Mrs. Walter Steur, 1400 N. Hague-av.

The discussion covered the second year of a three-year study being conducted by the league on this topic.

New York's Sights, Sounds Thrill THE Bridge Club

Five days in New York for sight-seeing, shows and shopping was the long-cherished dream come true for THE Bridge Club this month.

The nine women, close friends for more than a quarter of a century, have wistfully considered the trip many times, but family and personal responsibilities always intervened for one or more.

Happily ignoring the fact that there could ever be another, they named their group THE Bridge Club when they formed after high school graduation. Seven of the nine were graduated together from West 25 years ago and the others are sisters of two of the classmates.

The club includes Mrs. George (Dorothy) Armour, 1040 Miller-av; Miss Jean Armour and Miss Margaret Armour, 90 S. Oakley-av; Mrs. George (Mabel) Bukey, 93 S. Westgate-av; Miss Janet Hamilton, 1102 Northwest-blvd.

The group left Apr. 8, and drove in two cars to New York.

An hour-long tour aboard the United States before she sailed, shopping at Fifth Avenue stores, luncheon at Lindy's and "Camelot," "Carnival" and "Take Her She's Mine," were among the trip's memorable moments.

They also saw a show at Radio City Music Hall and ate at Sweets, The Top of The 6's, Mama Leone's, Schraffts and the English Room at Rockefeller Center.

They attended Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's Marble Collegiate Church and were recognized by Dr. Peale from the pulpit as "THE Bridge Club of Columbus."

Inspired by the success of their trip, members are already planning their next—to Chicago—and, maybe some day, why not Florida?

many recreation center leaders, particularly in the South and East sides, who voiced protests to the egg hunt idea to this reporter.

It seems that some of the hunts are getting progressively worse and some groups are seriously thinking about discontinuing them altogether.

"We've discussed it and cussed it," said one civic group leader who sponsored a local hunt. "We really don't know what we can do about it."

No one else seems to know, either.

It was even worse in past years when a few groups gave out cash prizes for marked eggs. The parents really started grabbing them.

Also, the age limit has been reduced considerably to try and keep the hunters young enough to enjoy finding the eggs and special policing was done to try and hold back the parents.

But, it's a big job.

What's ahead for egg hunts? Nobody really seems to know.

One thing is sure, though. Those involved in the various events around Columbus (which, incidentally, aren't staged without considerable funds) will either find a solution to the parental and practical joke problem or discontinue them.

And that's their feeling, egg-nectly.

clinics. Boys from as far away as Circleville, Worthington, Westerville, Powell, London, and Ashville are learning car-design pointers from past Derby winners. Ken Holmboe of Minerva Park, who was Grand National winner in 1947, is leading the sessions.

Last Saturday's topic dealt with the layout of the car and how it is affected by gravitational factors. At the next meeting, 10 a.m., Saturday, May 5, running gears will be discussed. Other clinics are dated May 19 and June 2.

In addition, WLW-C is featuring Holmboe in a 15-minute television program every Saturday morning at 9:15.

Director Hawk said a number of boys have found individuals and businesses to sponsor a car, financing its total cost of about $40. There is, however, still a need for volunteer sponsors who will help other boys who are unable to buy their materials. Donations may be sent to: Soap Box Derby Headquarters (Jaycee Office), 30 E. Mrs. Mitchell, the mother of four children, is a graduate in home economics from Kansas State University.

In the afternoon William B. Pickering, Jr., will speak and use visual aids to give an informative program on the work of World Neighbors, Inc.

This people-to-people movement, designed to help residents of the developing countries of the world to help themselves, is educational regarding their needs and provides a channel through which any American can express his concern.

Mrs. Richard Show, 3226 Whitehead-rd, will be in charge of arrangements for the gourmet luncheon.

For members of the YWCA and for those having family memberships in the Hilltop YMCA, cost of the day-long program is $1.

Baby sitting, with crafts, will be supervised by Mrs. Tony DiPietro and is included at no extra charge. Mothers are requested to bring sack lunches for their children. Milk will be furnished.

For further details call CA. 4-9121.

New York's Sights, Sounds Thrill THE Bridge Club

Five days in New York for sight-seeing, shows and shopping was the long-cherished dream come true for THE Bridge Club this month.

The nine women, close friends for more than a quarter of a century, have wistfully considered the trip many times, but family and personal responsibilities always intervened for one or more.

Happily ignoring the fact that there could ever be another, they named their group THE Bridge Club when they formed after high school graduation. Seven of the nine were graduated together from West 25 years ago and the others are sisters of two of the classmates.

The club includes Mrs. George (Dorothy) Armour, 1040 Miller-av; Miss Jean Armour and Miss Margaret Armour, 90 S. Oakley-av; Mrs. George (Mabel) Bukey, 93 S. Westgate-av; Miss Janet Famliton, 1102 Northwest-blvd.

The group left Apr. 5, and drove in two cars to New York.

An hour-long tour aboard the United States before she sailed, shopping at Fifth Avenue stores, luncheon at Lindy's and "Camelot," "Carnival" and "Take Her She's Mine," were among the trip's memorable moments.

They also saw a show at Radio City Music Hall and ate at Sweets, The Top of The 6's, Mama Leone's, Schraffts and the English Room at Rockefeller Center.

They attended Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's Marble Collegiate Church and were recognized by Dr. Peale from the pulpit as "THE Bridge Club of Columbus."

Inspired by the success of their trip, members are already planning their next—to Chicago—and, maybe some day, why not Florida?

many recreation center leaders, particularly in the South and East sides, who voiced protests to the egg hunt idea to this reporter.

It seems that some of the hunts are getting progressively worse and some groups are seriously thinking about discontinuing them altogether.

"We've discussed it and cussed it," said one civic group leader who sponsored a local hunt. "We really don't know what we can do about it."

No one else seems to know, either.

It was even worse in past years when a few groups gave out cash prizes for marked eggs. The parents really started grabbing them.

Also, the age limit has been reduced considerably to try and keep the hunters young enough to enjoy finding the eggs and special policing was done to try and hold back the parents.

But, it's a big job.

What's ahead for egg hunts? Nobody really seems to know.

One thing is sure, though. Those involved in the various events around Columbus (which, incidentally, aren't staged without considerable funds) will either find a solution to the parental and practical joke problem or discontinue them.

And that's their feeling, egg-sactly.

clinics. Boys from as far away as Circleville, Worthington, Westerville, Powell, London, and Ashville are learning car-design pointers from past Derby winners. Ken Holmboe of Minerva Park, who was Grand National winner in 1947, is leading the sessions.

Last Saturday's topic dealt with the layout of the car and how it is affected by gravitational factors. At the next meeting, 10 a.m., Saturday, May 5, running gears will be discussed. Other clinics are dated May 19 and June 2.

In addition, WLW-C is featuring Holmboe in a 15-minute television program every Saturday morning at 9:15.

Director Hawk said a number of boys have found individuals and businesses to sponsor a car, financing its total cost of about $40. There is, rowever, still a need for volunteer sponsors who will help other boys who are unable to buy their materials. Donations may be sent to: Soap Box Derby Headquarters (Jaycee Office), 20 E. Grab Your Partner For Weekend Of Folk Dancing

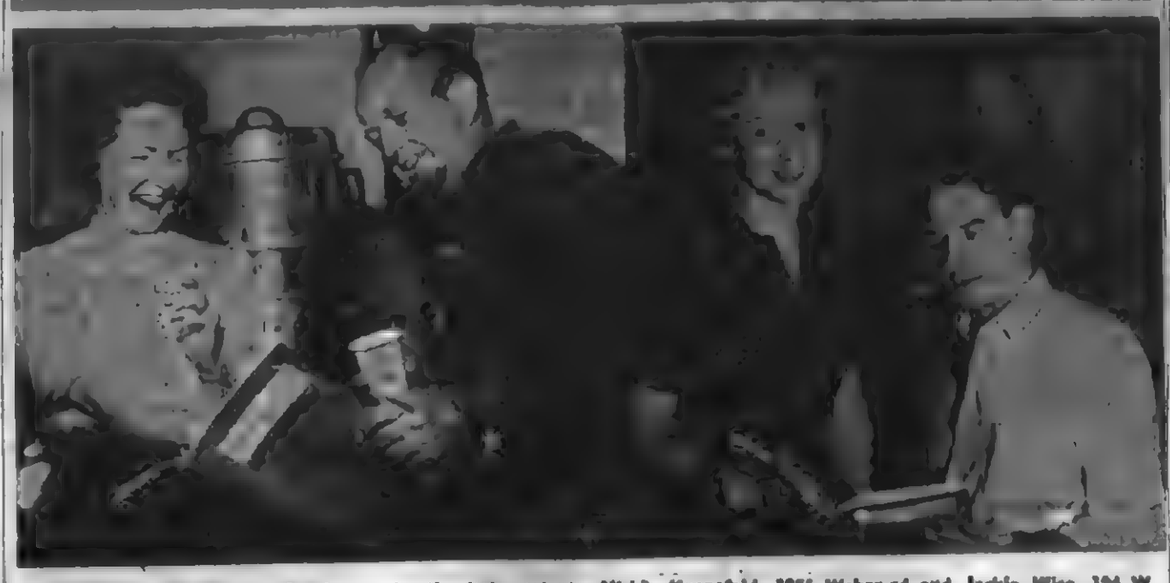
The Columbus Folk Dancers and the Whetstone Folk Dancers are sponsoring a week-end of New England style contra and square dancing featuring Ralph Page. This event will be held Saturday and Sunday, Apr. 28 and 29, at Gladden Community House, 163 Hawkes-al.

It will be of interest to Ohio folk and square dancers and also to those who are interested in discovering the traditional dances of the oldest part of the nation.

Ralph Page can claim the distinction of being one of the first full-time callers in the United States, since he started in 1930. He has called in practically every state in the Union and much of Canada. In 1956 he taught contra dancing to the Japanese people as a member of a team sent there by the State Department.



Those who have met him on his other trips to Ohio remember not only his calling but also his New England wit and anecdotes. Anyone who has ever tried contra and square dancing can look forward to an exhilarating week-end.

Further information can be obtained by calling Mrs. John Shaw, 376 Melrose-ave, at AM-7-2139.

MOONLIGHT MOVIES

Eleven first-run movies, never before shown on TV in this area, will be seen on "Moonlight Movies," Sunday nights at 11:30, on WLW-C during the summer months.

Included in the late movie schedule are "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," "Romeo and Juliet," "Dinner at Eight," "The Women," "Forbidden Alliance," "Rage in Heaven," "Queen Christian," "Escape," "The Painted Veil," "The Lady Dances," and "Conquest."

Get Runnin' Shoes Abner, Daisy's Comin'

All of Dogpatch has waited for years to see if Daisy Mae could catch her man. They finally get to see her success in "Li'l Abner," which will be staged May 22 and 29 at Veterans Memorial Auditorium.

In the musical version of this classic chase, the shapely heroine and muscled hero have some of the zaniest setbacks ever to befall a courtship—including an encounter with the Yocumburry tonic swindlers, an atomic bomb threat, and a statue named Jubulation T. Cornpone.

Rehearsing these delightful escapades are the Independent Players, a group of non-professionals whose productions are non-professional in name only. For the 40 years they have brought outstanding musical shows to Columbus audiences and this year will be no exception.

The cast of more than 50 Thespians polish their "Dogpatch-isms" behind the deceptive front of 257½ W. Broad-st. The players have converted one floor of the building into a clubhouse and use another — on loan from the Transit workers Union — as their rehearsal hall.

Four times a week Musical Director Paul L. Morris of 606 Kelner-rd stands behind the podium of Local 208 and transforms the barny room into a rollicking community of mountain folk.

While Marryin' Sam and his friends rehearse, the rest of the lively cast members join in a cooperative effort to "get the show on the road."

"It costs approximately $100 for each person to go on stage," said Chuck Tarbox, who plays mayor of Dogpatch.

To help defray costs, and also because they love it, the players pitch in and double as stage hands, program makers and ticket sellers.

Vivacious Mrs. Harold Last, wife of the Players' president, dashed to the office with a pattern book in hand. "We just finished picking out the cottons and colors for the Dogpatch costume — just about drove the salesgirl crazy," she exclaimed, referring to 19 swatches of brightly colored material.

"It really gets exciting around here," volunteered Joanne Howard, who plays Moonbeam, "especially around show time when everyone jumps in with both feet."

The Independent Players have been "jumping in with both feet" ever since they started giving shows in 1922. Beginning as a group affiliated with the Independent Protestant Church, they were so encouraged with their first production they organized in 1923 under the name of Independent Players and have been staging musicals ever since.

Although the musical show is the biggest event of each year, the group also entertains with choral concerts, and maintains an active program for members. The Clubhouse, a product of painting and carpeting by interested members, serves as a social gathering place and drama and dance workshop during the year.

A random sample of the Players' membership shows their diversity off stage as well as on. From the bus-driver president to the lawyer and housewife actors, the group is an example of people who find time to do what they like. And for Columbus audiences, it's a happy choice.

Conductor William Smith Brings Philadelphia Concert

The Philadelphia Orchestra, playing at Veterans Memorial Tuesday evening, May 1, at 8:30, will bring to a resounding close the 28th season of concerts offered by the Symphony Club of Central Ohio.

William Smith

A newcomer to the podium in Columbus will be William Smith, assistant conductor, standing in for Eugene Ormandy. The popular music director is under medical orders to lighten his overcrowded schedule.

Smith has served as assistant since 1952, and has proved his marked abilities in a number of last-minute emergencies, notably in his first season when he was called upon to replace Igor Stravinsky in Philadelphia and New York concerts. But his duties do not confine him to the role of pinch-hitter. In many phases of preparation they are vital to the public performances.

The Philadelphians' program for the May 1 concert consists of the Overture to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," the Fifth Symphony of Tchaikovsky, Ravel's "La Valse" and "The Pines of Rome" by Respighi.

Tickets are available at the Symphony Club box office, Summer's Music Store, 114 E. Broad-st, and at Zeisler's Record Shop, 1677 W. Lane-av.

THESE EXAMPLES of early earthenware and glass are among the many pieces to be exhibited in the new decorative arts hall which will open Friday, Apr. 27, in the Ohio State Museum.

Crafts Featured In Exhibit

The new decorative arts exhibition hall on the second floor of the Ohio State Museum will be opened to the public by the Ohio Historical Society Friday, Apr. 27, at 3 p.m.

The opening exhibit will include many pieces from the society's collections of glass, textiles, pottery and porcelain, furniture and the graphic arts. On loan for this exhibit are rare prints and paintings, furniture, pressed glass, luster and spatterware from prominent private collections.

Planned to illustrate and interpret the impact of the Industrial Revolution on these items commonly used in the home, the exhibit will show the startling contrast in design between the careful techniques of the hand craftsman and those of the age of the machine.

The opening of this exhibit is in connection with the 77th Annual Meeting of the Ohio Historical Society which convenes at noon Friday. Tracy Atkinson, acting director of the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts, will speak after the 12:30 luncheon. Museum hours are 9-5 daily and 1-5 on Sundays.

Wonders Of 21st Century Featured At Seattle Fair

How would you like to ride on the Milky Way, visit a "floating city" where the walls are made of jets of air, or sample a dinner cooked from cotton and wood wastes. Impossible? Not at the 1962 World's Fair, which opened Apr. 21 for six months in Seattle, Wash.

The wonders of the 21st century are being featured at this scientific, centered exposition. Many of them are housed in the Federal Science Pavilion, a $10,000,000 construction displaying life and travel into space and the future. The building includes a laboratory, especially set up for children between the ages of eight and 14. It takes approximately nine hours to wander through the pavilion.

The Coliseum, another gigantic construction, is housing a "floating city" which shows what life might be like in the year 3000 A.D. — including such wonders as demonstrations of solar operated appliances and introducing disposable plastic clothing.

Dominating the fair site is the Space Needle, a 600-foot tripod with a revolving restaurant and observation tower at the top.

(Ed. Note: How did the cave man ever manage?)

OSU Choir Concert Sunday

Under the direction of Louis H. Diercks, professor of music, the OSU Symphonic Choir will present its 25th anniversary concert at 8 p.m. on Sunday, Apr. 29 at Mershon Auditorium.

Featured in the spring concert will be Bach's "Cantata No. 4" and Norman Dello Joio's "Song of the Open Road," with Bruce Stevenson as trumpet soloist.

This 25th anniversary concert marks a reunion for the choir. More than 100 former members have indicated they will be on hand for the rehearsal and anniversary dinner on the afternoon and evening of Apr. 29.

At Ease . . . TIMELY TIPS . . . FOR PLEASURE

By BEVERLY FLEISHMAN

Those who like their folk music sweet and subtle have a treat in store with the coming of Joan Baez, 20-year-old folk singer who was discovered by the coffee-house set in Cambridge, and

Beverly

Miss Baez' delicate soprano voice has a quality of innocence that is especially effective for her selection of American and English ballads.

Most interesting is that Miss Baez' success lies in her unaffected singing and guitar playing. In the day of the "popular arrangements" of folk songs, it is refreshing to find someone who sings them as they were written.

Her performances have been enthusiastically received by college audiences, but we see no reason why her appeal should be limited to one age group.

She performs at Mershon Auditorium at 8 p.m., Friday, May 4.

PLAY CHANGE — Playhouse-on-the-Green producer Sallie Sexton has secured the rights to John Patrick's "Everybody Loves Opal." The play, which starred Eileen Heckart and Shelley Berman on Broadway recently, will replace "Romanoff and Juliet" at the tent theater the week of July 2-7.

WORTH WAITING FOR: The Great Artist Series '62-63 at Mershon Auditorium. Among the eight notable events will be the New York City Opera Company's presentation of "Rigoletto"; Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans in an evening of Shakespearean excerpts and pianist Rudolf Serkin.

COMING UP SOON: Capital University's production of "Street Scene."

GOOD NEWS for those who like Marc Chagall. An exhibition of 40 black and white prints will open at the Adult Lounge of the Jewish Center May 13.

COMMON SENSE —vs— NONSENSE

"It's unwise to pay too much, but it's worse to pay too little. When you pay too much, you lose a little money — that is all. When you pay too little, you sometimes lose everything, because the thing you bought was incapable of doing the thing it was bought to do. The common law of business balance prohibits paying a little and getting a lot — it can't be done. If you deal with the lowest bidder, it is well to add something for the risk you run, and if you do that you will have enough to pay for something better."

West Is No. Four At London

London notched its fourth straight win Thursday night behind the four-hit pitching of Talis Gulbis, turning back visiting West, 4-0.

The Red Raiders scored two runs in the first frame and added single counters in the fourth and fifth innings to take the shutout victory.

Steve Garrard sparked the first inning fireworks after landing safe on first via an infield error. Jim Colwell, attempting a sacrifice, was safe on a wild throw and Garrard steamed home.

Colwell advanced to third and scored when catcher Don Morrison laid down a bunt.

Morrison singled through the middle to open the fourth frame. Don Eades was then safe on an infield error and Elsworth Simmons loaded the sacks with a single through the middle.

Paul Laybourne then singled to left to score Morrison.

The other run was scored after Colwell singled, advanced to second on an infield out and scored on a single to left by Morrison.

The win was the third of the year for Gulbis, who struck out seven and walked three. All four hits against the Red Raider mound ace were singles.

Lawbourne, substituting for the injured Stan Gibson, and Morrison had perfect days at the plate. Some fine defensive plays were turned in by Eades and John Brill.

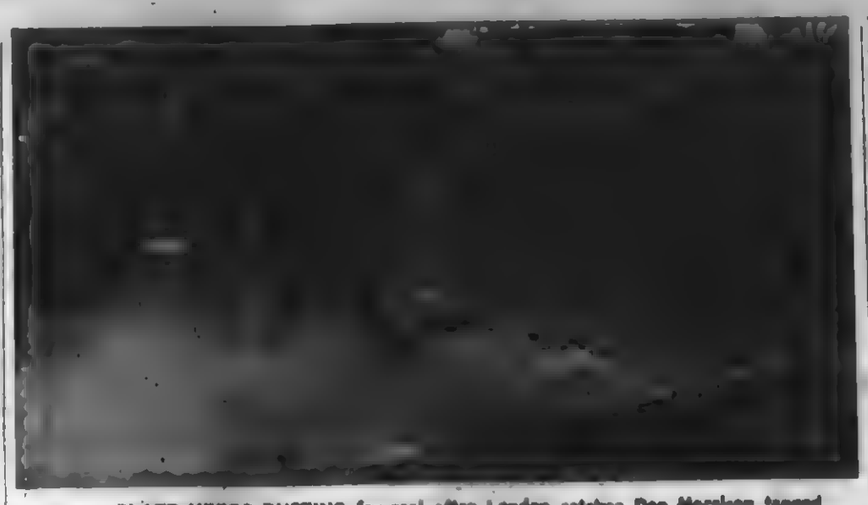

PLATE NEEDS DUSTING for real after London catcher Don Morrison tagged out West High's Jim Cook at home in the second inning of the Red Raiders 4-0 shut out of the visiting cowboys.

Mama Mia! Magly Field To Look Like Bit Of Ol' Rome

Put me in a can and call me an anchovy if I miss my guess but, after talking with West High Track Coach R. C. Glass, the upcoming Hilltop Relays in Magly Field will have all the pomp and ceremony of the recent Olympic Games in Rome, Italy.

Of course Gina or Sophia won't be sitting in the bleachers but that's about all that'll be missing from the May 4 event which starts around 7 p.m. with trumpets and everything.

Included in that "everything" are a few local lovelies that should add even more spectator interest to the relay meet. Five queens will be chosen by the track team on Apr. 30 and will be presented with awards on the big night.

Six Schools Will Enter

In all six local schools will show off during the one-day affair, including Central, Linden, South, North, East and host West.

All field event will start promptly at 7 p.m., Glass said, with track events beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The cold facts about the wing-ding's host is that it has never won the meet in its 16-year history. West was a very close second to South last year and came in on the runner-up slot several other times.

"We have a very good chance to win this year," Glass said hopefully. He attributes this optimistic remark to the fact that his squad is composed, mainly, of veteran track men — all anxious to grab the first win for the Cowboys.

Regardless of who wins the individual events, Glass has lined up some local trumpet players ("trumpeters" he calls them) who'll call all winners to the victory stand for the awards presentation.

But, that's only half the story. The real incentive (which should make Rev. Bob Richards out of all of the contestants) is the fact that the awards will be made by the relay queens. Rome was never like this.

Admission is 50-cents and tickets are available at the gate.

Wright May Bowl 'Em Over

Youthful, energetic Craig Wright, former safety director of Whitehall, is now running for state representative and his "campaign trail" may set a record even if the election returns don't.

Wright isn't kissing any babies. That went out with high-buttoned ivy league pants. He's just shaking hands at bowling alleys (perhaps, to create an image that he's on the ball.)

"I cover the alleys systematically," Wright said. "I hit the men's leagues in the evenings and the women's leagues during the mornings."

Wright philosophizes that you meet "the greatest cross-section of people anywhere" in bowling alleys and, it's around these alleys that he's built his campaign.

"There are 15 alleys in Franklin County," Wright said with commendable statistical knowledge. "I shake hands with about 200 to 250 bowlers each trip." That's a heap of hand-shaking but it's paying off.

He just walks up to the bowlers, introduces himself, and then explains his campaign platform of a reversal of the trend to increase taxations on business and get more financial aid for Ohio school districts.

Wright feels at home in the local lanes. He's quite a sportsman himself. He played basketball and football at Lima Central High School and was captain of the golf team at the University of Kentucky. He was secretary of the Columbus Colts, Inc., pro football team last year and is still a stockholder.

His bowling average?

The West Mound Rams Booster Club president, Bill Childster, announced that he wants to contact all boys nine to 14 years of age who are interested in playing football.

The Rams 90 and 110 pound team will start spring football this Saturday, Apr. 28, at 1 p.m. on the home field, 2400 Eakin-rd (Hilltonia Park).

The Rams' coaching staff will have a real rebuilding job in 1962 with only six returning boys from a whirlwind 1961 team.

City Settles On Westgate Center Site

The city's superintendent of recreation and architects last Friday settled on the exact location of the new $400,000 recreation center for Westgate Park.

Superintendent N. J. Barack said it remains close to the original site description which was given when the project was revealed several weeks ago.

Barack confirmed that the center will face east, paralleling Westgate-av, between Wicklow and Parkside, and will sit back from the street about 125 feet. The north-south boundaries were shifted only about 10 feet from the original plan, he said.

The architects, Sims, Cornelius and Schooley are in final stages of readying plans for the contractor, who is to be selected soon.

Commenting on another Westgate matter of current discussion, Barack said the park's clay tennis courts will receive routine scraping, instead of the special resurfacing which council rejected because of cost.

"TENNIS SHOES"

Call them sneakers or tennis shoes or Keds, the fact remains that standard equipment for any lively boy or girl at this time of the year is a pair of canvas shoes of some sort. I can remember when we talked against them and advised parents that only leather was healthy for feet. That was back in the days when tennis shoes were cheap, smelly, poorly constructed shoes fit only for those who could not afford anything better. Like a lot of other things, time has made some changes. The modern canvas shoe in a good quality like our Keds is a definite part of our modern way of life. We have been studying their effect on feet for almost ten years and from our pedo-graph arch prints, we know that, in most cases, wearing Keds is as near as modern children can get to going bare footed. That it provides a resilient surface to walk on and freedom of movement which helps develop muscular strength in feet and legs. The danger lies in purchasing some of the cheap foreign made kind which do not fit and have no protecting raise under the arch.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my beloved husband, Louis Krumpholz, member of South Side Legion 144, who passed away Sept. 26, 1959, whose birthday was on April 30 —

So sad and sudden
Death comes to call.
Your sudden passing
Surprised us all.
A sudden change
In a moment fell
Without a chance to say farewell.
We often sit and think
Of you, and then of how—you died. To think you
Could not say good-bye
Before you closed your eyes.

Sadly missed by wife,
Myrtle Krumpholz,
Two granddaughters,
Two great-grandsons.

L. W. Addie Heads MBA Of Pennsy

L. W. Addie, formerly of 93 N. Roys-av, has been named general president of the Mutual Beneficial Association of Pennsylvania Railroad Employes, Inc., at Philadelphia.

While he was here, he was employed for 20 years at the 20th-st shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was a member of the Glenwood Methodist Church, Westgate Lodge 623, Scioto Consistory and the Aladin Temple Shrine.

He was born at Alta Vista, Kan., Oct. 21, 1907, and was graduated from high school there and from Kansas State Teachers College. Later he did graduate work at the Ohio State University.

Addie began his railroad career as a machinist at Columbus and was employed here continuously until his move to Philadelphia. During 1939, he was given a leave of absence from the PRR and served as a field agent for the U.S. Railroad Retirement Board in the Columbus area.

He first joined the MBA at Columbus in 1935, later becoming a member of the local's board of trustees and stores committee. He became the local's secretary.

In February, 1950, he was appointed to the MBA Board of Directors and in the fall of that year was elected for a two-year term.

Since that time, he has served on the board continuously. In 1960, he was re-elected to the board of directors for a six-year term. He has been serving as general vice-president of the MBA since Oct. 1, 1957.

Addie is married and has a son, Lee, 26; daughter, Martha, 14, and two grandchildren.

USING A BASEBALL bat as an imaginary pen, Columbus Mayor Ralston Westlake signs a proclamation designating the week of Apr. 22-28 as "Columbus Jets Baseball Week." Assisting the mayor are, from left, Carl Lundquist, public relations director for the National Association (Miners) of Professional Baseball Leagues; Phil Piten, assistant to Minor League Commissioner George M. Trautman, and Hank Gowdy, co-ordinator of youth activities for the Jets. The home-town team opens tonight at 8 o'clock in the E. Mound-st stadium against Toronto.

Tent Revival In Progress

Services, being held by Rev. J. Walter Speer of Winston Salem, N. C., will continue through Apr. 29.

Regularly scheduled services are Sunday School, 9:30 a.m., and worship at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Shepard is molding his starting unit around outfielders Hank Mitchell, Powers, Rex Johnston, Wilver Stargell, infielders Leonard, Dick Gray, Roberto Sanchez, Gene Alley, Gene Baker (playing coach), Bob Bailey, catchers Cal Neeman, Gary Rushing and pitchers Parsons, Laurin Pepper (presently on the disabled list), Chuck Churn, Tom Butters, Tommie Sisk, Don Rowe, Ron Blackburn, Bob (Riverboat) Smith, Bob Priddy, Larry Foss, Jim Hardison and Art Swanson.

The field is ready and the bleachers have been wiped off. All that remains is to pack the family into the car and head toward the west side tonight for baseball in Columbus—the very best kind.

Sneak Preview This Week For Melwood Gardens

Melwood Gardens, a new planned community, one block south of W. Broad-st, at Evergreen Terrace (opposite Lincoln Lodge), is featuring a sneak preview Friday and Saturday, Apr. 29 and 30, from 1 to 6 p.m. Grand opening showing of Melwood Garden homes will follow on May 13.

John Steinberg, Jr., project manager for ML Development Corporation, developers of Melwood Gardens, invited West area families to take this opportunity to tour the new home site in advance of the grand opening.

Melwood Gardens features three and four bedrooms with one and one-half or two full baths. The homes are described as contemporary in design, moderately priced and varying in function and style to include one floor, two floor, and bi-level plans. They are set on fully landscaped lots which feature evergreens, and the entire area boasts a variety of hardwood trees.

This community is only minutes away from schools, churches, shopping facilities and recreation, Steinberg pointed out.

St. Aloysius Men Sponsor Dance

The recently formed St. Aloysius Men's Club is planning an after-Easter dance to be held Saturday, Apr. 28, 8:30 p.m., in the auditorium of the new school. All members, parishioners and friends are welcome.

Also on the following Saturday, May 5, the club will have a pot luck supper and entertainment, to which all are invited.

'Nothing To Do' — So Kids Wreck Fairgrounds

RAILINGS RAZED BY VANDALS

By RON COFFMAN and ED CHURCHILL

If vandals have their way, the Franklin County Fair is going to be a dark and drafty proposition this year.

Moving over the Hilliard exposition grounds like a crew of professional wreckers adolescent thrill-seekers have kept one jump ahead of repair teams and watchmen in their bid to build a junkyard.

Within two years fair officials have funneled more than $1,000 into a frustrating game of chance called "Let's Fix the Fairgrounds Again." So far the funds have provided only additional fun-times for youngsters who make a habit of playing havoc with amusement grounds buildings.

Details of damage are extensive. So far this year about 75 large light bulbs, 40 expensive windows and a host of wooden objects have fallen prey to vandalism.

Every pane of glass in the race track judges' stand has been smashed and the rest of the structure has been so badly damaged fair officials decided to raze it.

Restroom and concession stand windows and doors have been battered. Fences are sagging from the onslaught. The grandstand walls are pocked with holes created by feet and fists.

Railings separating box seats have been splintered to the point where they must be completely rebuilt before Aug. 13-17 exhibition. Tickets and valuable fair records are missing after a break-in at the general office. Paper and pop bottles litter the area.

And all of this, according to Carl Crandall, long-time secretary of the Franklin County Agricultural Society, "is caused by about a half-dozen kids."

Crandall, the man responsible for running the repair race, is about at the limit of his patience.

"We fix things, they tear them up. Everything on the grounds has been damaged at one time or another and the board is just plain sick of it," he emphasized.

"Most of this is caused by kids — young ones—who come out here with nothing to do, just wanting to see what they can tear up," the secretary commented. He noted most of the damage occurred "in broad daylight."

Hilltopper Makes News in Florida

An old Hilltopper, perhaps the oldest in line of operating a business in this community, John A. Bentz, recently had an unexpected windfall when the Social Security Department dropped a check for $3,810 in his hands.

A copy of the Key West Citizen from Key West, Florida dated Apr. 26 carries a 2-column picture of the Bentz family receiving the check and a long story relates how John did not realize that he was eligible for those payments until he read a story in the local newspaper one evening. His application brought the big check, the largest ever paid in the Keys. It represents 12 months back payments.

The size of the payment is based on the size of Bentz's family which included his wife, Elizabeth and four children, Johnnie, James, Joanne and Jennifer, all of whom are under the age of 18.

John Bentz, owner of the local Hilltop Plumbing Supply, relates how he started this business some 50 years ago on $300 of borrowed money. In a note to the Record he states that his family will be back in Columbus this summer.

Notes and Nubbins

Mrs. Harry Hale from Alaska and brand new son, born in the 50th state, will be arriving Friday for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Gothard, 365 N. Brinker-av . . . Mary Miller, genial YW secretary, will beware of Friday the Thirteenth from now on, after her recent experience of getting a ticket for jay walking and then to return to her car and find a parking ticket . . . A sure sign of spring: Jones Lumber Co., advertising tomato stakes . . . Organizations may well take a warning from a north side service club who recently had as their speaker a fast talker who had a hot bargain of a health booklet and a box of cereal which he just happened to be willing to sell at $2 per, only next day they found that another similar group had been offered the same deal at $1 per. . . Oh, well, things move faster in the spring. . . And then there is the guy who is bemoaning the fact that he didn't save during the Eisenhower recession so he could live through the Kennedy prosperity.

Welfare Levy, Democrat Split Give Primary Spark

AN OUTPOST in a "grassroots approach" to Democratic party change in the county has been set up at 792 Sullivant-av by the Democrats for Precinct Reorganization.

While statewide attention is focused on contests within party ranks for nominations to gain top Ohio governmental posts, a controversial health and welfare levy and a split in Democrat ranks will insure a lively local primary election on May 8.

Election officials said early indications were that unusually large numbers of voters will go to the polls next Tuesday between 6:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

In all-Ohio balloting the in-party feuding between Gov. Michael V. DiSalle and Attorney General Mark McElroy over the Democratic gubernatorial nomination will lead off a parade of contests.

Both parties have races brewing in nominations for U.S. senator, congressman-at-large, lieutenant-governor, and attorney general in addition to governor. One supreme court seat will be contested.

On the local level the proposed one-mill general operating levy to be used for additional public assistance projects has drawn comment from many voters.

Passage of the levy would yield approximately $1,360,000 a year.

Voters will choose seven candidates from a slate of 11 Democratic state representative hopefuls while the GOP ticket lists nine men for the seven slots open on the November ballot.

The county commissioners' tally shows three men in each party vying for single nominations.

Bernard Chupka and James Maxwell will oppose each other on the Republican slate in the only local judicial position to be contested.

A Hilltop Democrat, Robert M. Draper, 104 S. Westmoor-av, seven years a judge in the Court of Common Pleas is seeking re-election. (Jan. 1 term.)

Charles Meeks, of 68 Clark-pl, is running for state representative on the Democratic ticket. Three other West area men of that party are after the county commissioner's vacancy. They are former commissioner D. J. Kunz, 5266 W. Broad-st; former city clerk Russell D. Drake, 105 N. Chase-av, and Val Boehm, 53 S. Huron-av.

Anti-Heer Democrats 'In Business' Here

Since last Friday a former storm window store at 792 Sullivant-av has been the buzzing headquarters of a faction of Democrats who say they are dissatisfied with the operation of the party from its downtown hotel stronghold and "want to move it to where the people live."

They're moving it into Ninth Ward territory, where Frank A. Schneider, 312 Avondale-av, has for many years perpetuated the old-time style of ward politicking. The new group, calling themselves the Democrats for Precinct Reorganization, are putting up Mrs. Evelyn O'Linn, 645 Miner-av, against Schneider. In proclaiming their dislike for the methods of County Democratic Chairman Walter Heer, they are enlisting the support of other wards. Locally they are also pitting Charles A. Page, 505 Nashoba-av, against Harry M Burns in Ward 10 and Daniel D. Crites, S. Richardson-av, against John W. Brown in Ward 31.

Two party regulars are not involved in contests. They are Russell Drake in Ward 32 and Francis J. Boehm in Ward 11.

The insurgents (a word they shun) say this is not the first time there has been party friction, recalling 1948, but they declare this is the first time in 32 years that a headquarters has been set up away from downtown. A group spokesman said the Sullivant-av office may be retained after the primaries "for training of precinct workers."

A turnout of 10 volunteers was reported Monday night. The workers, who were organized at the instigation of John Bowers and attorney Donald Tishman, are actively distributing platform literature and making telephone calls to registered Democrats.

Schneider Confident

Reached for comment Tuesday veteran Ninth Warder Schneider answered: "In trying to unseat Walter Heer and defeat me they are tampering with the most cooperative committeeman in Franklin County. I don't think they will ever succeed in gathering the necessary 35 elected candidates to overpower the present organization."

Schneider pointed out that his interests in party activity range widely. He said he is a member of the Ninth Ward Democratic

FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Columbus Council Gives Boost To Conservancy Work

Columbus City Council has urged full support of the Scioto Conservancy District's request for a loan of $1.5 million to finance its program.

Plans call for construction of six dams and two local flood control projects in Columbus and Chillicothe.

The U.S. Army Engineer's office in Huntington, W. Va., reported that when dams and reservoirs are completed, Columbus will be the center of a wonderland of lakes which will also offer recreation. They added that annual floods on the Scioto would be cured by the project.

The City Treasury Investment Board was asked by Council Monday night for its cooperation in the matter until the SCD can find other means of revenue.

The SCD has estimated that $1,344,420 will be needed for appraisals and planning work after adoption of its official project. Only $253,000 is presently available which would come from the old Scioto-Sandusky District.

SCD officials reported that a plan is expected to be ready by July.

The conservancy board suggested that the city advance funds at a current interest rate and then repay it after approximately 14,000 parcels of land are appraised and assessed by the district.

Council unanimously approved an ordinance calling for a petition to broaden the district's program to a multi-purpose plan and a resolution supporting the general plans.

Final action on the proposed loan must be taken by the Treasury Investment Board.

The requested loan will be discussed in detail with SCD officials, City Auditor John Price, an investment board member, reported.

RELAY QUEENS ARE SELECTED AT WEST

To give incentive to athletes, among other reasons, five West High School beauties have been selected queens to reign over the 16th annual Hilltop Relays this Friday.

The gals include sophomores Pam Campbell and Beverly Wilson, juniors Faye Goolsby and Becky Baker and senior Vickie Hixson.

Six schools will be competing in the Magly Field event, including Central, Linden, South, North, East and host West.

What about the incentive? The queens will present all awards.

Field events start at 7 p.m., and track events at 7:30. The story of the event itself is in the high school wrap-up column in this week's sports, page 13.

JACKSON PIKE WOMEN'S WORKHOUSE PLANS REVEALED

ARCHITECT'S SKETCH of the $350,000 Women's Workhouse to be built soon on Jackson-pk. The building is in the shape of a cross; the side parallel to the road being 150 feet long, and the side perpendicular to the road being 153 feet long. The exterior will be stone, brick and concrete and the interior will have dormitory facilities for 45 women. Inside will be a large laundry room and a recreation room, part of which will be a chapel. The recreation room faces on Big Run Creek, giving the room a pleasant view and also lending privacy. Six detention cells will be installed as will be a three-bed infirmary with facilities for medical examination and treatment. The women's site will be about 1,000 feet south of the Men's Workhouse on the opposite side of Jackson-pk, 200 feet from the road. The architectural work was done by Brookwater & Harrison & Associates of Columbus.

30 City 'Bosses' Return To School At Sunshine

The "school bell" is ringing again for approximately 30 supervisors in the various divisions of city government.

Mayor Westlake advised his division heads to choose the top supervision as "students" to the school. Arrangements were made for a comprehensive Supervisors Safety Training Course to be conducted by the Division of Safety and Hygiene, Industrial Commission of Ohio. The course started Monday, Apr. 30, and will run through May 25, each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Sunshine Recreation Building, Sullivant and Skidmore-avs.

The purpose of the safety course is to develop in the supervisors the proper attitude, skill, and knowledge necessary to carry out a successful accident prevention program in their respective areas of operation, Mayor Westlake said.

"Although the City of Columbus accident frequency for 1961 was 26.47 per cent less than 1960 and the Workmen's Compensation premium rate reduced 16.8 per cent, I am determined to further reduce our accident experience and accident costs for 1962," said the mayor.

At Mayor Westlake's request, John Pagnard, safety co-ordinator, made all necessary arrangements for the school and followed up with the supervisors in an "all out" campaign to eliminate accidents and reflect a savings of many thousands of dollars in taxpayers' money.

Ladies of the Hilltop Auxiliary have planned a noon luncheon with special entertainment for the ladies.

The closing event will be the governor's banquet to be held at 6:15 p.m. Saturday at Veterans Memorial. 10 district governors of Ohio will be honored and addressed by Birch.

Flasher Zone Sites Are Picked

Police Department Plans Speed Study

The wrangling question of school zone flasher signals became a little more un-wrangled this week as Columbus Traffic Engineer Jack Gallagher revealed 20 sites throughout Columbus that are in line for the lights.

Although no definite action was taken by the Commission, Gallagher feels that the 20 named locations have an above average chance of getting the signals. Half of them are in the west area. They include:

Broad-st at Hague-av, (West Broad Elementary); Sullivant-av, (John Burroughs School); Mound-st at Belvidere-av, (West Mound Elementary); W. Town and Gift; Grubb, Skidmore — held. (Flasher OKed at Grubb, 1-31-61).

Biana-blvd and Mound-st; Eakin-rd and Richardson-av, (Lindbergh Elementary School; State and Mills-sts, (two schools and Boys Club) Souder and Renick; Valleyview-dr and Westmoor-av, (Valleyview Elementary).

Any official action of the signal hinges on studies both by the Columbus Police Department and by Traffic Commission members.

The police say that they want to make radar checks of the areas and surveys of autos from the air. A decision is expected at the next Commission meeting May 8.

Before it's over, Gallagher hopes to have the flashers installed at all school zones in the city — both public and parochial — at a cost of $402,712.

"To my knowledge, we'll (Columbus) be the first town to install these lights," Gallagher said, and added: "The nice thing about the project is that it will be advantageous to the motorists as well as to the school children."

The engineer reported that he had received some complaints from traffic court judges and radar men who said that motorists didn't know that some areas were school zones.

"Also," Gallagher pointed out, "right now, motorists have only a vague idea about which hours are 'restricted' ones. Different schools open and close at different times and it is confusing to a motorist."

There are flashing signals in various school zones spotted throughout the city. But, Gallagher pointed out, they are turned on by time clock. The proposed system requires a janitor or teacher to turn them on or off at the appropr' time.

Briggs Anniversary Celebration Closing

Briggs Insurance Agency has been celebrating its 35th anniversary for the past eight weeks with a community-wide awarding of US Savings Bonds. The coming week will be the last chance to drop at the Briggs office at 2595 Sullivant-av and deposit a coupon which can be obtained there or elsewhere in this newspaper.

The drawing will be held Friday, May 4 at 3:15 p.m. Persons need not be present to win any of the prizes. Free gifts are given to adults just for stopping by without any obligation.

Welfare Plans Major Interest Of D. J. Kunz

The Franklin County welfare program is a major interest of D. J. Kunz, 5268 W. Broad-st, Democratic candidate for county commissioner, he said this week.

Kunz, a realtor and a federal and county appraiser, who has served as Justice of the Peace for Prairie Township and as field supervisor for the Federal Credit Administration, was elected three terms as mayor of New Rome and one term as county commissioner. He is currently serving on the governmental committee for Ohio Realtors Association and the Planning and Zoning Committee of the Columbus Board of Realtors.

When he took office as county commissioner Dec. 4, 1958, the county general fund was in the red $289,000 with no appropriation for welfare during the previous four years thus causing a very heavy indebtedness in this department. As chairman of the board in 1959 he was able to set up by budget to appropriate $100,000 for the Welfare Department which provided, among other things, new beds for Alum Crest Hospital and repairs to the County Home. The deficit was paid off and the general fund was returned to a $65,000 balance.

Kunz points out that he has been active in his capacity as a former commissioner toward the development of the new Scioto Conservancy District and also one of those who pushed for the Big Run Sewer which is now serving relief to West Side and Hilltop areas. He is a candidate for election at the primaries May 8.

Gra-Y Talent Crown Retained By Bergmann

For the second year in a row Charles Bergmann of Westgate Gra-Y won the Gra-Y Talent Show held Apr. 26 at the Hilltop YMCA. Charles played two selections on the piano and was the overwhelming choice of the four Hilltop Y's Men. Harry Grashel, Chris Glaros, George Hughes and John Clay did the honors as judges.

Marc Moriva, on the clarinet, and Charles Martin playing the trumpet tied for second place. Marc is from West Broad and Chuck is from Lindbergh.

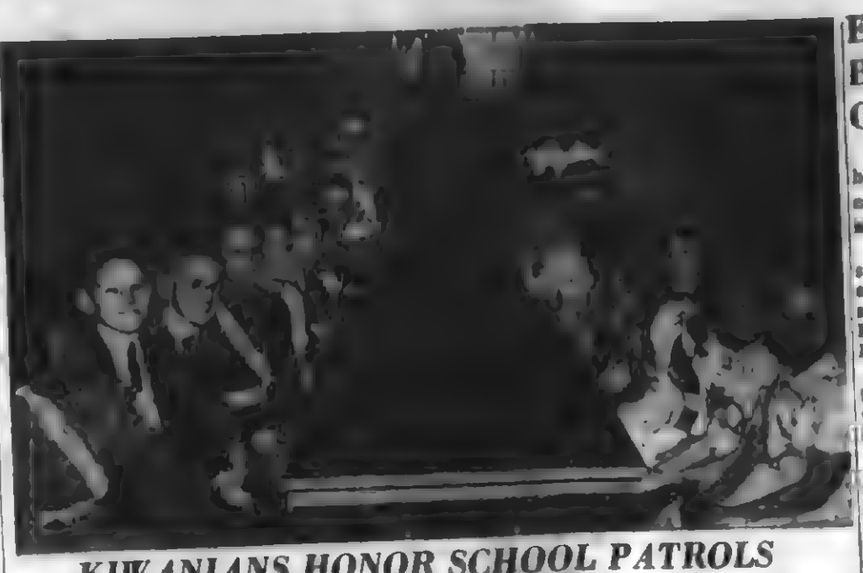
Fanta Demands Commission End Welfare Waste

Erwin J. Fanta called today for an end to "competition among public service agencies" for Franklin County's welfare dollars.



Fanta, candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner, said in a talk to Seventh and 30th Ward Republicans that 10 separate programs now compete for money in Franklin County and in 1961 spent more than $15 million.

"A fiscal expert," he said, "could shift monies within the department as needs fluctuated, and work toward reducing overhead and eliminating duplication of effort if all welfare programs were on one budget."

"The county commissioners," Fanta said, "must take a bold stand and stabilize our property tax structure. They must challenge the existing assumptions of welfare policy."

Illinois entered the Union December 3, 1818.

United Nations Day is Oct 24.

Ex-Footballer Bids For County Commissioner

Val Boehm, restaurant and hotel owner, is the Democratic candidate for County Commissioner.

A graduate of Xavier University at Cincinnati, he is a former professional football player and was elected to the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame.

He is a former athletic director of Aquinas High School and was a city fireman before going into business.

The Hilltop Democrat is a member of the Aquinas Club, Knights of Columbus and the Chamber of Commerce.

This is Boehm's first quest for elected office. "I will bring sound administrative and fiscal policies to the court house," Boehm said.

Health-Child Levy Needed

Much is being said regarding the Health, Medical and Child Care Levy to be voted on at the May 8 primary election. If you vote for the levy it will mean you are voting for an increase of 10 cents per each 100 dollars in real estate values in Franklin County for the next five years.

An intense effort is being put forward at this time by a very large number of reputable citizens and civic groups who are urging passage of the levy. These same people claim they will back every effort to see that the money is spent wisely in the field of hospital and child welfare purposes.

We have long contended that one of the major weakness in our present social system is that entirely too many able bodied men and women are provided for through our welfare programs when they should be forced to earn their livelihood.

Recalling the failure of this levy at the last election and with many people still not enthusiastic about the present proposed levy, it would appear that residents of Franklin County have a major task ahead — — that of a complete overhauling of the local welfare program.

We believe such an overhauling will come. It is with this in mind that we lend our support and urge that people should vote FOR the levy next Tuesday.

We are advised that failure of the levy will mean that the Olentangy School for Retarded Children will not be open in September.

Commissioners have assured that seven tenths of the levy proceeds will go for health and medical care and three tenths will go for child care services. None of the money will be spent on "handouts" for able bodied men and women.

Franklin County voters should approve the levy.

Hoover Dam Is Good Place To Exercise Your Practice Of Advanced Fishology

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

The word from Hoover Reservoir in recent days has been good. Walleyes, crappies and largemouth are being taken by anglers. With such a selection of fine fishing, who could complain?

Murray Crosby, of Paul's Marine, reported that walleyes up to 22 inches and weighing about three pounds were coming in. While not in great numbers, successful fishermen had from a couple to six fish each. Nightcrawlers and plugs are being used to catch the walleyes. Many anglers troll very slowly for walleyes and others prefer to drift —both methods are successful if you fish close to bottom.

Crappies have begun to show up in numbers. Stringers carrying from 25 to 50 fish have been reported. Crappies are usually the first to provide fast fishing action every spring at Hoover, and this year is no exception. Small minnows are preferred.

Early bass began showing up nearly two weeks ago, but fishing was rather slow. Those who tried the shallow, protected bays were the most successful. Now some are being caught in deeper water. Popular baits are nightcrawlers, both live and artificial, and spinners.

The problem at Hoover is the same that fishermen face at every body of water no matter how large or small—that is, finding the fish. We all know that fish are not equally distributed throughout this large lake. The problem is not so great on your favorite farm pond, for the distance to cover is not large. But to find a school of crappies or walleyes in Hoover is not easy.

This is why so many fishing excursions are doomed to failure. The weather is inviting and you want to get outdoors. You rush down to the bait store, buy a fishing license and pick up some nightcrawlers or minnows. Then out to the lake where you perhaps rent a boat. Now, where to fish? You pick some place at random and heave out your tackle. Maybe you get a strike and maybe you do not. The chances are against you.

After you try several more locations, also picked by guesswork, you begin to think about going home and doing something constructive like washing the car. You may feel that some outdoor writer has conned you into a worthless fishing trip. Perhaps you blame the Division of Wildlife for not stocking more fish, and you probably have a few choice words left over for the bait dealer or boat dock operator for exaggerated fish tales.

Experienced fishermen realize that to catch fish you must know the water. The best anglers in the country will employ guides when trying new waters until they get oriented. Where guides are not available, perhaps a fishing friend can show you "the ropes." If not, then through trial and error you must learn for yourself the good spots.

To shorten this process you should watch where other fishermen congregate on a lake. If fish are hitting in a particular location, it is difficult to keep it a secret for long. Also, keep your ears open around boat docks. Some anglers will give you false leads to keep you away from certain areas, but most are willing to help beginners and will give you helpful information. A good education in fishology is a great help — knowing that you can often catch walleyes off of rocky ledges and crappies from around brush piles will pay off. If you really want to catch fish you can, and the place to try right now is Hoover.

Principal Says Student Street Conduct Not Responsibility Of School Alone

Letter To The Editor:

In the Letters to the Editor of Apr. 11, 1962, a letter signed "An Irritated Motorist" praised and censured the students at West High School. I am grateful for the comments and feel the motorist justified to a degree.

First, I would like to state that safety education is stressed to the students at West High School through school bulletins, the public address system, assemblies, class room teachers, and in our driver training program. I believe "a motorist" will agree that a certain few in any given group "including adults" will not follow the normal rules of behavior set down for their own safety or benefit.

Secondly, when 1,730 students exit from school upon narrow streets many without the benefit of sidewalks, a physical safe passage problem is created.

Third, I feel all of our schools, public and parochial, make an honest effort to teach good safety habits but hasten to state that the school cannot be expected to assume all the responsibility. The schools have the students six hours a day, the parents have them the other eighteen.

There is a definite trend in our system to shift the responsibility of teaching the cultivation of values and living sanely from the parent and home to the school. Safety education is also a parental responsibility.

So, to "a motorist," I thank you for your honest criticism and plan to read your comments to our student body. I only hope you do not believe all our students behave like "smart aleck, dare-devil juveniles who work hard at causing motorists to lose their religion." I don't.

'Department Not Meeting Obligation'

Why the about-face in the matter of enforcement of the Sunday closing law? Why has Mayor Moling remained silent on this issue?

The people of Whitehall have placed much confidence in the city officials elected to office in 1961, but this confidence now appears to be shaken by the recent about-face in enforcement of the Sunday closing law.

It was not long ago that our present city officials were congratulating the former safety director for his decision to arrest any merchant convicted of a Sunday Sale Law violation. In view of the controversial Blue Law this seemed to be the proper procedure since such violations were tried in the courts having jurisdiction in Franklin Court and a decision rendered by such courts.

On Apr. 27, 1962, Richard Moling (the mayor's son, upon becoming safety director) informed the Whitehall City Council that he would not enforce the Sunday Closing Law.

It is said that Mr. Moling was congratulated by the majority of city councilmen on his stand. This seems strange since the city officials appeared to previously favor the stand made by Craig Wright.

The following statement was made by Mr. Moling. "We as public officials are to uphold the laws of this state and mainly to represent the people of this city." How can such a statement seem sincere to the people of Whitehall when Mr. Moling refuses to enforce a law of this state and refuse to enforce the law against violators found guilty in the courts of this state?

Mr. Moling stated that the city did not have the manpower to enforce the Sunday Closing Law due to "result of investigations, apprehension of felons, murderers, rapists and juvenile deliquents must come before anything else." This writer agrees that these things must come first, however, I do not believe that the crime rate in Whitehall is such that it consumes the manpower that such a statement reflects. In the event that the crime rate is up, action should be taken to increase the police department.

Mr. Moling further states that such enforcement of the Sunday Closing Law takes the police officer away from his family on the sabbath. Why then is there no concern for the people who are required to work due to the refusal to enforce the Sunday Closing Law?

Mr. Moling stated that the time loss of a police officer being present in court is another factor. However, this should be of no concern to the safety director, as time spent in court by a police officer is important to justice.

The final result of this refusal of Mr. Moling to enforce the Sunday Closing Law is that the streets of Whitehall are congested with traffic each Sunday with cars from the surrounding cities. If there is any doubt in the minds of the people of Whitehall as to the effects of this action it is suggested that you view the traffic congestion on Main Street each Sunday and count if you will the number of police officers present to control this traffic or the number that should be on duty to control the traffic.

Your city councilman is your representative in the city government. Write or call him to express your views in this matter.

I am a guardian of a group of Camp Fire Girls and am delighted and very happy at the coverage you are giving the Camp Fire Girls lately.

The spread on the "kidnapping" (in three of your papers) was especially nice.

With all the talk of delinquency and anti-American activities, you are doing much for our youth and our country in helping to bring before the public the good youth and its activities and its deep religious and American code.

The first two words of our creed are "Worship God." We try hard to instill the greatness of our American freedom in the Camp Fire program, and you are helping our organization to grow.

You can be assured that each and every Camp Fire Girl is a true American!

UCW Backs Levy

United Church Women of Columbus and Franklin County, at their board of managers meeting Apr. 11, endorsed the one-mill levy for welfare on the May 8th Primary Ballot.

We realize that this is only a stop-gap measure, but a very necessary one in light of the real need in our community.

Mrs. Ray Cave, President

'Welfare Not Charity'

To the Editor:

Last November the Welfare Levy was not established by the voters as an addition to the real estate tax. Many people do not vote in the primaries, but let me remind them that if they don't vote in this primary their vote last November will have been in vain because all welfare-staters and all relatives and friends of people on welfare will be out voting. Don't get tired! The hour is too late for that!

It is not fair to property owners to sock all levies on them. The best suggestion so far to solve the problem is a tax on rent. It will take the load off real estate for a while.

Jobs are created for the welfare bureaucracy by a larger clientele, so why should the Welfare Department probe their files to eliminate those who can work but think it is good for the government to take care of them? Charity and welfare are two different things. Before the government stepped in, the church and rich took care of the poor, or people took care of their own families, too, when they could.

Welfare through the government-controlled Health, Education, and Welfare Department is regimentation and socialization.

One last reminder: It is an out-and-out crime to criticize the social planners.

More Jones Boosters

Add my name to the list of those thanking you for printing the speech by Jenkin Lloyd Jones. The time has come for all of us, not just newspaper editors, to speak our minds and bring about some reforms.

Your printing this article has put me on my soap box so that I will write letters and express an opinion, good or bad, which is something I was not in the habit of doing. I have already expressed my appreciation in writing to the editor of the Columbus Dispatch for the article criticizing the New York drama critics on their choice of another sordid play as the Play of the Year.

I will certainly do my part to see that Mr. Jones' speech is read by as many of my friends as possible.

Mrs. Lawrence Robinson

Dear Sir:

Enclosed find $1 for which please send me 10 copies of Lloyd Jones' article "Who is Tampering with the Soul of America?" in booklet form, as mentioned in your Apr. 5 issue.

This article is one of the finest editorials I have ever read on the problem of the current moral and spiritual deterioration taking place in our country. Thank you for the fine service you have done for your community and for your country.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

How Do Food Retailers Pay For Stamps?

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits—Valencia oranges, grapefruit, canned peaches.

Last week the growth and recent developments of trading stamps in food marketing were discussed in this column. Now, let's take a look at the cost of the stamp plan and who pays the bill.

Mrs. Franks

In a 1958 study, U.S Department of Agriculture researchers found that retailers paid stamp companies an average of $2.25 per thousand stamps. Generally these were distributed to customers at the rate of one per 10 cents of sale or 10 per dollar of sale. Recent estimates place the total cost —including labor and other handling expenses—at two and one-half to three cents per dollar sales.

Who pays the cost? This will depend upon the specific market and store situation. There are several methods whereby retailers may offset their stamp costs. The commonly used ones are: (1) Increase prices to consumers. (2) Increase volume of business due to the stamp program to reduce operation costs enough to cover the trading stamp cost. (3) Accept lower profits per dollar sales.

It is very likely, and usually true, that a combination of two or more of these methods is used to cover trading stamp costs by food retailers.

A USDA study in 1957 compared price changes in stores that adopted stamp plans with those in non-stamp stores. In 21 cities prices were compared during the Nov. 1953-Aug. 1955 period with those in Aug. 1956-Mar. 1957, a period after stamps had been adopted by part of the stores. The results showed that prices in the stamp-giving stores increased 0.6 per cent more than in non-stamp stores. This represents an average result. Individual store results varied widely. But it does indicate that a part of the cost of stamps was covered by higher prices.

The Legality Of Stamps

Generally speaking, the trading stamp business is completely legal — although from their beginning, attempts have been made to prohibit or regulate stamps by legislative or court action. Court rulings have essentially been that legal status of trading stamps is within the jurisdiction of each state.

As a result, several states have enacted restrictive stamp laws of one kind or another. At least two states, Wyoming and Kansas, have voted an ban on trading stamps. A number of states require retailers and or stamp companies to obtain licenses (often at high cost) before they can issue stamps. And several other states have the requirement that stamps must be redeemable in either cash or merchandise.

Next week, we'll discuss some of the ways you can make the most effective use of those books of trading stamps.

THIS GOLDEN WEDDING PORTRAIT of Rev. and Mrs. Thaddeus Neff, 96 S. Wayne-av, enlarged and oiled, will hang in the missionaries' home church, Hilltop Church of God, 636 Whittemore-av.

Rev., Mrs. Neff Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Rev. and Mrs. Thaddeus Neff, missionaries for more than half a century, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with an open house reception Sunday, Apr. 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustel (Crystal) Guggenaster, 1680 Merrick-rd, were hosts at the party honoring her parents. At the request of Rev. and Mrs. Neff, donations were made to their missions' work, rather than gifts to the couple.

Although retired from foreign service in 1952, the Neffs, residents of 96 S. Wayne-av, are still active in missionary work, preaching, lecturing and visiting in several states.

Rev. Neff is the author of a number of publications, including his book, "40 Years Of Missionary Service," published in 1946.

He left his native state of Colorado when he was 21, and traveled to India where he served as a missionary for several years. On his furlough to the United States in 1912, he met and married Katrina Burgess, also doing missionary work, in New York City.

During the next several years the couple was stationed at Trinidad, British West Indies, where they helped to establish several new congregations.

In 1922 they sailed for Alexandria, Egypt, their permanent station until retirement in 1952. They remained in Alexandria during the action of the early war years, until compelled to leave. The couple returned to the city with the first military forces.

In addition to their daughter, Rev. and Mrs. Neff are parents of a son, Lowell, a resident of New York City.

Press Club Show's 'Petticoat Prevue' Program is Planned

Mrs. Virginia Benton, 141 S. Burgess-av, and Mrs. Gale Dodrill, 737 Chestershire-rd, have been named to the planning committee of the annual Petticoat Prevue of the Press Club Gridiron Show.

Sponsored by women members of the Press Club of Ohio, the May 23 Petticoat Prevue allows the distaff side to witness the full dress rehearsal of the men's stag political roast staged for the following night. Both events will be at the Neil House.

Fairground—

William Edwards has played an exasperating version of cops and robbers with the would-be delinquents all year. By the time he spots them and gives chase they run to convenient hiding places.

Indications are that vandals are in for some unpleasant surprises if they attempt to do more damage, though.

Five board members are alternating on special vigilante duty, patrolling the fair grounds to halt destruction.

"We intend to stop this situation once and for all by full prosecution in a court if we catch any of them," Crandall said, with a grim glare at a trail of broken glass on the ground.

High Winds, Rain Hit City Monday P.M.

The fringes of a tornado hit the West Columbus area Monday, knocking out power for more than half an hour in the area between W. Broad-st, Briggs, Demorest and Georgesville-rds.

Two utility poles were downed on Sullivant-av, blocking traffic for five hours.

Siding was torn off two houses and a camping trailer was turned over on Jackson-rd near Harrisburg-pk by the gale forces.

Burglars Smash Store Interior In Valleyview

Burglars entered the Valleyview Market, 2418 Valleyview-dr, Monday night and left a path of destruction in their wake.

Stealing only six cases of beer, the intruders proceeded to smash merchandise and equipment inside the store causing approximately $500 damage.

According to owner, Martin L. Burtschin, 161 Columbia-av, it was the 15th time the store has been broken into in the last 16 years.

CUBS FLY HIGH AT MEET

About 130 people enjoyed an afternoon of family fun as district Cub Scouts flew kites of all kinds and sizes in a contest Sunday, Apr. 29, in the field behind the offices of the South Western City Schools on Harrisburg-pk.

Scout equipment prizes were awarded in six categories by Everett Bacon, Southwest District executive. District commissioners and neighborhood commissioners were the judges. Kites had to fly for specific times to qualify for prizes.

The highest flying kite belonged to Keith Gleich of Pack 114. Shawn Fuller won second prize. He also is a member of Pack 114. Richard Autry of Pack 436 won third prize.

In the most unique kite category, Keith Gleich, 114, again scored tops. David Warren, 436, was second place winner. Richard Autry, 436, was judged third. Receiving special mention for design was Eric Oberlin, 412.

The largest diamond kite was a huge one about six feet long, flown by Bill Schleusner, 86. Shawn Fuller, 114, had the second largest, and Jim Patterson, 86 had the third largest kite.

The smallest diamond kite, about six inches long, was flown by Bill Schleusner, 86, with Shawn Fuller, 114, coming in second and Richard Autry, 436, third.

The biggest laugh of the contest was the darting flight of a tiny box kite about six inches long, belonging to Bill Schleusner, 86, judged the largest box kite since it was the only one entered.

The only Chinese-Japanese kite which qualified in this design class was the property of Keith Gleich, 114.

The kite-flying contest, because of this success, may become an annual affair.

UNITS HIT OPEN ROAD

Forty Cubs of Pack 214, St. Mary Magdalene Church, recently took a six-mile hike around Camp Lazarus, near Delaware. The get-acquainted hike took all afternoon.

Troops 214, 414, and Post 214 of the same church, recently hiked the Tomahawk Trail at Camp Ah-Wah-Na-Se, near Londonderry. There were 48 Scouts and six leaders on the interesting 20-mile trail.

In an inter-patrol scoutcraft skills competition, Indian Patrol of Troop 214 came in first. Second and third places were taken by Post 214 and Apache Patrol of Troop 414. At the campfire Larry Walker and Jim Kuemmel of Troop 214 were presented the Life and First Class badges, respectively. In Troop 414, Mike Schwartz, Danny Ansel, and Dennis Wolfe were awarded Tenderfoot badges. Merit badges were earned by Joe Barrow, Bob Kuemmel, Larry Walker and Norman Albert.

We Just Can't Sell 'Distressed' Merchandise (We've Never Tried)

Sun-faded, fire and/or water damaged or "distress purchased" carpets an rugs have never found their way into our place of business. Through the years, we have maintained a policy of providing good merchandise at reasonable prices . . . no gimmicks, no so-called "extras," no below-cost "pitches" . . . nothing to confuse the customer.

And, what's more, we obviously have never held a GOING-OUT-OF-BUSINESS sale. There must have been a reason — many of them — our valued customers, who have found us just good folks with which to do business — where they have confidence that they consistently get full value for every cent spent.

A MAN GETS HUNGRY being outdoors all day! Shown here are the only modern facilities available to the inhabitants of the cabin. Since a big appetite can be worked up by being outdoors, the kitchen has to be well equipped.

Kiwanians Reopen Cabin In Hills For Benefit Of Local Youth Groups

By Ed Churchill

"It's a place for people who love nature in the rough . . . no place for sissy!"

That is the terse dispcription of the Kiwanis Club Youth Foundation's cabin in Fairfield County as given by Al Elliott of Grove City, one of the builders of the rugged retreat.

Located about five miles south of Lancaster on Rt. 33, the rough-hewn structure sits on a steep hill overlooking two acres of wooded valley, that belong to the cabin owners.

Built in 1936, it was originally intended only for use by the West High School Scout troop. The Kiwanians have now bought it and have a goal of making it available to a number of Hilltop area youth groups.

Of the five men responsible for construction of the cabin, two besides Elliott, still live in the Columbus area. Ray Gaib, of Grove City, and George Heitz, a teacher at Westmoor Junior High and a resident of Upper Arlington.

In 1962, James Brown, formerly of Hilltop and now of Washington, D.S., recruited the help of scouts' fathers and leaders to add a large porch to the valley side of the cabin.

Brown organized the fund raising campaign and managed the building operations.

Picturesque Area

A small clear stream runs through the valley below the cabin. Some fish may be caught in the spring, but according to Elliott, the natives have it fished out by the time camping season arrives. The stream is not large enough for boating, but will support a small canoe.

A 290 ft. well was put down two weeks ago and it will take some old-timers to explain the mechanics of the pump on it to some of the younger generation. Water is drawn just like in "the good old days." With a hand pump and plenty of arm muscle.

The interior, though not lavish, is furnished with an electric stove and refrigerator, which is the bare minimum of modern convenience. It also has a large fireplace which burns logs up to three feet in length. The walls are rough oak-slab from a nearby sawmill and it does have electric lights to keep the fire hazards down.

Inhabitants of the haven also have access to surrounding land which is covered with large white oaks and dogwoods, just now starting to bloom. The area is situated in the middle of the "foothills of Hocking Valley" and is hemmed in by rolling hills and rugged cliffs.

Most visitors come in the summer, but some hardier souls have been known to spend a couple days in the abode in the dead of winter, when it is heated only by a fireplace.

At the present time, the Kiwanis Youth Foundation has not made a policy on the use of the cabin. Troop 45 will continue to make use of the hideaway and other groups wishing to use it should contact William Jones at the Hilltop Branch of the City National Bank.

OSU Campaign Ends Saturday

Volunteer alumni workers in the 24th Annual Columbus and Franklin County Ohio State Development Fund campaign will close the drive at a final report luncheon in the Ohio stadium at noon, Saturday, May 5.

Committees Fix Council Plans

Membership committee of the West Side Neighborhood Council, chaired by Claud Jones, met Apr. 26 to discuss ways of expanding the active participation in the affairs of the West Side Council. Some decisions were reached and are to be put into effect prior to the next open meeting of the council.

It will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 10 at Gladden Community House. The health committee of the council has charge of the meeting, stated Walt Cunningham, president.

THE VILLAGE SALE

Plan to meander down to the "Village Square" at 555 West Broad during this old-fashioned Village Sale. Here, you will be among old friends, so come in and set a spell. We have some fresh, spring merchandise just off the wagon from Cincinnati, Chicago and Detroit. Colors, the likes of which would do proud in a lady's spring bonnet. And, if you're conjuring on tradin' in your old buggy, you'll be real tickled with the low cash difference you have to come up with at Rodenfels—38 years of treatin' the villagers right.

New Art Gallery Exhibits Contemporary, Historical

Four new exhibits are on the roster for the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts during May.

Friday, May 4, the Columbus Art League will open its 63nd Annual Competitive Exhibition. For this year's showing, Dr. Raymond Stites, curator of education at the National Gallery, has chosen 151 paintings and 57 three-dimensional pieces. Prior to the public opening, a cocktail preview for gallery members and invited guests will be held Thursday evening, May. 3.

"The Photographs of Matthew Brady," commemorating the Centennial of the Civil War, will be on exhibit from May 4 to June 3. This significant pictorial report represents Brady at his best in the portrayal of important events of the War of the Rebellion.

Photographs by Robert Talbert, representing three themes, will be on display from May 10 until May 31.

A group of 18th and 19th century snuff boxes from the collection of Mrs. Hugh Baldwin will be on view at the gallery from May 14 to June 11.

BAEZ SINGS FRIDAY

Joan Baez, popular folk singer of old classics such as "Barbara Allen" and "We Are Crossing the River Jordan," will appear at Mershon Auditorium at 8 p.m., Friday, May 4. During intermission the May Week Queen's Court will be presented and the May Queen crowned.

'Street Scene' Brings N.Y. Here

When "Street Scene" opened in New York's Adelphi Theater Jan. 9, 1947, Brooks Atkinson wrote in the New York Times, "It is a musical play of magnificence and glory . . ."

The combined talents of Elmer Rice, playwright, and Kurt Weill, arranger, produced a musical drama of New York City's side streets whose "glory" has not dimmed with the years.

When Capital University brings "Street Scene" to Mees Hall May 19 and 20, the operetta should be as entertaining as pertinent as it was to audiences of the 40's.

For life as Elmer Rice saw it in uptown New York has not changed. The problem is still how to live a humane existence when oppressed by too-crowded apartments, stifling summer heat, noise of the streets, and arguments between front porch philosophers and upstairs gossips.

The play gives a generous "slice of life," vitalized by the music whose beat is distinctively Kurt Weill. His rhythms capture the excitement of the city sounds, as well as the lament of its inhabitants who are caught in a life that is too hard — reflected in Mrs. Maurant's "Somehow I Could Never Believe," and her daughter's "What Good Would the Moon Be."

There are happier moments expressed in such songs as the well-known "Moon-Faced and Starry-Eyed."

"Here is an operetta that is as hard as grand opera and as popular as Romberg," commented Dramatic Coach Patricia Gaines, part of the talented group staging the show. Miss Gaines is also dramatic director of the Lyric Theater which is sponsoring the production with Capital University music fraternities Phi Mu Alpha and Phi Beta. Under the musical direction of Professor Wilbur Crist, "Street Scene" will feature a cast of 30, many from the Lyric Theater group, and a symphony orchestra.

Rick Norris, choreographer, whose talents have been evidence in OSU and Playhouse-on-the Green productions, remarked about the inspiring Weill score, "If you can't arrange anything to that, you'd better take up singing."

Tickets may be obtained by writing Box 822, Capital University, Columbus 9.

CHOREOGRAPHER Rick Norris and partner Paulette Edwards run through their apache dance in preparation for Capital University's "Street Scene," coming to Mees Hall May 19 and 20.

Heroic Comedy Stars Cyrano

"Cyrano de Bergerac," acclaimed by critics as the most romantically eloquent play by a 19th century writer, will be staged by the Capital University Masquers as a part of the May Day weekend festivities May 4 and 5.

Under the direction of Allene Montgomery, the heroic comedy by Edmond Rostrand will be presented in Mees Hall auditorium on the campus. Curtain time is 8 p.m. on Friday and 7:30 Saturday.

Adena, Paint Creek Valley In Historical Society's Tour

Adena, the home and estate of Ohio's sixth governor, Thomas Worthington, and the Falls of Paint Creek will highlight the Franklin County Historical Society's first bus tour of a new season on Saturday, May 12. This will be the local society's 14th season of bus tours which cover Ohio and surrounding states.

The Historical Society has made arrangements with the curator at Adena for a demonstration of pioneer cooking; this is something that is done only upon special occasions.

In addition to the Adena visit, members of the tour party will visit the Falls of Paint Creek. In 1800 Chillicothe succeeded Cincinnati as capital of the Northwest Territory; two years previous, in 1798, Surveyor Nathaniel Massie, carrying his sextant and chains up the Scioto River, founded the town at Paint Creek's falls. This was one of 14 Ohio settlements to Massie's credit. Members of the party will have the opportunity to view the beautiful falls from a home location.

Another treat will be a stop at Seip prehistoric Indian earthworks which was explored by the Ohio Historical Society in 1926 and 1927. The mound is the great center of what is known as the "Seip Group" of mounds which were circled by a low embankment of earth enclosing almost 100 acres. Specimens found in the mound are preserved by the Ohio Historical Society at the Ohio State Museum.

Chartered busses will depart from the Greyhound terminal at 9 a.m. Saturday, May 12, and are scheduled to return to Columbus at 9:30 that night. Price of the tour is $8 to children and students, $10 for adults. These prices include bus fare, admission to Adena, and baked ham dinner at Anderson's Restaurant at Washington C.H. Members must take their box lunches, but the Historical Society will furnish coffee. Deadline for reservations is Thursday, May 10. Reservations may be made by calling CA. 1-7487, AX. 4-1027, or 237-6861.

At Ease . . . TIMELY TIPS . . . FOR PLEASURE

By BEVERLY FLEISHMAN

Currently playing at the Bexley and World Theaters is Ingmar Bergman's "Through a Glass Darkly"—his best film.

In it, Bergman states a theme he has used before—man's attempt to come to terms with life—with a new credibility.

Beverly

Until now the director's concern with the large themes of reason, faith, love, death, good and evil has been stated either symbol "The Magician" or trapped in another age, as in the medieval "The Virgin Spring."

In his latest masterpiece, Bergman's characters and their situation come down to earth: A father finds that love for his children gives meaning to his life; a young boy is freed from himself by a sexual experience, a psychotic girl realizes the world of reality and her inner world are irreconcilable, and her husband must accept the incurability of her illness.

Bergman has selected an emotionally explosive situation in the young wife's illness and its shocking effects on the other three characters. A mark of his art, he tempers their action with a cool, nordic control without ever losing feeling of impending disaster.

The director has called this film his most important work, his "Opus One" and the movie had been named the Best Foreign Film of the year.

If one can have any quarrel with "Darkly" it is not in its execution but in its morality. His good from evil statement is here just as surely as it was in the symbolic gush of water in "Virgin Spring." Here it is stated more directly and with a twist of irony (you must see the movie for that)—but evident nonetheless. Bergman explores important questions about man's search for meaning—but his answers remain too simple, not for art, but for life.

Smitten by spring fever? Don't give into ennui. This weekend in Columbus abounds in special, only-here-a-few-days events, "Cyrano" will entertain with his heroic antics at Capital University on Friday and Saturday; Joan Baez will be on stage with folk ballads at Mershon Auditorium Friday; and the Maramor features the Jonah Jones Quartet in a good show. You may remember them from the Club Gloria last year, where they played to packed houses two nights.

The weekend is a good time to visit the Made in Columbus Exhibition at Veterans Memorial, open daily from 2 to 10. A unique range of exhibits by local manufacturers. Admission is free.

If it's just too hot to stay inside, have you been to Gooding's Zoo Park yet? You'll have as much fun as the kids.

To put on the agenda for next week: "Question 7," a provocative and timely film on present day pressures against Christianity by the Communist state. The film is produced in cooperation with the Lutheran Church, but the question it poses is universal as well as sectarian; namely, how one can live with integrity when forced to adhere to political doctrines he doesn't believe in. The film is based on actual incidents, and on documents from the East Zone of Germany. An artistic and moving production, it opens May 9 at the Beechwood, Boulevard, Esquire, Livingston, and University Theaters.

Film Slated Sunday At Sullivant

The film of the "Quaker Miller" of Tecumseh, Mich., who planted a cubic inch of wheat in 1940 that fed thousands of starving people in Europe in 1942, will be shown at Sullivant Avenue Friends Church, 1442 Sullivant-av, Sunday, May 6, 7:30 p.m.

Public is invited.

Hayden planted one cubic inch of wheat on a tiny plot of ground furnished by Henry Ford. The 1941 harvest was cut by sickle, wheat heads cut off by scissors and the wheat threshed by lung power. A tithe of the crop was paid to his church, and 90 per cent replanted.

For the next five years the crop grew so fast that by 1946 the 2,666 acres needed required the land of 276 cooperating farmers of all faiths. The total crop was 72,150 bushels of wheat, worth nearly $150,000.

FULLY PREPARED
Should a spring shower come ... she is prepared with a rain coat. Books and study at school prepare her for a future vocation. However, she is not FULLY PREPARED for life unless she is also trained to walk with the Lord. Take your children to church where they can grow to be "... a vessel unto honour, sanctified ... and prepared unto every good work."

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE
The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Seven-Block Area Outlined For Project

Glen Beach, chairman of the West Side Neighborhood Council Health Committee, announced that his group is exploring the possibilities of working with the residents of a seven-square block area just north of Jet Stadium in effecting neighborhood improvements.

Beach stated that almost all of the residents had been contacted and a large majority expressed interest in meeting with the committee sometime this week to discuss what kinds of work might be possible.

The proposed, clean up and improvement project is similar to one conducted in 1961 among residents in a four-square block area north of Broad. The new area includes the streets of Nace, Holten, Princeton and Dana, bounded on the south by Mound-st and on the north by the B&O Railroad tracks.

Lawsons See Success In Sunday Plan

William Howlett, president of the Lawson Milk Co., said his firm's quarter-million dollar effort to bring Ohio's Sunday Closing Law "up to date" appears to have a good chance of getting on the ballot.

To get the amendment to the State Constitution on the ballot in November, 328,413 registered voters signatures in at least 44 counties must be obtained. Howlett estimates the company will have these by June, although the deadline is Aug. 8.

The amendment calls for a definite spelling out of necessities which may be sold on Sundays. Included are utilities, transportation and related fuels, news service, drugs and medical supplies, products for hygiene, milk and milk products and foods for human or animal consumption.

The Lawson stores, dealing in milk, bakery products and convenience groceries, do a fifth of their business on Sunday.

Howlett said 35 law enforcement agencies, including Reynoldsburg and Newark, have said they favor the new legislation which will clarify the Blue Law.

He said only about two per cent of his response has been from church groups.

Band Fund Drive Half Way To Goal

The sale of West High School band uniform certificates, devised to provide funds needed to equip the band with new uniforms, is now past the halfway mark according to James Hill, band director.

Anyone wishing to purchase the $5 certificates, redeemable in five years, may call the school office. Bonds will be mailed.

Hilltoppers will also have an opportunity to buy the bonds Saturday, May 12, during the day-long canvass of the area by the school's instrumental students and Weakets.

Terry Walsh, sophomore at West and trombone player in the band, purchased the first 20 certificates with $100 from her personal savings.

Explained by Hill as a "no-risk investment by Hilltoppers, the certificates are guaranteed, with returns promised in five years from the date of issue. They amount to a secured loan to the department."

Craig Wright Says We Must Reverse Trend To Increased Spending

I'm seeking a place in the Ohio Legislature because I am genuinely concerned about Ohio's financial plight, the educational crisis facing our local and university officials, and the general maladministration of Governor DiSalle.

Craig Wright

Ohio is in a position like that of Michigan a few years ago and unless steps are taken immediately we are faced with state insolvency.

Under the DiSalle administration we have operated under a policy of spending far more than the state has taken in.

I promise, if nominated and elected to represent you and all citizens in Franklin County, to do all I can to:

+ Reverse the trend of increased taxation on business.
+ Get more mileage from the tax dollar by trimming State government services to the funds available.
+ Meet the challenge posed by Ohio's educational Crises, retaining control and financial responsibility at the State and local level.
+ Bring to you and to the House of Representatives a three-generation family tradition of thrift, developed under the American System of enterprise and opportunity.

My fourth pledge will come naturally. The other three will take work.

I ask you to give me this opportunity; but in any event, vote in the May 8th Republican Primary.

Sincerely yours,
Craig Wright

FOR a common community cause...

An Ounce Now—or a Pound Later?

Throughout its Sesquicentennial history of growth and progress, our community has had its share of problems. But on each occasion, an informed and understanding citizenry pitched in to work out a solution.

Today another common cause confronts all Columbus and Franklin County residents. The needy of our community face a crisis brought on by limitations placed on vital health, medical and child care services. Blame this on a curtailed public assistance program.

We can't play "ostrich" and just hope it will go away if it's ignored. So the County Commissioners and dedicated, but conservative, business, industrial, labor, church and civic leaders decided to take action.

They agreed to submit a 1-mill levy to voters on Tuesday, May 8, and to work for its passage. This levy will provide a MINIMUM program designed to:

1 Supply all emergency medical care for the needy.

3 Reduce requirements for future funds.

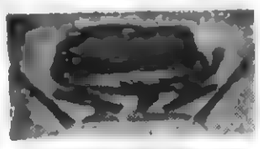
When this is approved, the Commissioners have promised, in writing, to allocate: —

.7 of the mill, or approximately $1,302,000 for health and medical care. (State matching funds will add another $800,000.)

.3 of the mill, or approximately $558,000 for child care services.

It's now up to each of us to vote FOR the 1-mill levy. The time has come to provide that important OUNCE of health, medical and child care Now and make the pound of more costly attention unnecessary LATER!



Passage of this levy will cost the average home owner 10¢ a week. The average assessed value of a single-family residence in Franklin County is $5,212 on a house with a market value of $14,358.

We urge you, your family and your friends to vote FOR the 1-mill levy, which is in the upper left hand corner of the voting machine.

On Apr. 28 and 29 the El Rancho Gun Club held its first anniversary shoot for trapshooters.

Under the warm but windy skies the scores were very good. Some 135 shooters from all all over the state attended this shoot. The program on Saturday was 200 16-yard targets and a 50 target international contest.

One of the best trapshooters in the United States, John Sternberger of Trotwood, O., had the best score on the 16-yard, 198 out of the 200 targets.

Roy Finnell of Toledo was top on the international, with 48 out of 50. The 16-yard was shot by class, the class winners being: A class, J. Sternberger; B, Vinton Porterfield, Waldo; C, Walt Webb, Hilliard; D, Dr. Elmer Groff of Columbus; E, Don Fritch, Columbus.

On Sunday, shooting was 100-target handicap and 50 pairs of doubles. Dale McCloskey of Greenfield and Dr. Paul Stauffer of Trotwood were tops with 94's. Dr. Stauffer won the handicap trophy in a 25 target shoot off with 25 straight. The doubles event was Dwight Williams of Kingston, with 84 of 50 pair. The trophy to the High Lady Shooter went to Ida Fyffe of West Jefferson. The trophy to High Overall Shooter went to Vinton Porterfield.

A Sports . . AUBLEGRAPH

BY JOHN AUBLE, JR.
Hartley Sports Editor

They Start Running Friday At Beulah; Tired Of Stalling

Better go down to the Beulah Park stable, Mabel, the horses there are tired of the same old "stall."

The stalling will end May 4 as the top jockeys and trainers of other seasons swing into action on the Grove City track, beginning May 4 and running through May 26.

Beulah will stage nine races daily, with first post on weekdays at 2:30 p.m. and on Saturdays, 2:15 p.m. There will be the usual daily double on the first and second races.

The weatherman has already given the Park its daily double winner and the spring-like days enabled the horsemen to have their charges fit for the opening.

Racing Secretary Charles W. Smith reports big interest in the third running of the Robert J. Dienst Memorial Handicap, which is scheduled for Saturday, May 19.

This race is at a mile and a sixteenth and carries a purse of 6000 bucks—and, that, ain't hay.

The Beulah front office hasn't forgotten the females either. They'll have their day Tuesday when they'll be admitted free to the grandstand area.

It reminds me of a few years ago when they had a special Ladies Day at Yankee Stadium in New York. To every woman who passed through the gate they gave a bottle of champagne.

In the third inning, the bags were loaded.

I digressed.

A special event is scheduled for Tuesday, May 24, when Eddie Arcaro, famous jockey now retired, will be an honored guest. He'll have a race named for him and will make a presentation to the winning owner.

Local Fans Get In Act . . .

The National League pennant-winning Cincinnati Reds are giving Columbus area fans a chance to get into the act.

A release from the Reds front office this week says that they would like fans in this area to send in either a postcard or a letter stating whether or not they like the new Crosley Field starting time of 7:35 p.m. for nigh games.

It's not a contest . . . they just want to hear from the folks in this area and get a good idea of what the fans here like.

All correspondence should be mailed to:

Cincinnati Reds, 415 Union Central Building, Cincinnati, O.

Incidentally, three of the Reds' night games will be started at an earlier time. The three, all single games, are: Thursday, June 14, San Francisco, 7 p.m.; Thursday, July 19, Los Angeles, 6 p.m., and Monday, Aug. 20, Los Angeles, 7 p.m.

Shoe-String Affair . . .

Quiet, unassuming Bob Densham is making quite a name for himself in the high school track secene. The Whitehall High School boy delivered a laugh last week, following the Bellaire Relays.

Densham broke the high jump record at Bellaire and he was told how excited his coach, Pat McMillin, was at the lad's athletic effort.

"McMillin was running and jumping all over the place," Densham was told, 'Boy, was he excited."

"Yeah, he must've been excited," Densham replied. "I told him I broke my shoelace and he never got me a new one."

Even with the broken shoelace, however, the Ram wham retired the old high jump mark with a 6-foot, 5⅜-inch mark.

Densham said this week that he's planning on enrolling at the University of Michigan following his stay at Whitehall.

HIGH SCHOOL WRAP-UP

Hilltop Relays In Sports Scene Lead

Okay, Mr. Sports Fan.

This is your week as area high schools swing into one of their most active periods of spring sports this year.

Topping the list is the big Hilltop Relays. This annual event is slated for Friday night. It used to be a Tuesday night wing-ding, but because of the request to curtail mid-week night sports, the event was moved.

In all, six local schools will show off during the one-day affair, including Central, Linden, South, North, East and host West.

All field events will start promptly at 7 p.m., according to West Track Coach R. C. Glass, with track events beginning at 7:30 p.m.

West has never won the meet in its 16-year history but was a very close runner-up to South last year and came in second several other times.

All awards will be made by Relay queens and a 50-cent admission fee will be charged at the gate.

This action is in addition to regular league activity in baseball and golf, plus the dual track competition in the area. Also, both divisions of the Central District baseball tournament get underway and there are five other big relay events slated.

The 41-team Class AA baseball event got underway Tuesday with nine games on the schedule and continues on Thursday with 16 more contests. The teams are battling for two places in the regional.

Here's the schedule for Thursday tourney play:

Westerville (6-5) at Washington C. H. (1-1-1); Gahanna (1-4) at Linden-Marion-Franklin winner.

East (9-7) at Lakewood (6-1); Marysville (9-5) at Central-Hilliard winner; Hilliard-Delaware Hayes winner at Bexley (3-4).

Groveport (3-3) at Hamilton Township (4-4); Olentangy (4-3) at West (3-5); North (3-5) at London-Pleasant View winner.

Class A

Pairings for the Class A baseball tournament were made Monday at Williard's with play slated to start Thursday and continue on May 7, 9 and 11.

Relays

First of the week's relays is the 10th annual Mifflin affair on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The entries include Cardington, Gahanna, Marysville, Mifflin, Westerville and Whitehall.

Whitehall, the defending champion, has won the title three times, while Gahanna has won it four times and Marion-Franklin twice.

On the slate for Friday is the Marion Relay event, which includes Eastmoor and Upper Arlington. Prelims are set for 3:30 p.m., field events at 5 and running events at 7:15. Some 300 participants are expected to vie for honors.

Also on Friday is the fourth annual Hilliard Invitational meet at 6:30 p.m.

High Note

Lee Guzzo was named Aquinas' athlete of the year and received the Alumni Association's award at its annual meeting last Wednesday at the Southern.

Completes AF Course

Airman Second Class E. Platt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Platt, 1735 Hopkins-av, is being assigned to a strategic defense unit following his graduation from the Air Force technical training course for nuclear weapons specialists here.

OLD SHOE ROUND-UP
Any old shoes today? Get your cast-off, worn shoes ready, because some eager-beaver urchin with prizes on his mind, will be knockin' on your door in the next couple of weeks. You're right, we're having our every other year OLD ROUND-UP.

Remember two years ago, we collected a mountain of old shoes. 50 feet around and too high to see over. Actually we had more than 10,000 pairs to give to Goodwill Industries. This way your old shoes go to help handicapped people, we clear old shoes out of closets and youngsters get prizes for bringing them in.

We give a point ticket for every pair of worn shoes, three tickets for buying new shoes and five tickets for buying KEDS. First prize is a swell bicycle and the other nice prizes will be on display in our windows. So, get your worn, cast-off shoes out and come past the shoe store and see the OLD SHOE ROUND-UP pile up.

Lawyers Have Their Day

Ohio Supreme Court Judge James Bell of London, speaking at Hilltop Kiwanis Club this past week, pointed out that some people think every day is lawyer's day but that actually May 1 is designated as "Law Day USA."

Civic groups all over the country have this past week paid tribute to the law profession and it is fitting that such a day should be observed. There is a need for the general public to reaffirm their belief in the law and an especial need today to dramatize the contest now going on between freedom and law in this country and Communism abroad.

Judge Bell, in a lighter vein, pointed out that many jokes pertain to attorneys such as the one about the tombstone reading "Here Lies An Attorney and an Honest Man." Whereupon the reader observed, "Wonder why they buried two in the same grave." Judge Bell points to this as an instance of "one apple in a barrel" which brings down disfavor upon a profession.

The Y In Action

Recent stories and photos carried the news of the ground breaking for the two new branch YMCAs of the East Side and the South Side. This is the third major building program as a result of the YM-YW Development Fund drive.

It is interesting to note that YMCA laymen and authorities are keeping faith wiht the public in the construction of these new facilities. Out on the Hilltop a fine, new Hilltop YMCA is seeing more and more service daily. This time of the year it is well worth driving out to see the activity shortly before sundown as youngster congregate on the ball diamonds.

Individuals, business people and wealthy families can do well to remember the YMCA when it comes time to develop the contents of a will. It is well to remember that you still "can't take it with you" and we know of no

BUSINESSMEN BOOST LIONS

Four area businessmen were expected to pay $100 each for "first editions" at the pre-sale auction of the 12th annual "Hilltop Lions Tale" today. This four-way tie for high-bid honors was to set the pace for the spirited chanting of professional Auctioneer "Chet" Guffey at the noon luncheon gathering at Monaco's Restaurant.

By pre-arrangement, the top bidders were Ed Tonti, president of the Rosary Development Company; Jerry Spears Sr., representing the Jerry Spears Funeral Home; Pat Wood, owner of the Pat Wood Tire and Supply Co., and Bill Saxton, owner of the Saxton Real Estate Company.

More than 100 professional and business people, civic leaders and their host Lions, were scheduled to take part in the auction luncheon.

Members of the hard-working auction committee of the Hilltop Lions Club included Jack Imler, chairman; Bob Dennis, co-chairman, and Dave Haueisen, Robert Howison, Art Hall and Bert Korte.

MRS. KENNETH ADAMS, selected by Hilltop Kiwanis Club as "Mother Of The Year," with her husband and five small children, will be guests of honor at the Kiwanians' luncheon meeting Thursday at Monaco's Restaurant. "Lots of love, recognizing and understanding their differences, an active interest in their affairs," is Mrs. Adams' formula for success as a mother.

Police, Health Officials To Talk At Council Meets

Housing codes, delinquency, neighborhood improvement — three topics of vital importance here will be discussed at two community "town-hall" sessions this week. Both will be held Thursday evening.

Capt. Philip W. Momburg of the Police Juvenile and Social Welfare Bureau will speak before the Hilltop Community Council at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 10. He will discuss "The Problems of Juvenile Delinquency in the Hilltop Area."

The public is invited. Council meets at the Hilltop Branch YMCA, Valleyview-dr.

Executive committee of the council will meet an hour earlier.

Russell Needham, health educator at the Columbus Health Department for 10 years, will speak on health problems facing Columbus and the West Side at an open meeting of the West Side Neighborhood Council at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 10, in Gladden Community House, Hawkes and Town-sts.

Following a short business session, Walt Cunningham, council president, will turn the meeting over to Glen Beach, chairman of the health committee, who will introduce Needham.

After Needham's talk, there will be a question and answer session. All West Siders are being urged to attend and hear what Columbus health codes are and how they are enforced, as well as a description of the health department's operations.

Area Meetings Slated
Needham To Speak

In other action this week, the health committee of the West Side Neighborhood Council has set the date of May 15 to meet with the Franklinton Neighborhood Improvement Committee, representatives from the four-square-block area that served as a demonstration cleanup project in 1962. The meeting, requested by the neighborhood committee, is for the purpose of pursuing further matters in cleanup of the area not completed last year. The meeting will be at Gladden Community House at 7:30 p.m.

Also, Wednesday, May 16, has been set by the health committee to meet with residents in the five-square-block area just north of Jet Stadium behind Mound-st. This meeting will be to discuss with the 83 families in that area, bounded by Nace on the east, the B&O Railroad tracks on the north and west, and Mound-st on the south, what they would like to see in the way of cleanup improvements and how these can be accomplished.

Kiwanians Will Honor Their 'Mother of Year'

By Betty Daff

One young mother's successful solution to a difficult problem has earned for Mrs. Kenneth Adams, 394 S. Warren-av, the admiration of many, and the distinction of "Hilltop Mother Of The Year."

Mrs. Adams was selected for the honor by Hilltop Kiwanis Club for having extended her interest and influence in her five small children beyond the confines of home, and into school, church and civic affairs.

"I decided early," Mrs. Adams confided, "that motherhood doesn't necessarily come naturally—you have to work at being a good one.

"And it just doesn't start and end in the home. An active part in the school PTA and the church and, as children grow, into Scouting and their other activities, is necessary and important."

And the rewards? "Most satisfying!"

The OSU graduate with a degree in business administration has found, "Being a mother is the most exciting, interesting career a woman could find."

Her children are Marianne, 13, a student at West Junior High; Kim, 11; Kyle, eight and Uzbell, seven, all at John Burroughs, and Kevin, five, still at home.

She has shared her two oldest daughters' interest in Scouting and is chairman of 12 Girl Scout troops. And since Kevin has reached the age of Cub Scouting, she is Den Mother of Pack 43 of Glenwood Methodist Church.

Mrs. Adams also serves as chairman of the Christian Social Relations Committee at Glenwood, concerned with combining church and civic affairs, and encouraging the practice of Christian ethics in everyday living.

As director of Vacation Bible School at Glenwood, she is now engaged in the difficult business of organizing the program, first to be held at the new church.

The tedium of the years when children were very small, so trying to all young mothers, was relieved for Mrs. Adams by books.

"I read a great deal as an escape into the adult world. Older women, whose children are grown," she continued thoughtfully, "could be of such service. An occasional afternoon away from home is so important to young mothers."

Her entire, proud family will be present Thursday noon when she is honored by the Hilltop Kiwanians.

WARD CHAIRMEN STAY

Levy Defeated 2 to 1; Voters Like Drake, Dennis, Meeks

Thousands of Franklin Countians who went to the primary polls Tuesday turned a deaf ear to the Health, Medical and Child Care Levy, followed a state trend in backing Governor DiSalle against Attorney General, Mark McElroy, and created several interesting counts for lesser offices.

It was almost a two-to-one defeat for the levy. Many who voted other slots in the ballot completely ignored the levy and voted neither "for" nor "against." Unofficial final count was 23,755 for, 43,173 against.

Former City Clerk Russell Drake, 105 N. Chase-av, pulled away from New Rome's D. J. Kunz in the Democratic contest for the county commissioner candidacy. Drake polled 13,104 to Kunz's 11,750 votes.

Insurgent Democrats won 18 of their needed 25 seats in their hopes to unseat County Democratic Chairman Walter Beer from control. The Democrats for Precinct Reorganization, who set up office at 722 Sullivant-av, failed to make a dent in local ward politics, however. Evelyn J. O'Linn failed to take Ninth Ward chairmanship from Frank Schneider; in Ward 10, Charles R. Page was unsuccessful against Harry M. Burns and in Ward 21 Daniel D. Crites lost to incumbent John W. Brown.

Charles Meeks, 66 Clark-pl, and Hilliard resident, John Dennis, who practices law on the Hilltop, remained on the Democratic ticket for state representative.

Judge Robert M. Draper, 104 S. Westmoor-av, who was unopposed Democrat for re-election to the Court of Common Pleas (Jan. 1 term) received 26,919 votes.

St. John Lutheran Buys Property

St. John Lutheran Church has purchased the property adjacent to the church at W. Broad-st and Hague-av.

The property was owned by C. C. Karnes, New Rome, and was sold for $27,500.

The building is occupied by Felton Dry Cleaners, Mary Lou Beauty Salon, and one of the apartments on the second floor is rented.

No immediate changes will be made, according to the church board.

300 Scouts To Camp On Rt. 40

A showcase of Scouting will be open to the public this coming weekend as about 300 boys conduct a camporee along Route 40, just west of the city.

The outing has been named the Old Trail Camporee in honor of the historic old National Road and its significance to the Columbus Sesquicentennial.

Scouts and Explorers from all all over Southwestern Franklin County will set up camp Friday evening, May 11. Starting at 9 a.m. Saturday and continuing through Sunday afternoon, a number of demonstrations, contests and exhibits (including one from the State Department of Conservation) will be open to the public.

At 7 a.m. Sunday the boys will hold a Mothers Day breakfast and at 8 p.m. an interdenominational Protestant worship service will be held at Miles Drive-In Theatre nearby. Rev. Calvin Didier will speak and the Junior Choir of Burgess Avenue EUB Church will sing.

Camporee parking will be available at Westinghouse parking lot.

Board Of Trade Will Fry Steak

West Side Board of Trade will hold a steak fry Wednesday, May 16 at Indian Village Camp, west bank of the Scioto River at Griggs Dam. The 7 p.m. outing will take the place of the regular May meeting, said Gene Rosch, secretary.

Members and their wives are invited.

Lots Rezoned Office-Resident

City Council this week rezoned two parcels of land on the south side of Sullivant-av, between Athens and Brinker-avs, for apartment-office buildings. The sites were formerly zoned apartment-residential.

Injuries, Deaths Hit West Side

Tragedy was heaped upon tragedy in the West Side this past week as two local boys drowned in the Scioto, two women were killed in separate auto crashes and several local residents were injured in three collisions.

Mrs. Helen Stewart, 38, of 52 S. Southampton-av was killed when her compact car and another were struck by a car which jumped a divider in the Mound-Sandusky Interchange, Monday evening. Mrs. Stewart was driving alone. Injured in the second car were Frederick Dowler and his wife Martha of 309 Martha-av and Mrs. Catherine E. Smith of 1493½ Sullivant-av. Driver of the runaway car, Lawrence A. Turner, and a passenger, James Taylor, both of Urbancrest, were treated at Mt. Carmel Hospital and released.

Last Wednesday night Mrs.

SIX PERISH IN WEEKEND TRAFFIC

Funeral Rites Are Conducted For Cunninghams, Davidsons

The hardest hit area in the state with weekend traffic fatalities was the six-mile radius between Valleyview and Hilliard in western Franklin County.

Six, or one fourth of the 23 who died in Ohio last weekend were from that area.

HAROLD CUNNINGHAM

CLEWELL CUNNINGHAM

A man who lived for the raceway died on the highway early Sunday. Horse fanciers Harold Floyd Cunningham, his wife, Clewell, and close friends Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Davidson lost their lives in a head-on auto crash in Clark County and were buried in Sunset Cemetery, Wednesday.

The Cunninghams resided at 3088 Valleyview-dr and operated the Valleyview Trailer Court. Until recently they owned the land now occupied by the Valleyview Community Center. Davidson and his wife, Cecile, were residents of 4744 Fisher-rd. All were riding in the Davidson car en route home from harness races at Lebanon when an oncoming auto apparently crossed the center line into their path on Route 42, near the Clark-Greene County line.

Driver of the other car, Starling Donohew, 20, of Harrison, is in critical condition in Springfield City Hospital.

Soon after the 1:45 a.m. crash, Cunningham's son Ben stopped briefly at the crash scene, then drove on, not knowing his father had been a victim. Both had [redacted] horses in the Lebanon races the night before. Together they operated a 160-acre horse farm, Cunnybrook, near Marysville. Ben, who lives at the farm, was notified of the tragedy by the State Highway Patrol when he arrived home.

Mr. Cunningham, 63, is also survived by a daughter, Mrs.

Ramey is survived by his wife, Mary and five children, Jerry Lee, 11, Kathy, 9, Sherry Lynn, 8, Betty Ann, 7, and Terry Dale, 5. Funeral arrangements for both families were handled by the Jerry Spears Hilliard Chapel.

The accident occurred at a flasher-guarded crossing, and, according to a witness, the flashers were working to warn of the oncoming train. The victims were in a small foreign car.

Perry was buried in Union Ridge Cemetery, Albany, and Ramey in Stockdale Cemetery, Waverly.

Columbus Automobile Club Honors The Safety Patrol

Columbus Automobile Club is honoring 6,000 boys and girls of 225 schools May 7-12, as School Patrol Week observance throughout the nation is highlighted by the awarding of pins and certificates.

Parties are being arranged in schools of the Columbus AAA Club territory for the students who are members of local school patrols.

According to general manager Russell H. Campbell, of the Columbus club, the patrols, with cooperation of schools, AAA clubs, and police departments, have been in existance 34 years.

They are credited with bringing a reduction of one-half in the traffic death rates for children 5 to 14 years old when deaths for other age groups almost doubled.

Brothers Admit Store Burglary

A 16-year-old youth has admitted that he and his older brother broke into and smashed the Valleyview Market last week because the owner refused to sell them cigarettes two years ago.

An Elliott-av youth confessed to authorities that he and his brother did some $500 damage, though his brother, of the same address, entered a plea of innocent in Common Pleas Court and is being held under $5,000 bond.

The older brother implicated the younger when he was picked up for questioning on another burglary case and breaking windows in three other stores.

The case was continued until May 18, pending further investigation.

Suburban Newspapers Are On The Move

The move to suburbia continues rapidly, and with it the field of suburban newspapering is growing rapidly too, points out the May 7 issue of Wall Street Journal.

In 1950, 36.8 million persons lived in suburban areas; by 1960 the figures had grown to 54.4 million, says the Journal. This is a gain of 47.8 per [illegible].

medical research laboratories in Edgewood, Md., this summer, to study and observe experimental work in nerve gas.

Feeling equally rewarded for their assistance were Hilltop veterinarians, Dr. Strauss and Dr. Hutchison, and his teacher, Clarence Bower, advanced biology instructor at West.

The atmosphere for learning provided by Bower, and his encouragement and insistance in developing the project, are credited by Brian for his success.

As part of the project, Brian devised an operational procedure of the surgical placement of a plastic window exposing the right hemisphere of a guinea pig's brain for the purpose of performing brain-wave tests.

The conclusions, many of them applicable to humans, are valuable information on the effect of tranquilizers to the animal's nerves.

Brian was one of two Central Ohio winners at the science fair held at Otterbein in March.

Sponsored by Battelle Memorial Institute and Otterbein, and accompanied by Arthur Schultz of Otterbein, Brian traveled to Seattle for the International Science Fair May 2 and 3.

Thirty first-place prizes were awarded to the 387 young people from throughout the world.

In addition to touring the fair, Brian had the privilege of meeting and talking with Dr. Carlisle, president of the American Cancer Society, and the presidents of the American Medical, American Dental, American Veterinarian, and American Pharmaceutical Associations.

Brian, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Loran E. Highfill, 633 Belvidere-av, has been accepted into St. Joseph's Seminary, Rensselaer, Ind., to begin ten years of training as a medical missionary with the Precious Blood Fathers. The order works exclusively in South America.

Two other West High science students who distinguished themselves and their school with excellence in science projects are Larry Negulesco and Edward Wilson.

Their projects were entered in the State Science Fair, sponsored by the Ohio Academy of Science and held in Toledo last Friday.

Larry's project, also concerned with the effect of tranquilizers on the guinea pig's behavior, stressed muscular reactions and earned a rating of "superior."

Edward's project in the electronic field earned an "excellent" rating.

Says Any Pact With Commies Doomed

Only America, of the nations of the world, has the "forces" capable of achieving victory over Communism. Only Americans, thoroughly informed and prepared, present any real and dynamic threat to the success of "Marxist materialism" and its attendant assorted fraudulent and murderous schemes.

Our country is under attack every hour of the day, every day in the year. Pressures are becoming increasingly critical in vital areas of our democratic system.

Americans who minimize the threat to our culture and to our free institutions do not understand the nature of those whose purpose it is to overcome us. We are the intended victims of a powerful, resourceful, and ruthless group of assassins whose devotion to perfidy is attested by history.

No sensible man would stake his life or his fortune on the word of a self-confessed liar. No member or representative of our government should presume to enter into any treaty or covenant with another nation whose leaders disclaim any intention of honoring such documents. Communist leaders recognize the word "truth" as a word "devoid of any significance in human relationships."

Our greatest heritage is freedom; our national aspirations, as expressed in our Constitution and in our Bill of Rights most urgently demand vigilance and strength of mind and hand. A choice is open to us now; which choice may be closed to us should fear or indecision cause undue delay or prolong our inaction.

Campaign Succeeds

On behalf of the staff of the Franklin County Society for Crippled Children, I would like to express our sincere appreciation for your outstanding assistance and cooperation during our 1962 Easter Seal campaign.

Through the pages of all the Hartley newspapers we were able to tell the story of crippled children and their needs. You went out of your way to give our campaign good coverage. So, thanks to you and thousands of persons who contributed generously to our cause, we matched last year's total amount and hope, by the end of the year to exceed that 1961 figure by five per cent.

We are also grateful to the many volunteers who marched in the Easter Seal parade, sold lilies, or did other volunteer work.

You answered with your dollars, your time and your newspaper space.

Mrs. Ralph G. Bieber, publicity.

Suspects ACLU Aim

President Fawcett of The Ohio State University is to be commended for his action taken in the refusal to let the traveling talk squad from the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee hold their scheduled meeting on the campus grounds.

Richard Davies, president of the university's Conservative Club, said the men in question were cited by the Committee On Un-American Activities as belonging to subversive organizations.

The local chairman for the American Civil Liberties Union, who is an assistant professor of English at OSU, is protesting the action taken by President Fawcett. He contends it is not in accord with the principles of academic freedom or of free speech as guaranteed by the U. S. Constitution.

The ACLU has not only been cited by HUAC as subversive, but also by a former Communist Party member, Mr. Kenneth Goff. In his book "Strange Fire" Mr. Goff names just about all communist front organizations. Those fronts will pretend to stand for about any good worthy cause and deceive most of the good Americans who join them. The fronts want the names of trust-worthy Americans who are influential in their communities and respective lines of work. This makes the front look very respectable so they can carry on their subversive work undetected. They hide behind the very liberties they enjoy to further the Lenin-Marxist atheistic doctrine of hate and enslavement of the free world. We hope the local chairman is innocent of the intent of the ACLU.

If these front organizations are really on the up and up, as they claim, why do they howl so long and loud about investigation into their groups? They want to destroy the HUAC so they can do their dirty work of subverting the minds of our youth in our colleges and universities with great freedom and without detection. A communist, when caught, will plead the Fifth Amendment every time and never admit he is a party member as it would destroy his usefulness and influence for the party.

For a Free America.
Robert T. Barrett

Film Recommended

On May 9 through 15 the motion picture "Question 7" will come to Columbus. It will play in five theatres simultaneously—the Esquire, Boulevard, Livingston, Beechwold and University.

This great movie has been produced for the Lutheran Church by Louis de Rochemont and shows the awful oppression placed upon the church by the East German Communist Government. It is a graphic story based upon documentation of events.

The reason I would like to call this to your attention in the column of your "Letters to the Editor" is to inform the community of a great motion picture that has appeal for the whole family and is being brought by the churches of the community through the cooperation of the Lutheran Churches and the Columbus Area Council of Churches.

Some people have asked what our churches are doing to fight communism. Here is one answer. While the churches and their ministry to the nation are bulwarks against tyranny, this picture is a distinct contribution in giving people a clear understanding of how communism operates against a vital religion.

I know that I speak for all of the churches when I say it is our conviction that every citizen should see this outstanding picture which has been so highly rated and decorated by many organizations and film critics. I write this letter with the knowledge of the Directors of the Columbus Area Council of Churches.

G. Weir Hartman,
Executive Director
CAC of C

We recommend that you and your family see the motion picture "Question 7" which opens on Wednesday, May 9 for one week.

The story is that of a 15-year-old boy torn between the demands of the Communist tyranny and his own faith in God; between his socialist school teacher and his pastor father, between ambition and faith, between what is untruth and what is truth.

Help us support a worthwhile movie.

Pranks Prove Costly

I read with considerable interest the letter you published from "A Motorist," in your Apr. 11 edition concerning the problems West High students present motorists on their way to and from school.

The answer published this past week from West's principal, David P. Randall, was also read with care and discussed in my home.

As a homeowner, residing on Palmetto-st along the path commonly taken by students on their way to West and home, I heartily agree with "A Motorist," and am encouraged by Mr. Randall's reply. It is our hope, and that of our neighbors, that the school will at long last take more interest in the conduct of its students on their way home from school.

I honestly believe that students share with their faculty a pride in their school and in its reputation in the community. The student body as a whole may be entirely unaware of the damage a few are doing to that reputation.

For years we have protested such malicious "pranks" as damage to cars and homes by young people, particularly when returning home from athletic events at school, and the really serious traffic hazards those students driving as well as those on foot, cause.

A friend, living on Powell-av, recently had his comprehensive insurance coverage dropped for the reason of "high incidence of minor malicious damage."

If even insurance companies are aware of the situation, shouldn't the student body and the faculty become concerned?

This letter was written hesitantly, with no thought of asking schools to assume responsibility that should rightly belong in the home, but rather to add emphasis to the comments of "A Motorist." Nor do I suggest how far jurisdiction of a school should extend out of the classroom.

But surely the rights of motorists, pedestrians and residents rate some consideration, by someone in authority. Simple policing by faculty members, in their cars along the streets in question, would be most revealing.

"Concerned"

A Good Front Only

Would like an answer to this question:

Why do people here in Bexley live in a beautiful, well kept home, have flowers, shrubs and lawns that are a credit to the neighborhood and yet have backyards that look like a slum district?

Rusted rubbish cans overflowing. Empty cans and paper loose in the yard.

This condition not only exists on our street of moderate priced homes, but even in the area of the governor's home.

With a little thought and planning this could be corrected.

Rubbish cans can, and should, be placed where they are not an eyesore to you and your neighbors—behind a shrub or fence—and yet accessible to the collectors.

I think a good slogan would be—"Take a good look at your backyard from your neighbor's back door."

"A Long Suffering Resident."

Heart-Felt Thanks

The Heart Association is grateful for the support your newspaper gave to the Heart Fund during the 1962 drive.

As you know, the Association relies on the contributions of the public to carry forward the fight against the heart and blood vessel diseases—diseases which take the lives of five Ohioans every 53 minutes.

Public awareness of the magnitude of the problem and of the medical advances which have been made in recent years to combat this Number One health enemy is essential to the success of the drive.

We deeply appreciate the help of the volunteers who freely gave their time and energy to carry on the drive and of all those who demonstrated their confidence in the Association through their contributions.

People Who Care Are Part Of Cure For Mentally Ill

We like the slogan the people who are interested in mental health activity are using this year. "People Who Care Are Part of the Cure—for the Mentally Ill."

As time goes on it is demonstrated by the statistics as well as substantiated by professionals that a large and important part of the total therapy is the presence and activity of citizen volunteers in intra and extra mental health facility programs.

For many years there has been in existence an organization of citizens, The Ohio Mental Health Association, Inc., working through various community groups and have developed, as part of their over-all program, what are widely known as volunteer service programs. This facet of their work ranges from very simple activities such as gathering and delivering Christmas gifts for patients, Easter baskets, visiting specific forgotten patients, to what has now become a broader program demanding more training and background to assist the professional staff of the hospitals and the employees there. The objectives are intended to bring the patient to a speedier recovery and help him develop skills and other human assets to once again become a useful citizen when he returns to his community.

In one state hospital these patient programs now include such things as hat making courses for women, home purchasing and financing, personal finance courses, motor assembling, as well as the long standing, but intensified music and art programs. Volunteers, as leaders and participants, take much part in these things, under professional direction. There is also similar activity for the "person who cares' after the patient returns home. These persons carry on programs orienting the public to acceptance of the former patient.

Dr. Robert A. Haines, Director of the Ohio Department of Mental Hygiene and Correction, in a speech recently, said "The many services volunteers play in a mental hospital play a great part in the total treatment program."

Thus we see added ever greater emphasis of this person-to-person relationship, encouraged by the citizens mental health movement supplementing more research for treatment and prevention, modern drug therapy, enlightened legislation, and administration, additional and modern facilities.

Such accomplishment and promise for more progress has come about in direct relationship to the increase of citizen interest - - the people who care. We salute them and are proud they are part of our city, state, and nation.

My God shall supply every need of yours. —(Phil. 4:19)

Don't we all need a feeling of greater confidence As we open our minds to the mind of God and let His creative ideas flow through us, we gain new understanding—and our confidence in ourselves as an expression of God increases.

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

Trading Stamps From The Consumers View

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Vegetables — Homegrown asparagus, potatoes, greenhouse tomatoes, carrots, radishes, cooking greens.

Fruits — Valencia oranges, strawberries, bananas, homegrown rhubarb.

In the past two weeks the purpose, trends and costs of trading stamp plans were reviewed for you in this column. To complete this series on trading stamps, let's consider some things consumers should keep in mind as they use stamps.

Mrs. Franks

First let's say that trading stamps or absence of stamps isn't the only factor that determines a store's cost of operation, its price level and profit. Studies of retail store operations show that operating costs vary widely between stores and firms — from as low as 12 percent of sales to as high as 20 percent or more. A store, giving stamps, does not necessarily have higher operating costs and prices than a non-stamp store, and vice versa.

Careful comparison of individual store prices, products and services is necessary to determine which store offers best values to you. Price comparisons between stamp and non-stamp stores should allow for the value to you of the trading stamp you can receive.

If You Save Stamps

Stamps are usually issued at a rate equal to about two percent of what you spend. Thus, on purchases of $100, you receive stamps valued at approximately $2. The actual value in exchange may be somewhat more or less — depending upon whether the premiums you receive in exchange for the stamps are measured at stamp company list prices, retail prices or discount prices.

Indications are that most merchandise acquired by stamp redemption costs the consumer less than prices listed in stamp company catalogs, about the same as retail store prices, and somewhat more than discount-store prices.

Don't consider trading stamps as free and as something to spend on items you would not ordinarily buy. Instead, think of them as part of your cash resource. This is what they would be if you could redeem stamps for cash, or if you could take a two percent reduction in price instead of stamps. This means that "spending" trading stamps should involve the same decision-making process as your other spending.

Your choices as you redeem trading stamps are limited. The full range of alternative uses your family might have for additional funds is not available — including such things as clothing or even additional food.

Thus, it appears that trading stamp plans, when widely adopted, can offer little "net" value to consumers. Stamp saving and careful redemption of stamps generally does provide the opportunity to recover the cost of stamp plans that are passed on through higher prices. This seems to be a reasonable plan to follow in a time when stamp-giving has become nearly universal in food retailing.

Homegrown Asparagus Is At Its Best

Don't delay getting all the fresh asparagus your family can eat while it's at a seasonal peak. At this writing, the local crop is at its best—supply good and quality excellent. Much of our local asparagus is now hydracooled at the farm, which means it will hold its delicate flavor longer after it is cut. If you plan to freeze asparagus, you'll be wise to do it soon.

Tackle Boxes Can Be Real Drag To Determined Fishermen

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

This article concerns a weight problem—overweight, that is.

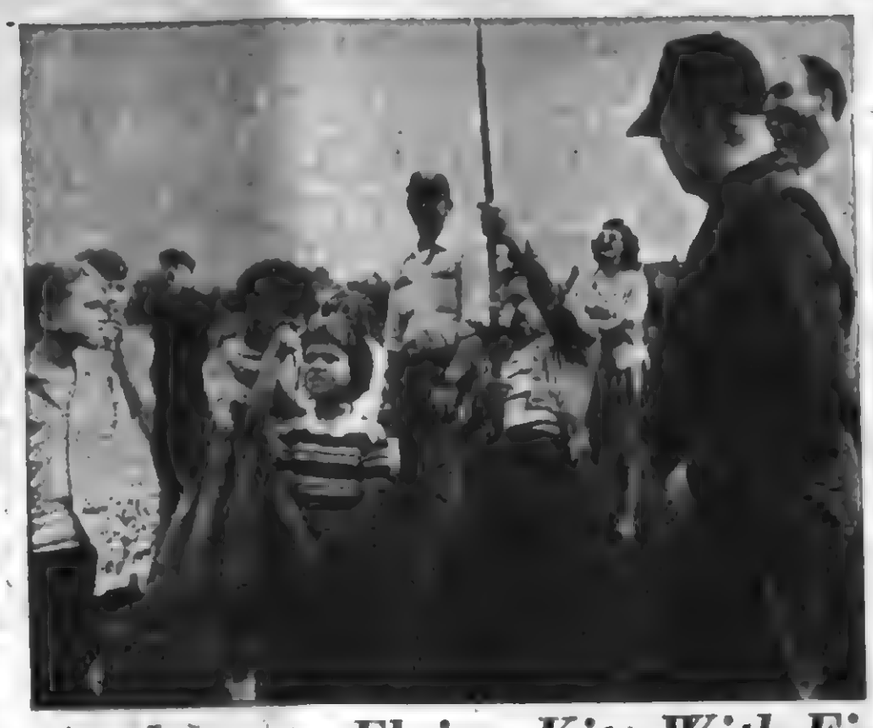
This isn't the kind you hear so much about, but is directed toward those fishermen who load up a big tackle box every time they go fishing. Evidently they are former Boy Scouts, because they really go prepared. Out of their great box they can untangle gear for a little light trout fishing, or some heavy-duty muskie angling. There is certainly nothing wrong with having a wide variety of fishing tackle, but you do not need it all for a day or afternoon's outing on Central Ohio waters.

Good fishermen, I have observed, go light. They know what kind of fishing is in season and they know how they will be fishing. This holds true for both live bait anglers and artificial fans. Cartoonists have had fun for years drawing various predicaments of hapless anglers and their huge boxes of folding compartments loaded to the gills with lures, hooks, sinkers, bobbers, pork rind, stringers, reels, spare line and the other impedimentia that go to make him ready for anything. But it's no joke for the man who carries such a box, that some have estimated to weigh in the neighborhood of 250 pounds.

Even if you fish from a boat, a giant tackle box is unnecessary except for balancing your left side as you lug an outboard motor in your right hand from car to boat. In boats, tackle boxes are noisy, are always underfoot, and are always open when water splashes aboard. After you carry this dead weight back home that night, you then have the not-so-pleasurable task of emptying everything out to dry if you think I'm talking from experience, you are correct.

I learned a long time ago that the place for a tackle box is at home. If you take a fishing vacation, then a box is permitted in the car trunk. It would be disastrous to have a fishing trip ruined because you ran out of spinners, or broke a rod and reel. Take along plenty of tackle but do not carry it all with you every day.

Plastics Have Helped



Luckily you can lick the overweight fishing problem easier than counting calories. Over the years the plastic industry has improved the little pocket-sized lure carriers until they are almost indestructable. These have compartments for spinners and flies—partitions can be removed to make room for plugs. Spare hooks, swivels and the like can also be carried. The canvas creels that have been on the market for some time are also very convenient. They have room for fish and tackle. In these you can even slip in an extra reel if you like. Both of these carriers work well for bank fishing, wading or angling from a boat. I have carried sandwiches and a soft drink in my creel for a full day of fishing.

There is only one angler I know who would disagree with this advice of cutting down fishing weight, and he shall remain nameless. He was floating down the Manistee River near Grayling, Mich., fishing for trout. The current is fast so my friend and his companion would float downstream to a good pool, throw out the anchor to fish a while then move on. This worked fine and the trout were hitting. But the anchor rope became frayed and then broke, The anchor was lost.

They began to look for a rock with which to improvise an anchor, but that is sand country and not a single rock could be found. Rather than waste the afternoon, my friend emptied his tackle box, filled it full of sand and used it as an anchor.

The only moral I can draw from this is, "If you must take a tackle box fishing, throw it in the drink."

Here's New Angle For Anglers . . . Flying Kite With Fishing Pole!

William Schlesusner of Pack 36, Westgate Methodist Church, not only won three top awards at the Southwest District Cub Scout Kite Flying Derby on Sunday, Apr. 29, he also thrilled adult Scouters and young Cubs with his unique method of flying the meet's largest kite — a six-foot spread of heavy plastic and wooden crosspieces. Using a pole, reel and line suitable for landing a barracuda on a deep-sea fishing expedition (center photo), Bill put his man-size, prize-winning kite (left photo) through its aerial paces. Young Schlesusner displays tiny kite (right photo) with which he won first prize in the smallest kite category. He received his third first prize for having the largest box kite in the contest. — Photo by Elsie Weaver.

Kiwanis International has just established its first club outside the United States and Canada, local clubs learned recently.

The Kiwanis Club of Tijuana, Baja, California, Mexico, was established Apr. 17. It was the first club organized outside of English and French-speaking North America in the 47-year history of the international service organization.

This was the 39th annual celebration of the event, which is designed to focus attention on the century and a half that Canada and the United States have lived together in peace with their 3,000 miles of undefended border a constant reminder of their friendship. Canada-U S Goodwill Week was originated by Kiwanis and now enjoys wide participation in both countries.

MISS LYDIA LYLE

Miss Lydia Lyle Reaches 104th Milestone On May 2

Miss Lydia Lyle 293 Whitethorne-av celebrated her 104th birthday last Wednesday with informal visits from friends throughout the day and a birthday supper in the evening.

Happy and interested with the wisdom gained from more than a century of living Miss Lyle's only concession to age is a slowing down of activity.

Hearing is increasingly difficult and her reading is now limited to the daily newspaper.

A Columbus resident for the past 30 years, she has lived at Miss Ethel Clark's home at the Whitethorne-av address for three years.

Born in Iowa, her family moved to Allensville when she was still a baby, and from there to MacArthur. She and her mother operated a restaurant there for many years.

Although she never married, Miss Lyle at 66, raised her brother's five children after his death.

She recalls with surprising clarity of detail, events of nearly a century ago, and retells stories of post Civil War days. Automatic washers and modern labor-saving devices are a never-ending wonder to a woman who lived a lifetime without them.

Her birthday was brightened by a shower of 107 cards from friends, 104 roses from Viereck's Florists and a huge cake, gift of Cake Art Bakery, 1497 Sullivant-av.

Her family consists of two nieces and a nephew in Columbus, a niece in Cincinnati and a nephew in Fairborn.

While quite young, her family moved to Galena, where Mrs. Gill first acquired her lifelong fondness for "barbershop" music, from listening to harmonizing from the nearby barbershop.

The family moved to Columbus when she was 15, and her father and brother drove the horse-drawn cars on High-st, and later were conducter and motorman on the electric street cars.

Be Kind To Animals Week Is Observed At Shelter

The 48th national "Be Kind To Animals Week" is being observed in Columbus until May 12, according to Thomas C. Justice, general manager of the Humane Society.

"This is an excellent time to become familiar with the program and service of the Humane Society," Justice said.

There will be an open house at the animal shelter, 2770 Groveport-pk, during the week. Hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. The public is invited to tour the shelter and inspect the animals' living quarters and other facilities provided for animal care and protection.

Animals at the shelter may be adopted. According to Justice, the numebr of adoptions during "Be Kind To Animals Week" is higher than at any other time.

Motto for the remembrance is "A little hand . . . a lot of help!" Adopting a pet and making a good home for it-is a good way to be kind to animals, Justice said.

Hartley Area Residents Elected By TB Society

Three Hartley area residents have been elected to offices on the board of the Tuberculosis Society.

They are John E. Nippert, 1615 Berkeley-rd, vice-president of Nippert Electric Priducts Co., 1759 W. Mound-st, who was re-elected president of the society; Dr. Maurice G. Buckles, chest specialist, 336 S. Columbia-av, second vice-president, and Mrs. Lovell W. Rohr, 291 S. Brinker-av, secretary.

Elected a director of the society was Mrs. Arthur L. Smith, 3091 Watkins-rd, a volunteer worker for the society for nearly 30 years. Re-elected to three-year terms of the board were: John W. Wolfe, 2640 Sherwood-rd, Howard Park, 407 Northview-av, and Dr. Howard D. Giles, 190 Woodland-av.

Dr. Buckles also will serve as chairman of the society's medical research and education committee for the coming year, assisted by Dr H. M. Clodfelter, 2581 Floribunda-dr, and Dr. Giles.

Mrs. J. S. Poorman, 254 Maryland-av, was named chairman of the nominating committee, serving with Herbert M. Williams, 133 Guernsey-av, and Rev. C. F. Jenkins, 189 N. Nelson-rd.

Other committee appointments are: Mrs. W. H. Pitner, 206 S. Parkview-av and Park, Nightingale Cottage committee; Mrs. John Blakley, 180 N. Drexel-av, Dr. Giles, Mrs. Rohr, and Mrs. Smith, program committee for 1962-1963; and Park and Wolfe, finance and personnel committee.

In his report to the board, Gerald D. Fry, executive director, stated that the Tuberculosis Society's educational work in the year ahead, besides tuberculosis, would include other cronic respiratory diseases, some of which are confused in diagnosis and on X-ray with TB.

He pointed out that 20 per-cent of the patients in tuberculosis hospitals are eventually found not to have TB but a disease so closely resembling it as to defy medical experts. A better understanding of these diseases will more quickly help conquer tuberculosis, he said.

★ ★ OLD SUPPLY AND DEMAND PROBLEM ★ ★

State Teaching Practices Now At Crossroads

Ohio's Chief Executive and this state's Department of Education have been following the yellow brick road to the not-so-little red schoolhouse and find themselves fast approaching an intersection.

The intersection is well marked. One sign post reads "Supply" and the other is marked "Demand" — but both indicate different directions.

If they follow the first they fear a drop in quality of teachers in this state. If they decide on the "Demand" route, they expect to find a shortage of teachers here.

Here's the situation:

Ohio is one of eight states that allows a teacher without a degree to instruct a class—the need has been that great.

The State Education Department has set a target date of Oct. 6, 1966, for discontinuing this practice. A public hearing will be set sometime this year for discussing the problem.

"The question is," according to Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, "will the department be able to discontinue the practice and still retain the number of teachers needed?"

The intention of the board to do away with the "Cadet Teaching Program" was announced Apr. 2. No specific date has been set for the public hearing but Harold J. Bowers, assistant state school superintendent, said Monday that it "will be soon."

The Cadet Program permits elementary teachers with just two years of college to instruct classes. When they complete the two years, they are given a sub-standard certificate (cadet certificate) which requires them to complete six semesters hours a year—or, a total of 24 additional semester hours to get a full-fledged teaching degree.

"There is a nationwide teaching shortage," Bowers said. "All states have to certificate a certain number of teachers with less training than required for a degree. But we're one of the few states that issues this long term certificate without a degree."

The Governor sees the discontinuing move as a "pressure-placer" on the General Assembly to try to do something about equalizing minimum salaries in Ohio.

"As other states continue to increase minimums for employment of teachers," DiSalle told this reporter Monday, "we continue to be 18th in average salary paid to teachers."

At this rate, DiSalle feels, "we'll be unable to retain even those teachers we educate . . . let alone secure additional teachers."

Just how critical is the teaching situation in Ohio? DiSalle put it this way:

"Last fall we graduated, in Ohio, 8000 teachers. We had a need, at that time, for 11,000 instructors. Out of the 8000 we graduated, we were able to retain 5600 of them.

"This meant we had to go out and get the rest elsewhere. We were able to get some from other states, and we brought some back from retirement. But, a large number were obtained through our Cadet Program."

The pay scale definitely is an important factor entering into the doing away with the Cadet Program and improving Ohio's teaching quality.

"We must be competitive with other states—and industry—in our retention of and securing of teachers," DiSalle commented. "I feel that it was a wise move by the board to set the target date in 1966."

At any rate, there should be some fast-breaking changes in the school picture in Ohio.

Hilltop Youth Moderator Of Presbytery

BILL JOHANNES

Bill Johannes, son of Dr. and Mrs. William M. Johannes, 2911 W. Broad-st, was elected moderator of the Columbus Youth Presbytery at the group's meeting Sunday at Worthington Presbyterian Church.

The Youth Presbytery coordinates fellowship events of all Columbus area Presbyterian Churches.

A junior at West High School, Bill has been a member of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian for seven years, and is faith chairman of Hoge's Senior Fellowship.

He is track team manager at the school and a straight A student, and a member of Hi-Y and DeMolay.

Other interests include horticulture, raising house plants and African violets as well as an outdoor garden, and playing the organ.

PUPILS TO CONDUCT BOND SALE SATURDAY

An every-home canvass of the Hilltop will be conducted by members of West High's Weskets and Instrumental Department Saturday, May 12.

Students will be selling $5 certificates, redeemable in five years, to finance the purchase of new uniforms for West's marching band.

The West Point-style uniform costing approximately $80 each, will replace the old, double-breasted style worn by the band since 1944.

The band has been selected to perform on the stage at Veterans Memorial next fall for the Columbus School Teachers convocation of all public school teachers of Columbus, and the school is hoping to precent the show in new uniforms.

One-half the needed $10,000 goal has been reached.

The certificates, fully guaranteed, are in $5 denominations, and repaymnt is promised in five years. Persons purchasing the bonds are, in effect, loaning money to the music department.

TO STOP THIS NEW TAX BILL!

YOUR EARNINGS FROM SAVINGS AND INVESTMENTS MAY BE TAXED 20% IN ADVANCE UNLESS YOU WRITE YOUR SENATOR RIGHT NOW!

THIS MESSAGE IS OF VITAL IMPORTANCE TO EVERYONE WHO HAS SAVINGS IN A BANK OR SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, OR OWNS U.S. BONDS, INSURANCE, MUTUAL FUND SHARES OR STOCKS OR BONDS OF BUSINESS CORPORATIONS.

House Bill 10650 is ready to be introduced on the floor of the United States Senate. If this bill passes, a COMPULSORY WITHHOLDING TAX OF 20% will be deducted from your interest and dividends. If the Government withholds from you money you do not owe, that is confiscation. Promise of a refund does not alter this fact.

This means that churches, synagogues, orphanages, union trust funds, all charitable organizations, widows, pensioners, and others who for one reason or another would not have to pay federal income tax in any one year, must file an exemption certificate with every organization that pays them interest or dividends. This certificate must be filed each year—if not, the Government will receive 20% of your interest or dividends, no matter what the reason given for failure to file.

Everyone between age 18 and 65, except those mentioned above, would have 20% of their interest and dividends withheld automatically at time of payment.

The cost of such a mountain of paperwork could very easily be more than the added revenue to our Government.

In addition to this, it is felt that dividends and interest rates could be lowered by organizations in order to pay the increased costs of additional bookkeeping.

Ima Thief Seeks Aid This Summer

By JOHN AUBLE, Jr.

For Ima Thief, pleasingly dressed Ima Thief, Spring's a happy time!

He told me this after he swished up in front of the office in his new-model sports car. He said it was a "Mafia"—it had a hood in the front and a hood in the back.

"It looks like business will be great this year," said Ima. "From all indications, we should really get a big haul."

Spring is always a fun-out-of-the-sun time for guys like Ima. He's a thief—and works hard at it, too. Somehow you always admire an enterprising young man like this — hardworking, energetic, ambitious and, outside of a few gloomy occupational hazards, carefree.

Ima always stops by this time of year—just before the big "hunting" season begins. He comes in to outline his business plans for the upcoming summer months and, I must admit, he's done a lot of work planning out this summer.

Last year, Ima and his associates totaled 3,381 burglaries in greater Columbus. "But," He added, "you ain't seen nothin' yet."

Here are some of the techniques he explained:

"We usually stroll around the neighborhoods and, on almost any day, we can tell at a glance who's home and who's not.

"We look for porches that are cluttered with circulars, an accumulation of milk bottles on the stoop, maybe, or an unkempt lawn, an empty garage with the door open, a bulging mailbox . . . anything like that.

"These things always give us the big tip-off."

Of course, not all of Ima's club members work during the day. They've got a night crew, too, and these guys look for things like dark houses.

"It's a known fact," Ima said, that a house dark all the time means that no one's home.

"Sometimes people try to fool us by leaving a light on when they're away, but that don't do no good anymore. Seeing the same light burning day and night means the same thing to us."

IT'S PEOPLE like these who make things rough on guys like Ima Thief. In the center is Columbus Mayor Ralston Westlake and he's signing a proclamation declaring May 6 through May 12 Burglarly Prevention Week. At left is Safety Director Albert G. Giles and at right is Columbus Police Chief George W. Scholer. Ima doesn't like them at all but hopes you'll help him and his associates as they prepare to make thy rounds this summer.

Ima said he's really troubled by some folks who've devised an effective means of having light in their homes every evening by an automatic timing set-up.

Such a timer will turn a lamp "on" early in the evening, then turn it "off" several hours later. With lights turning on and off during the evening hours, it gives the appearance someone is home and causes Ima all kinds of headaches.

Four out of every ten burglaries that Ima's organization work on take place in apartments or homes.

Actually, Ima doesn't like hard work. So, naturally, he first checks a target house to see if the doors, including the porch, basement and garage entrances, are unlocked.

He hates pin-tumbler cylinder locks on outside entrances and safety latches on the windows. Sort've his pet peeves, I guess.

Other things that bother him are folks who fasten all screens from the inside, or people who never leave valuables lying around but keep them in a safety deposit box.

Ima would like to issue a plea to all local residents to observe the following points to make life a little easier for him. Just slip these out and chock them off when you're ready to go on your vacation:

1. Please don't notify the police department when you'll be leaving and how long you expect to be away. (They keep checking the place and slowing down Ima's work, you see).

2. Don't cancel all deliveries, such as milk, laundry, cleaning, etc. Also, be sure that you don't discontinue the newspaper or arrange to have it sent to your vacation address. (You'll destroy prime signs that way).

3. Ima would appreciate it extremely if you wouldn't have a neighbor or your post office hold all mail until you return.

4. And, if you don't mind, for heaven's sake don't arrange with a friend to mow the lawn and sweep your sidewalk once a week.

5. Maybe it would help, too, if you would leave your shades and blinds down. ("I know that closed blinds keep the sun out, but they also make an effective screen for us," Ima said).

6. Be sure to advertise your departure with an item in your local newspaper. Please give a complete and detailed story about your vacation to the newspapers and don't forget to include when you'll return.

"Anything else?" I asked Ima.

"No, that about covers it—thanks a million," he said. "I know your paper reaches a lot of readers and they'll give me their 100 per cent cooperation," added Ima with a smile.

"Yeah," I said, "I'm sure they will."

National Goodwill Week Here Marked By Local Staff Changes

As national Goodwill Week is being celebrated this week through May 12, George Morey Evans, executive director of Goodwill Industries of Central Ohio, with headquarters at 1331 Edgehill-rd, announced local staff changes.

Donald E. Darr of Madison, Wis., has been appointed supervisor of evaluation and training of Columbus Goodwill Industries, effective May 1.

Darr has been in occupational therapy since 1958. Prior to his appointment at Goodwill Industries he was chief of occupational therapy and supervisor of work evaluation at the Community Rehabilitation Clinic at Canton.

Other staff appointments announced by Evans are: James T. Donaldson as public relations director, replacing Ralph S. McVeely, who left the organization, and Gary Kaffenberger as personnel supervisor, the post vacated by Donaldson.

Goodwill is celebrating its 60th anniversary this year. It was founded in 1902 in Boston, Mass., by a Methodist minister. It has become both inter-denominational and inter-faith. In addition to 128 Goodwill Industries in America, there are 18 similar programs in other countries today.

A United Appeal agency, Goodwill Industries was started in Columbus in 1939. Within the past four years, branches were added in Chillicothe, Marion and Newark. Close to 350 handicapped persons are employed in the four locations.

Goodwill Industries provides testing, training and employment for handicapped persons. Clients recondition used clothing, furniture, appliances and other discards from homes and businesses for re-sale in four retail outlets in Columbus and one in each of its branches.

Goodwill Industries of America provided jobs, training and rehabilitation services to more than 50,000 persons during 1961, its Washington, D.C. office reported.

Those employed earned more than $21 million in wages, and paid nearly $3.5 million in taxes rather than accepting tax relief funds, Evans pointed out.

Leadership Institute Will Be Sponsored By Library

A three-session "Institute on Leadership Skills" will be held in the Columbus Public Library auditorium Tuesday, May 15. It is sponsored by the Adult Education Council of Greater Columbus.

The institute will be operated on a first-come, first-served basis, Prof. Andrew Headrickson, institute chairman, said. He added that registration blanks are available at all public library agencies in the county. A one dollar fee will be charged

The first session at 1:30 p.m. is entitled "Keys to Good Program Planning." Following welcome from Samuel Stellman, Adult Education president, participants will be shown a film concerning handling the problems of planning and presenting programs for community and professional groups.

A reactor panel that will summarize and point out program planning elements includes: Mrs. Milton Sheatsley, president of the Columbus Council PTA; Mrs. Charles Blackman, president of the Women's Interfaith Peace Committee; and John Gard, Division of Services for the Blind of the Ohio Department of Public Welfare. Gard will moderate the discussion.

The second session, at 3:45 p.m., "Making Use of Our Richest Program Resource," will include a film about public libraries with comments by Miss Gretchen DeWitt, reference department head, Columbus Public Library. Audience discussion will follow interrogation of the speaker by Joseph Blair and Samuel Stellman.

The evening session, "How to be a Good Meeting Chairman," is at 7:30 p.m. Allan Gulker, attorney and past president of the Columbus Area Junior Chamber of Commerce, will moderate a panel commenting on a film, "The Management of Meetings." Other panelists will be: Miss Florence Worrell, Central YWCA staff; William Nichols of Nationwide Insurance.

TRAGIC STATISTIC: THIS YEAR 263,000 MEN WILL BE STRICKEN WITH CANCER

Many will die. Among diseases, cancer is the number two killer of the Western world.

But many more could be saved with proper education and help. A million Americans who had cancer have been cured.

The American Cancer Society sponsors a three-pronged attack on cancer. It educates before cancer, rehabilitates after cancer, and helps during cancer. It also spends millions of dollars on research grants to find the cause and cure of cancer.

Surely no one can deny the importance of this work. And once more the Society asks for your help in furthering this Crusade.

Fight cancer with a checkup and a check. Mail your donation to CANCER, c/o your local post office.

AUBLEGRAPH

BY JOHN AUBLE, JR.
Hartley Sports Editor

This Coach Needed A New Set Of Signals . . . You See

If you really care anything about how I feel, bear with me until the end of this column — I've got a story that just has to come off my chest.

To avoid any embarrassment from involved parties, I'll refrain from disclosing the principal characters in this little slice of life.

It really happened to a local baseball team and was told to me by that team's coach.

This fellow is the way a coach should look — sort've the Jim Backus type — and I'll probably never be able to relate to you as he told it to me.

Anyway, his team always ran of the money. Last year, however, it worked its way up to the finals and all of the credit goes to the squad's pitcher.

No Rag Arm . . .

This was a real sharp kid with any kind of a pitch and he compiled a fabulous record.

The rest of the team was just mediocre; but, the coach felt, the pitcher would carry them to a championship crown.

The final day rolled around when all the marbles were at stake. You guess it . . . the pitcher came to the coach complaining about a sore arm.

He couldn't work the last game.

Well, this coach had a centerfielder who had done some pitching. He was no hot-shot by a long-shot but he had a pretty fair fast ball and somewhat of a curve he could throw at times.

The coach called the centerfielder turned-pitcher and the catcher together and instructed the men that the catcher would signal one finger for a curve and two fingers for a fast ball.

The new pitcher agreed . . . two fingers for the fast one, one for a curve. Okay.

Just Like In The Movies . . .

So it was the last of the ninth, the opposing team was at bat with two men on and our hero had the batter down to a 3-2 count. The at-bat team was trailing by one point and the game looked pretty well sewed up for our boys.

The catcher had signaled two fast balls and the batter had fanned both of them. He didn't want to press his luck, so he signaled for a curve — the first this boy had to throw all day.

The last time the ball was seen it was sailing over a few roof-tops and three runs crossed the plate, the game was over and that first-ever crown slipped away from my coach-friend.

The team sat in the lockerroom and was decidedly and understandably down-hearted. The pitcher was even crying. So, this coach walked over to him, put his arm on his slumped shoulders, and whispered, ". . . that's all right, kid. We can't win 'em all . . . you did a fine job."

"Yeah," said the pitcher, brushing away the tears, "but coach, it's awfully hard throwing a curve with one finger."

Girl Track Stars To Shine Saturday At Central High

BY JOHN AUBLE, JR.
Hartley Sports Editor

With Ohio Track Club gals as headliners, the third edition of the Girls' Track and Field and Olympic Development Meet will roll off the "press" Saturday afternoon at Central High School.

Some 400 local lasses will be making news for the third annual event sponsored by the Ohio Club, according to James Lorimer, Ohio Track Club coach and meet manager.

Ages in the meet will range from 8 to 19 years, four age divisions included.

Entry blanks for the meet are available through the Columbus Recreation Department and they'll be accepted right up to the start of the meet—12:30 p.m.

The basic purpose of the get-together is Olympic development, Lorimer said, and added:

"Olympic development medals and ribbons will be awarded in the running, jumping and throwing events in all age divisions. We can't give enough incentive to our American girls to compete in the 1964 or, possibly, the 1968, Olympic Games."

Most all area girl track instructors will take an active part in the meet.

As last year, Phebe M. Scott, of Ohio State University, is the meet referee and the different events are being judged by local high school female track coaches.

Records to be broken, include:

MIDGET DIVISION (Ages 8-11)—50-yd. dash (7 seconds); HJ (3-feet, 10-inches); Standing BJ (7-feet, 3¼ inches); Softball throw (120 feet, 4 inches) and 220-yd. relay (51 seconds).

JUNIOR DIVISION (Ages 12-13)—50-yd. dash (6.9); HJ (4-feet, 2 inches); running BJ (13-feet, 1¼-inches); Softball throw (153-feet, 9½-inches); and 220-yd. relay (:28.9).

INTERMEDIATE DIVISION Ages 14-15)—75-yd. dash (8.8); 50-yd. hurdles (7.5); HJ (4-feet, 10inches); Softball throw (163-feet, 3½ inches); Running BJ (14-feet, 3½-inches) and 220-yd. Relay (28.8).

SENIOR DIVISION (Ages 16-19)—100-yd. dash (11.2); 50-yd. hurdles (7.); HJ (4 feet, 10 inches); Running BJ (15-feet, 2 inches); SP (32 feet, 2½ inches) and 440-yard relay (:60.9).

Lorimer is trying to line up the Cleveland Recreation Club to come down for the event and put on some exhibition runs but he had no confirmation by this newspaper's press time.

Biggest competition will come from a North High School lass and Ohio Track Club member, Sue Knott.

The Pretty brunette did the 440-yd. dash Mar. 18 in Louisville with a swift :58.2, retiring Colorado State's Lillian Greene's time of :60.1 set in 1961.

If the Cleveland Club comes down, Miss Knott will have a reunion with her [illegible] Sandra, who is a registered nurse in that northern Ohio city and is holder of the world's [illegible] yard record.

HEADLINERS FOR the upcoming third annual Girls' Track and Field and Olympic Development meet at Central High School this Saturday include these young ladies. They are, clockwise, starting at top center, Melissa Long, Laura Voss, Wanda Fuller, Sue Knott and Pat Watkins. They're all members of the Ohio Track Club.

For lasting colors on shutters and trim use trim and trellis paints or exterior enamels.

Four new exhibits are on the roster for the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts during May.

For this year's showing, Dr. Raymond Stites, curator of education at the National Gallery, has chosen 151 paintings and 37 three-dimensional pieces. Prior to the public opening, a cocktail preview for gallery members and invited guests will be held Thursday evening, May. 3.

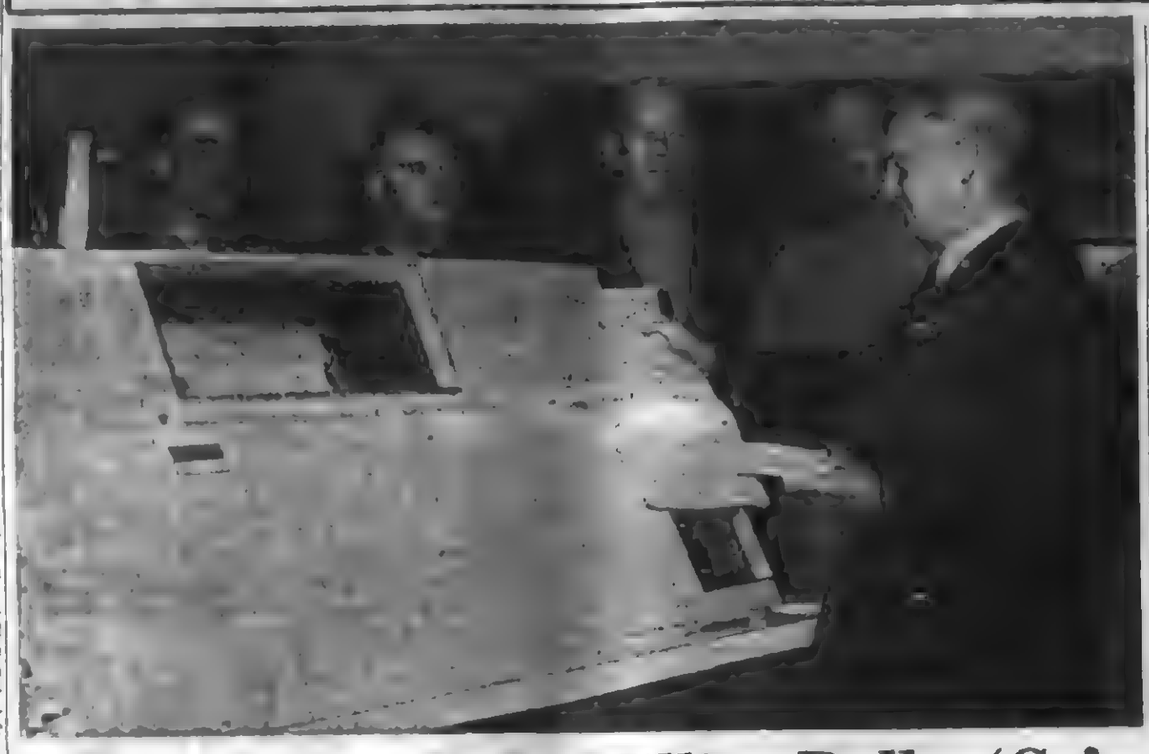
Newberry's 1962 Pick Is 'Bronze Bow'

National Newberry and Caldecott awards for 1962 have been announced by the American Library Association.



Mary E. Keyes, head of Hilltop Branch Library, reported the Newberry medal for "the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children" was won by Mrs. Elizabeth George Speare for her book, "The Bronze Bow."

It is a story of a Galilean youth consumed by hatred of Roman conquerors.

The Caldecott award for "the most outstanding picture book" went to Marcia Brown for "Once a Mouse," the retelling of an ancient Indian fable of a mouse transformed into a cat.

Official presentation will be June 19 in Miami, Fla.

Center Gets Multi-Million Dollar 'Go'

Wires buzzed, lights flashed and punch card machines were put into motion at 32 Starling-st this week as the Defense Construction Supply Center, multi-million dollar wholesaler of construction supplies for the U. S. Armed Forces, took the "Go" signal to become operational by receiving its first requisition for supplies.

On hand to receive and check processing of the first request was Brig. Gen. Philip F. Kromer Jr., U. S. Army, the center's commander.

Through modern high speed electronic data processing and communications, the initial requisition for an oil cooler assembly for a 45-kilowat, 400-cycle generator, supporting a missile site, was processed and ordered shipped from a storage point, the Memphis General Depot, Memphis, Tenn., in approximately three hours.

This inaugural marked the initial phase whereas the Center will ultimately purchase, catalog and distribute an estimated 240,000 common supply items in the construction field to the U. S. Army, Air Force and Marine Corps.

DCSC, an element of the Defense Supply Agency, Washington, D.C., was established to provide more effective and economical supply support to operating military forces with a substantial savings through unification to the American taxpayer.

Bellar Re-Elected To Ohio Pulic Works Board

Arthur J. Bellar, 926 S. Algonquin-av, city superintendent of sanitation, was re-elected a director of Ohio chapter of the American Public Works Association at Cleveland last week-end.

A Superla sport bicycle will be given to one boy and one girl with the most points. These bicycles are on display in Harry Graham's Shoe Store window, 2384 W. Broad-st.

The Keds Old Shoe Round-up is starting its second week. Already the pile of discarded worn shoes is straining at a fence 20 feet around and two feet high set up on the shoe store floor.

Until June 2 each purchase of new shoes or redemption of old ones entitles the purchaser to points.

Holders of the most points at noon on June 2 will ride off with the bicycles. There will be eight other prizes: a doll, a ball glove, ball and bat, two pairs of roller skates, a pair of cowboy boots and two pairs of Keds.

Graham said arrangements have been made to donate all of the cast-off shoes to the Goodwill Industries, who repair and salvage as many as possible for deserving persons.

All Franklin School Boards In State Group

Franklin County is one of 16 Ohio counties which has 100 per cent school board participation in the Ohio School Boards Association (OSBA). The 17 city, exempted village and local boards of education in Franklin County by their voluntary membership in the statewide association play an active part in determining the OSBA program and activities.

Statewide, 658 boards (71 per cent) have joined the association for 1962. This year the member boards of the association have launched a comprehensive study and action program to involve community lay leaders in a search for [illegible] to Ohio's financing problems.

The project calls for all Ohio boards to appoint a 10 to 15-member lay group to study their schools' present and future needs. Their recommendations for solving financial problems will be compiled on a statewide basis into the legislative program of the OSBA for 1963.

Speakers Announced For Conservative Rally

State Bar Group To Take Action On Court Plan

The most far-reaching proposal to face the Ohio State Bar Association's Council of Delegates at its semi-annual meeting Thursday, May 10, at Toledo, is the statewide judicial reorganization plan. It is a result of nearly four years study.

Two major objectives of the proposed amendment to the Ohio Constitution are the creation of a single court in each county and placing control of such courts under the direct supervision of the Supreme Court of Ohio.

The single court would retain the name of the present Common Pleas Court, but would merge with all other county courts — probate, juvenile, municipal and county. This single court would be regulated by the Supreme Court in the establishment of uniform rules. The Common Pleas Court will retain control over local matters.

Audrey Is Hep(burn) In 'Tiffany' Role At Miles

Audrey Hepburn effervescently trips through the role of of Holly-Go-Lightly in the screen version of "Breakfast at Tiffany's"—now playing at the Miles North High Auto Theater until May 12.

If you missed the picture downtown or at your local neighborhood theater, it's worth a drive north to meet Holly. Author Truman Capote has created in Holly a capivating country girl playing the role of a New York sophisticate.

She lives in an East Side brownstone decorated with a bathtub sawed in half for a soft lavishes affection on a stray cat, entertains Brazilian aristocrats and pays weekly visits to a con man in Sing Sing.

Beverly

Underlying her escapades is a sad longing for her country life that is reflected in her fire escape ballad "Moon River"—now enjoying juke box popularity.

Those who loved Holly in the book version of her story may be a bit disappointed with what Hollywood did with the movie. Holly's "happy ending" is somehow not in keeping with her character. Even so, the movie is as fresh an adventure as meeting with a wood sprite could be.

Everyone came late of hear Joan Baez sing at Mershon last Friday. She minded, but she teased the audience with droll humor. They didn't mind because they liked her style. She is a little girl with a lot of voice: low, compelling, and to everyone's surprise — she can use it to cut up on a corny ballad. The Greenbrier Boys shared her bill and offered a contrast in their twangy renditions of popular folk music.

Everyone is excited about Harry Belafonte's return to Veterans Memorial stage May 17 and 18.

We think the star he has helped promote may steal the spotlight.

Miriam Makeba, who skyrocketed to folk-song stardom after a New York appearance two years ago, has a repetoire that is highly original in both sound and selection.

A native of Johannesburg South Africa, Miss Makeba has a vital rhythmic quality in her voice that comes through whether she does lullabye, a rougish West Africa ditty, or a Congolese lament.

She sings several songs in her native Xosa dialect. It has an expressive staccato "click" resembling the popping of champagne bottle corks. Unique is her "The Click Song," a festive Xosa wedding song. After her performance, intermission audiences have been known to try to imitate this arresting sound.. Take is from one who has tried. It can't be done!

"WHO EMPTIED the bottle?" queries Mr. Peachum of his fiancee "Three Penny Opera" couple, played by Mary Kostandeen, 1747 E.N. Broadway and John Crawford, 278 W. Lane, in rehearsal for he Gallery Players' production of the Weill-Brecht musical that opens at the Jewish Center May 20.

'Three Penny' Will Make Its Midwest Debut

When Drama Director Harold Eisenstein grabbed "Three Penny Opera" rights for the Gallery Players' Midwest premiere—he took a chance.

The play has never been given in this area. It is an off-beat show with off-beat problems.

The Weill score has some tricky music—it is sardonic, sad, lyrical, ironic.

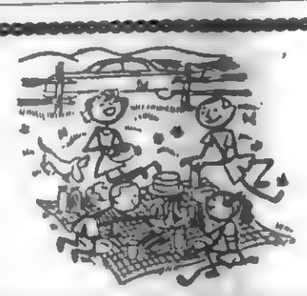
"Our first job," commented Eisenstein, who will direct the production May 20 at the Jewish Center, "was to find people who could sing as well as act."

Judging from the sounds coming from a recent Wednesday night rehearsal, he has overcome the first obstacle.

Joyce Lightfoot, a junior music major at Ohio State, is a saucy Polly Peachum, with a well-trained voice. Miss Lightfoot, whom Eisenstein discovered in the OSU production of "Connecticut Yankee," saw "Three Penny" in New York, "fell in love with it and has wanted to sing it ever since."

The sauve and swaggering role of Mac the Knife is ably handled by Philip Kautt, who also sang in "Connecticut Yankee." And Mrs. Peachum is played with just the right amount of cynicism by Mary Kostandeen. Her voice cannot be surpassed by her off-Broadway predecessors.

Talented OSU TV director John Crawford has acquired the Soho accent and mannerisms befitting the role of Mr. Peachum. The rest of the cast offers talented vocal support for the principals.



Part of the triumph of "Three Penny" in New York, stated Eisenstein, "was its 96-seat theater. The Jewish Center auditorium holds around 400 people.

In order to preserve the intimacy of the show, half of the auditorium will be closed off for the performances. There also will be in-audience playing to help create the atmosphere of a small theater.

Staged at New York's Theater de Lys, the "Three Penny Opera" had a record breaking off-Broadway run. It opened in 1955 and closed this year.

Its story of mugs, mating, and misery in London's underworld society is already well known, as is the sad and satirical music of Kurt Weill.

"Three Penny Opera" is a unique experience in the theater, Columbus audiences will thank Eisenstein for bringing it here.

'Question 7' Changed Face Of A City

For two months last summer the town of Moelln got a "make-up" job for "Question 7," film of religious suppression in Communist countries currently playing in Columbus [redacted].

Moelln, located nine miles from the East German border, was selected for this transformation because it closely resembled the many small towns in East Germany now under Communist rule. Renamed Osterstadt for the film, the city was "made up" to conform to its iron curtain neighbors.

Posters proclaiming Soviet peace propaganda, so prevalent in East Germany, had to be placed in many areas before shooting commenced. The schools, factories, and office buildings were drastically redecorated. Trucks heavily burdened with exclamatory placards were equipped with loud speakers which, day and night, shouted the party line.

West Germans were well aware that this was all part of a movie dramatizing the conflict between the Communist state and the Christian church East Germany. But tourists, noticing Red banners fluttering in front of the City Hall and mammoth photographs of East German leaders everywhere in view, wondered if inadvertently they could have wandered across the border.

Talk On Chagall To Open Show Sunday At The Jewish Center

The Jewish Center Art Committee announces that "Chagall and His Techniques" will be the title of an informal talk to be given by Matthew Baigell at the opening of the Chagall exhibition on Sunday afternoon, May 13, at the Jewish Center, 1125 College-av.

Baigell, an instructor of art history in the Department of Fine and Applied Arts at Ohio State University, will begin his talk at 3 p.m. The exhibition will be open to the public from 2 to 5 p.m.

Included in the Jewish Center exhibition will be etchings from the "Dead Soul" series. Chagall actually produced these etchings between 1923 and 1927 and they were released in Paris, illustrating the work Nicolai Cogol, in 1948.

Also included are etchings for the "Bible Series" with text from the French Geneve 1638 translation of the Old Testament which was released in Paris in 1956. Most of these etchings were executed in the early thirties.

All 41 black and white and color prints by this dynamically independent artist will be offered for sale.

New Organ Dedicated At Sullivant

A new Hammond church organ was dedicated Easter Sunday at Sullivant Avenue Friends Church.

Service of dedication was read by the pastor, Rev. Ralph W. Blackburn, with a background of organ music.

Mrs. Charles Reaver, music committee chairman, presented a bronze plaque with six names engraved upon it, in whose memory $100 each had been pledged. Another permanent record was presented to the congregation of all who have contributed to the organ fund.

Nearly half of the cost of the organ has already been paid.

For the past eight weeks the First Friends Church of Bellefontaine and Sullivant Church have been engaged in an attendance contest for Bible School and morning worship service.

Sullivant won with a total score of 773 to Bellefontaine's 608. Easter attendance was 232 for Sunday School and 165 for worship.

Summer Art Program Enrollment Begins

The summer art program conducted by the Columbus Public Schools is now three years old. Future plans call for expansions to include Eastmoor Junior-Senior, Linden-McKinley Junior-Senior, South and West High Schools.

This program is designed for students enrolled in grades seven through 12. Present sixth grade pupils may enroll. It is organized so each student can progress rapidly. In the past two years many accomplished amazing results during the eight-week program. Students and their parents reported it to be a rewarding program. This year, instruction will be given in drawing, painting, design, sculpture, ceramics and enameling.

Tuition will be $10 for Columbus School District students whether or not enrolled in the public schools. Fee for students outside the city district will be $30. Two morning sessions will be conducted daily at each center. Older students will meet from 8 to 10 a.m. and the younger from 10 to noon. One-half credit may be earned by ninth through 12th grade students who present evidence of two hours' daily work in addition to their class work. The program will run from June 18 through Aug. 10.

At the end of the summer session, students will select their best work for an exhibition tentatively to be held in the Columbus Board of Education Administration Building.

Applications may be obtained from junior and senior high school art teachers, elementary school principals, and the Art Department at the Administration Building. Enrollment will be limited.

For further information call the Administration Building, CA. 8-3821, Ext. 311.

Epidemic May Cause Isolation Of Institution

An outbreak of an infectious but non-virulent disease called salmonella, distantly related to typhoid, may cause the Columbus State Hospital to be isolated if it continues to spread.

Nearly 200 patients in five wards have been quarantined since the outbreak was detected last week.

Around 40 cases have been reported but medical director at the institution, Dr. Ben Kovitz, said the disease was not dangerous unless accompanied by another physical illness.

The only way to eradicate the disease is to isolate patients and those coming in contact with them.

Normal treatment is a 10 day course of orally administered anti-biotics. Those with the disease are being treated now, Kovitz reported.

Health officials of the city and state have been called to investigate in hopes of locating the germ source.

'CAMPOREE' SPELLS FUN, LEARNING FOR HALF THOUSAND

SOUTHWEST DISTRICT Boy Scouts—more than 300 of them and about 200 parents and visitors—turned out for the Old Trail Camporee, May 11, 12, 13. There was fun aplenty under the open sky at Westinghouse Recreation area, but time for "serious stuff" too. Here, Capt. Martin Fleming of Franklin Township Fire Co. 3 teaches water safety and water rescue.

IT'S BETTER THAN NOTHING—this "monkey bridge." Troop 214 built the 30-foot rope contrivance across Dry Run. Demonstrating it are (front to rear) Bob Kuemmel, Jr., Assistant Scoutmaster Pat Raina, Bob Coins and Dick Hammons. Explorer Scouts (dark uniforms) served as camporee security patrol. Action Can Speak Louder Than Words Headlines are being made and remade each week as the water and sewer services freeze comes in for repeated attention and many words.

At this stage it appears that headlines and words are not going to solve the problem and that something in the way of good old-fashioned horse sense is going to have to be instilled into the thinking of both city council and the county commissioners.

The [illegible] brought about when county commissioners signified they had no intention of allowing any further annexations and at the same time the city maintaining its stand of no further extensions of water and sewer services will do considerable damage to the future development of suburban areas in Central Ohio unless some steps are taken immediately to come up with an equitable solution of this problem.

It is evident that clearer definitions and firmer policies in the extension of water and sewer lines are needed and that it is not at all equitable to make on the spot decisions to accommodate certain individual circumstances.

Likewise, it is vitally important that a long range view be injected into any policy regarding sanitation so that individual residences or new developments will be assured both the necessary services that should go with new homes as well as proper school facilities for their children.

A possible solution of the Columbus and Franklin County joint problem might be forthcoming with the appointment of a committee of reputable citizens qualified to think in terms of the best interest of the people.

In any event, it is time for less talk and more doing.

WITH THE COUNCILS

Moore Is Honored; Local Problems Aired

The title of "Outstanding Community Worker" was bestowed on Charles E. "Chuck" Moore by the Hilltop Community Council, last Thursday.

Moore, who lives at 299 S. Hague-av, has been director of Glenwood Recreation Center and a member of the council since 1953.

The council lauded him for tackling some of the most difficult jobs in the organization. He is a past president and is chairman of the special events committee responsible for Christmas, Easter and Halloween celebrations, and summer dances for teenagers. He is supervisor of all West area playgrounds and has personally organized an active advisory council at Glenwood Center.

Moore

Moore holds a Master's degree in recreation from Ohio State University. His specialty also ties in with his chairmanship of the Boys and Girls Committee of the Hilltop [illegible] Club.

Much of council's program at the Hilltop YMCA last Thursday was devoted to a discussion of the work of the Police Juvenile Bureau, led by Sgt. Richard Griffith. Other action by council included:

- Plans for opening ceremonies at city-supervised play-

Block Fixup Discussion Set Tonight

A neighborhood improvement "blitz" is expected to start this evening (May 16) in the West Side.

Health Committee of the West Side Neighborhood Council has personally invited every family in the six-block area north of Jet Stadium to meet at the Mr. Softee plant, 1290 W. Broad-st, and hear details of the plan. The committee hopes to conduct an extensive clean-up, fix-up campaign similar to the Franklinton project last year. Cooperation of the residents and city officials alike will be enlisted. The proposed project involves properties and

Hilltop Lions Do Big Things With Newspaper Sale Money

More than 350 volunteer newspaperboys — ages 18 through 70 — will deliver the annual newspaper of the Hilltop Lions Club to 15,000 Hilltop and West Side homes starting at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, May 17.

The 12th annual edition of "The Hilltop Lions Tale" is actually the club's "annual report" to Hilltoppers and West Siders, according to Galvy E. Gordon, general chairman of the project.

"It is our report to those householders and business and professional men whose generous contributions upon receipt of the newspaper and support in other phases of the newspaper project make the work of the Hilltop Lions Club possible," he added.

Sightsaving, Civic Work

This past club year the Lions expended well over $3000 on behalf of sight saving activities, more than $1000 for the community's Annual Fourth of July celebration at West High School, better than $2000 on community betterment endeavors, nearly $1000 for health-education-welfare, and some $2000 on activities in support of youth.

Preliminary returns on the 1963 newspaper project show that advertising gross amounts to about $3000 and the pre-street-sale auction about $2100, according to Gordon.

Fagan, Foster Co-chairmen

Richard Fagan and Robert Foster, co-chairmen of the Thursday evening house-to-house distribution, said they hope to meet their goal of $5,000 before 9 p.m.

Both explained that every cent raised in the newspaper project goes for sight saving work or comes back to the com-

TOP BID HONORS at the Hilltop Lions pre-street-sale auction of its annual newspaper "The Hilltop Lions Tale" went to Jerry Speers, Sr. Besides representing his own funeral establishment in paying $100 for a "first edition," Lion Speers acted as agent for the Zane Casket Co., which paid $125 for a single copy of the newspaper. Auctioneer Chet Duffy (left) and Lion Speers are seen here at the moment of sale.

About Swimming Pools

Many people are buying pools for their back yards. Inspiration for this in most instances comes from the pure delight it provides as a recreational facility for the family. For a few it is a case of keeping up with the Joneses.

The Columbus Better Business Bureau has just issued a warning, however, that prospective swimming pool purchasers will do well to "look before you leap into your backyard swimming pool." They recommend a little bulletin called, "How to Select Your Swimming Pool" which is available from the National Swimming Pool Institute at Harvard, Ill. Furthermore, they recommend that you take some varey careful precautions in selecting the firm to install or build the pool.

grounds (including a new one at Eakin School) at 1 and 1:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 13. PTA's will assist.

• Decided to hold council's annual picnic at 6 p.m. Thursday, June 14 and shift it to Glenwood Park. Gerald Willey is chairman.

• Heard reports from members who checked the condition if all Hilltop parks.

• Promised to study conditions in the area of two abandoned and condemned houses in the 200 block of S. Oakley-av.

• Urged all residents to fly the American flag during the coming holidays.

Those who viewed the parks had good words for the cleanliness of the lake and shelterhouse at Westgate Park. But, they deplored the parking of autos in front of homes when there is ample space in lots provided for that purpose. It was pointed out that the park has no signs to identify it, and groups could make good use of a movable divider in the shelterhouse.

Replying to complaints of run-down fences and play facilities at Holton and Hauntz Parks, Chuck Moore said repairs are delayed until just before the parks open for the summer, to prevent two chances for vandalism.

Juvenile Laws Revised

Guest speaker Sgt. Griffith was asked how the Hilltop stacks up with the rest of the city in juvenile delinquency complaints. "We don't group our reports into geographical areas," he told council. "But we do keep a complaint file on individuals. A youth's first offense is treated as an office case . . . his second is sent to court."

Sgt. Griffith stated that 84 per cent of all auto thefts are by juveniles. Youngsters in traffic cases are no longer handled by the Juvenile Bureau but go directly to court.

His replies on other questions follow:

What can you do with kids who smash bottles in the streets? "Report them. If caught in the act they can be treated as a delinquent under malicious destruction of property, disorderly conduct or under Ohio's stiff anti-litter law."

Is there a law regulating the age of baby sitters? "No."

Do the police check filling stations? A scandalous incident involving obscene literature was recently reported on the Hilltop. And what about rowdyism at the theatres?

"We don't routinely "check" every filling station, or any other business, unless there is a complaint. We seldom have the time or manpower to look into the theaters, but do on occasion."

Is there a curfew law and is it enforced? "Curfew for youngsters under 13 is sundown, or about 7 p.m. now. For those 13 to 17 it is 11 p.m. We don't overly enforce the curfew but it is a valuable tool we use to break up corner gangs late at night."

How do you arrest someone for drag racing? "We need a witness and the license number of the car. Sometimes parents will cooperate with the child's reprimand, sometimes not."

The police sergeant related that stolen bikes is a major headache of the department. One man is employed full time on this alone, he said.

streets bounded by Naco-av on the east, the B&O Railroad on the west and Mound-st on the south.

Tuesday evening the health committee met with the Franklinton Neighborhood Improvement Committee to arrange ways to complete last year's four-block campaign. The meeting was called at the request of Mrs. Bonnie Durbin, 107 Jones-av, Franklinton chairman.

City Bounces Requests

Meanwhile, a controversy regarding one-way traffic on Walsh-av has been returned for Neighborhood Council action by the city traffic engineer. The WSNC last fall recommended that the street be made one-way, along with Union-av, west of Central-av. During the winter the local traffic committee decided that both streets should be returned to two-way flow. The city returned Union to its original status, but Walsh remained one-way. Residents are divided in their wishes and now the City Traffic Commission has petitions from both sides.

Traffic Committee Chairman Frank Schneider said talks will be held with Walsh-av residents before further action is taken.

Boy Scout News

By Craig Weaver
BR. 9-1982

The Old Trail Camporee of the Southwest District wound up a whole springtime of planning and preparation. It was held last Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 11, 12 and 13, at the recreation area near the Westinghouse plant on Rt. 40, "The Old Trail."

Scout and unit leaders had been planning for a long time to make this one of the best camporees ever held. Many displays were put on for the benefit of the public. One of these was a demonstration on how to make old-fashioned apple butter. Several other interesting ones were the building of a monkey bridge and rope-making.

The best troop gateway awards, in order of merit, were awarded to Troops 172, 126 and 250. The winners of the scout skills demonstrations were Troops 172, 248 and 131. A kachina doll went to the top patrol in all the contests. This award was presented to the Fox Patrol of Troop 182. Members of this patrol were Art Lagram, Dave Whorral, Jay Webb, Sam Tufts, Jim Beatty, Jim Hane, Leo Ocher and Kim Todd.

Awards for scouting skills went to Troops 172, 248 and 131. All units participating in this affair were given a ribbon stating whether their participation was standard or proficient. Scouts attending the camporee were given special neckerchief slides made for the occasion. Explorer Scouts from Post 33 and Post 79 acted as the service units.

ADOPTS NIMAT-LINCHEN

At the Old Trail Camporee, our local chapter of the Order of the Arrow conducted its May meeting. Officer elections for the next six months were conducted. The temporary officers who had been elected at the April meeting were unanimously voted into office for the six-month period. The officers are Dick Nadaline, chief; Don Umberger, vice-chief; Earl Simon, treasurer; and Craig Weaver, secretary.

Several Indian names in the language of the Lenni Lenape or Delaware Indian tribe were considered and finally one was chosen as our chapter's new name. From now on the chapter will be known as the Nimat-Linchen Chapter of the Katinekwat Lodge No. 33. Nimat-Linchen means "Brothers of the West Wind."

ANNUAL MEETING SET

The annual Southwest District Scouters recognition dinner and meeting are planned for Monday, May 21, at Westgate Methodist Church. Paul C. Hayes will be the speaker. Unit leaders are asked to get their reservations to Robert Dings, BR. 4-5010. Unit committee chairmen have tickets for the affair. All Scouters and wives and Scout parents are invited. Tickets are $1.75.

SCD Stresses Speed In Its Flood Program

By SAMUEL E. DOBBINS

Too much is not enough. That's the problem the Scioto Conservancy District (SCD) has been facing with the present water situation.

But after a comprehensive study to end in July, the SCD is confident of finding a way to stop inevitable floods, yet making sure there will be an ample water supply for the years to come.

Dobbins

What are the whos and hows of the Scioto Conservancy? Columbus City Council, realizing the need for some type of water control program, with no opposition petitioned Franklin County Common Pleas Court for formation of a conservancy court to study the program. (The SCD is composed of Franklin, Ross, Pike and Scioto counties and is a part of the Scioto Drainage Basin.)

The other four counties then followed suit and joined the SCD. Each county appointed a common pleas judge to serve on the court.

The District is third in size in Ohio with its 6,510 square miles, bowing only to Muskingum and Maumee watersheds.

"Every action of the SCD is one of urgency," said Jacob A. Meckstroth, chairman of the board of directors.

"Too much time has been lost in the past which cannot be reclaimed. We believe this conservancy district will succeed and that some of the works to be recommended in our official plan will be under construction within the next two years," he added.

"We know that sometime in the future there again will be floods," said Richard E. Midden, secretary-treasurer of the District. "The sooner we move, the more damage we can stop," he added.

"We consider our program one of action, reported Harry H. Turner, chief engineer of the district. Once you go through certain steps you must have positive action. We have such a program, know it is essential and will not be satisfied until it is under way."

Seeking a solution, the SCD contracted the engineering firm of Burgess and Niple to present a water management program.

The firm reported two major points which should be included in the program:

1. Study of water pollution along with flood control, (low flow augmentation.) 2. At the same time find an adequate water supply for the increasing demands of industry.

In the water management report to be presented Burgess and Niple has suggested:

- Construction of Mill Creek Dam for flood control.
- Construction of two dams in Big Darby, one for water control the other for supply.
- Water supply and flood control for Alum Creek.
- Additions to Hoover Dam for flood control.

Included in the program will be recreational facilities for all areas involved.

Who Will Be Affected?

According to Turner, chief engineer, no towns will be flooded.

"Water will come nearest Ostrander at the Mill Creek project," Turner said, "but it will be protected by the levee.

Big Darby will have two dams, the engineer reported. The lower reservoir is to be for flood control, the upper for water supply.

Turner reported there will be some displacement of people in all the areas involved. However, this will have no effect on the village of Darbydale.

"The Big Darby dams will be above the village," Turner declared.

If the program is accepted by the Conservancy Court, the Board will begin appraising more than 14,000 parcels of land totaling 231 square miles.

Project evaluation is determined by balancing the cost against benefits that will be received. If the conservacy court feels those involved will not be equally benefited, it will send the report back to the SCD for amendment.

"If there exists less in benefits than cost, we don't have a plan," Midden said.

If accepted, work will immediately begin on property appraisal in January.

Funds for the project will be the next major step. The $253,000 given to the District by the old Sandusky-Scioto Conservancy District, which dissolved after the 1959 floods, will not be enough.

SCD Has Taxing Power . . .

Need of capital left the SCD with two choices: wait for funds by levying taxes or borrow the money. (The District has the power either to assess three-tenths of one mill for a two-year period or it can sell conservancy bonds.) However, according to Midden, time is pressing—no one can predict when the next flood will strike.

The District decided to ask Columbus City Council for a loan of $1.5 million to carry on with land evaluation. The loan was granted.

The City has money in its Capital Improvement Fund which is to be used for other projects. Some of the City projects will not begin for a while so Council asked the Treasury Investment Board for those allotments. The SCD will repay the City by selling conservancy bonds.

In this way, Midden reported, some of the red tape can be cut. Council, two weeks ago, heartily supported the SCD's request.

When questioned about rushing the operation and planning ahead before the report is accepted, Midden replied, "we're rushing to beat a deadline (the next flood) and we don't know when it is."

Army Works Separately . . .

Much publicity about plans of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, district office in Huntington, W. Va., has engulfed the public.

Such Army projects as the Alum Creek, Deer Creek, Big Darby, Delaware, Paint Creek and Rocky Fork reservoirs have been mentioned.

The SCD and Army projects are completely different. The Army engineers work under the Board of Rivers and Harbors in Washington, D.C. Many have thought the SCD and the Army engineers are the same.

However, Midden reported that both groups have been working together and the Corps of Engineers is doing a "conscientious job."

"The Corps' basic responsibility is along the Ohio River," Midden said, "We (the SCD) are mainly responsible for our five counties," he added.

Midden reported the Army started its work in 1958. The Engineers have already completed their plans and has sent them to local agencies for their comment.

What are the Engineer's preliminary plans?

In 1938 the Engineers recommended construction of five dams. They were the Delaware, Big Darby, Deer Creek, Paint Creek and Rocky Fork. Out of this recommendation has come the present Delaware Reservoir.

Following construction of that dam the others were put on the Army's inactive project list. Last December they reactivated plans for Big Darby, Deer Creek and Rocky Fork. Paint Creek fell to the wayside.

With Big Darby again on the waiting list are the residents of Georgesville in or out?

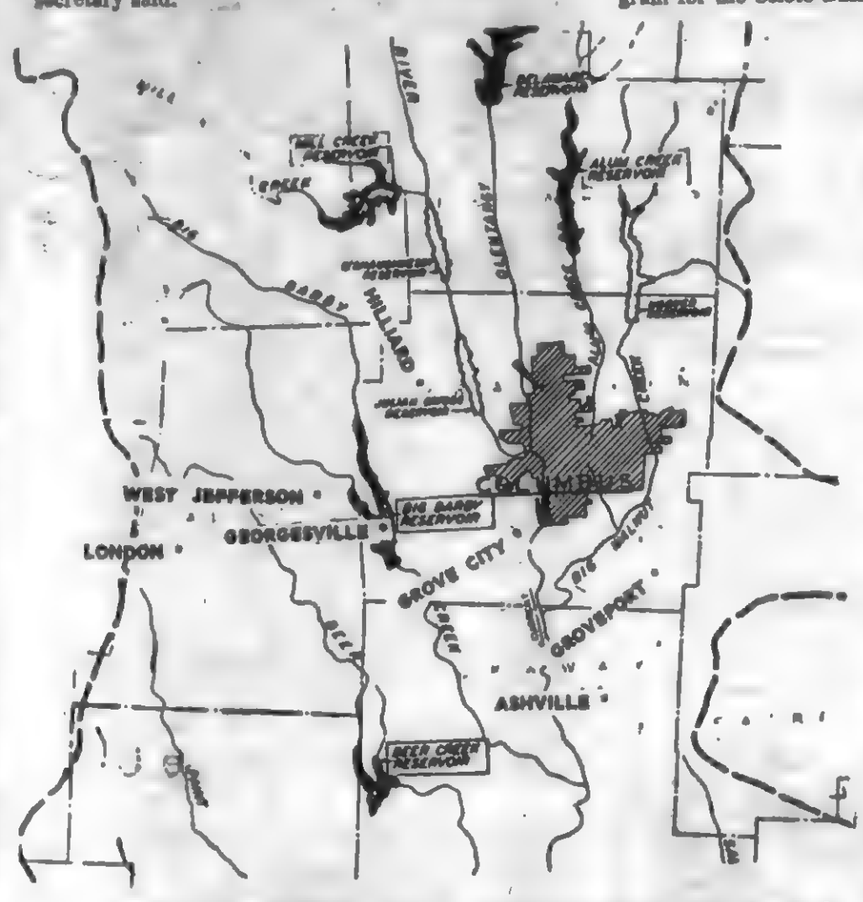
"It is conceivable that the Engineers might construct a dam and reservoir at that location," Midden said but added, "it could be located within five miles of what preliminary plans call for."

"The Engineers are just fact finding, and trying to find a suitable location for the project," the secretary said.

'We Want To Be Ready'

The SCD secretary reported it will take at least another year before Congress could allot funds for such a construction project. Congressman William Harsha, of Portsmouth, appeared before the House Subcommittee for Rivers and Harbors seeking project funds last week.

"If Congress does not approve such funds then "we want to be ready," Midden said.



If the Army gets the water program job, will the amount of money already spent by the SCD be justified? According to Midden it is.

He said that the two groups are helping each other and trade information and advise on new developments that arise.

He added that if either of the projects were accepted the millions of dollars in potential flood damages saved would make it justifiable.

The Scioto Conservancy awaits project approval; the Corps of Engineers, funds.

Either way the next step is a flood control program for the Scioto Basin.

WATER MANAGEMENT projects proposed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers are indicated in this diagram. The Scioto Conservancy District has separate plans for the basin to be released in July. SCD Chief Engineer Harry Turner asserted that no towns in the SCD's plans would be flooded.

AROUND EDUCATIONAL CIRCLES

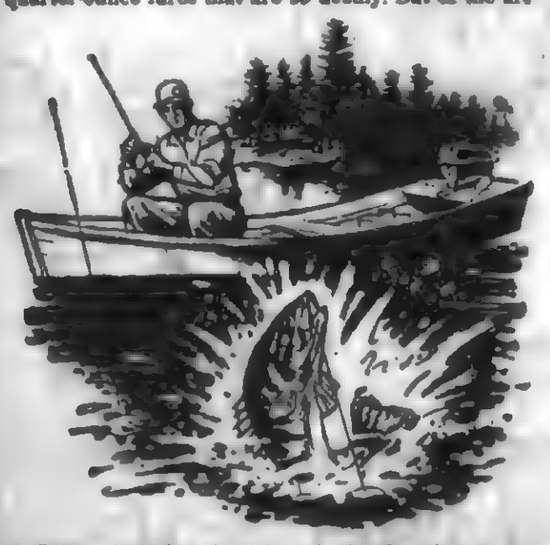
NO REPORT CARDS

Report cards in the Shaker Heights schools may be on their way out. Superintendent Donald G. Emery has proposed that beginning next year two of the six report cards sent home each year be eliminated and replaced with parent-teacher conferences. Eventually, all report cards may be dropped.

MORE PUPILS . . .

Ohio's school age population is expected to increase by 839,000 pupils by 1970, jumping the state to third in the nation in the number of school children.

NEW TEACHERS . . .



An estimated 7,200 students will graduate from Ohio's teacher training institutions this spring. However, the State Department of Education estimates that more than 11,000 new teachers will have to be employed to keep pace with growing enrollments and the retirement of older teachers.

If You're Scientifically Minded, Why Not Do Research On Smallmouth Bass?

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

After spending a little time at streamside over the years, talking to a rather large number of fishermen and listening to a few professional bait catchers, I am of the opinion that the art of smallmouth bass angling is in its infancy. We are still in the horse and buggy days as far as these fine game fish are concerned, and have been so for roughly a century.

Oh, I know, our equipment has been vastly improved — glass rods, spinning reels and the little quarter-ounce lures that are so deadly. But of the art of fishing, knowing the fish and what is going on under the water's surface, most of us are rank amateurs plodding along with the same information published in the famous volume "Book of the Black Bass," by Dr. James A. Henshall. The year was 1881.

"What about all the scientific research in recent years?" you ask. We do know something of the smallmouth bass — how many eggs the female spawns, the spawning season and the water temperature needed for this function, how many colors it can see, how fast it has grown in certain waters, how far certain fish have migrated and the like.

But I am speaking about the art of stream bass fishing as compared, perhaps, with the art of trout fishing. How many anglers do you know who can reasonably estimate the number of good bass a stretch of his favorite stream holds? How many know when the last Mayfly hatch occurred, or when the next one is expected? How many know the exact temperature of the water while they are fishing? How many make any study of the insect life in the water and the yearly and seasonal fluctuations thereof? How many time their fishing with the shedding of crayfish? How many try to match their lures to some natural phenomenon occurring in the water?

All of these have a direct bearing on the feeding habits of smallmouth bass, and I will wager that you can not find a single fisherman who could answer yes to more than two of the questions. Do not misunderstand me, I certainly could not qualify as a smallmouth purist. But it seems odd that in a hundred years there have not been a few black bass specialists who have turned the sport into a fine art. There are many such trout anglers both in this country and in Europe. Smallmouths rate at the top of the heap in wariness, moodiness and fighting ability, yet they have not attracted a following of purists worthy of the name.

All of this was brought on by talking with bait dealers and collectors. As you know, the price of soft craws varies with their availability. While some shedding seems to go on continuously, there are peaks when great numbers of crayfish shed their shells at the same time. It would seem to me that when a certain stream was well stocked with a natural supply of soft craws, the bass would go on a feeding spree. Rather than a "hatch" of insects you would have a "hatch" of soft craws. From what I have been able to learn, these peaks occur three to four times a year.

This column has never advocated that you follow outdoor sports so avidly that they become work. Fishing, hunting, hiking, camping and all the rest, should be fun. But if you are scientific by nature, like to make observations and keep records, you might turn your attention to a nearby stream. There is much to learn that would greatly increase your catch of stream fish and your fun afield.

While you read daily of space exploration, it might be fun to do a little water exploration at your back door.

Should Honor Law

The Social Education and Action Committee of Brookwood Presbyterian Church wishes to uphold the stand taken by the Greater Columbus Sunday Association in complying with the Ohio Sunday Closing Law.

The many people who are affected by the extra work laid upon them by remaining open on Sunday are being deprived of spiritual searching, physical renewal and a time of peace and quiet.

We wish to go on record as supporting those who are attempting to keep Sunday a day of spiritual growth, rest and relaxation.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Arthur G. Herr

Dept. Of Thanks . . .

It is a pleasure to let you know what a fine impression Betty Daft's article about our organization made on many of your readers.

I have heard numerous favorable comments regarding the completeness of the story of our Voters' Information Bulletin, appearing in the Hartley papers, both from members and non-members of the League of Women Voters.

Our thanks to you for helping our citizens learn more about the candidates for public office and encouraging them to vote intelligently.

—Patricia Boyd

On behalf of the Madison Local Board of Education, the Madison Local Citizens Committee, and myself, I want to extend to you our sincere appreciation for your fine assistance in bringing to the residents of our school district the facts concerning the need for additional school facilities.

Although the proposed bond issue was not approved, we feel that through your cooperation the voters were given the factual information concerning the need, and therefore, should have been able to base their voting upon facts, rather than rumors.

We trust that we will continue to merit the fine relationship which we have with you and your newspaper.

Some Fear-Reporting In Gold Reserve Stories

The gold reserve situation which has been in the news for the past few weeks and which has been hashed and rehashed is not as serious as one would believe.

Beardshear

Granted that the figures are correct; that we have on hand $16.6 billions; that the law requires $11.5 billions behind our dollars which leaves only $5.1 billions to meet foreign demands; that European central banks and other foreigners now own $18 billion (net) in short term claims, payable in gold on demand; that all the gold legally behind the U. S. dollar has been mortgaged (and $6.5 billion besides) and that gold claims against us total $1.4 billions more than the total stored here.

The crucial point is this: Will these claims be exerted? Most economists agree that they will not. International political stability would have to be completely disrupted for all these claims to be put upon us and then our problem would not be gold, but the political structure of our alliances.

It is also true that we now own 4 percent of the monetary gold stock, a figure which is left out of the fear-thinking articles that I have read. England is still a banker nation with a lot less gold than we have now.

The usual picture is a debtor-creditor relationship which is too simple. To use an imperfect analogy, banks do not stand ready to pay dollar for dollar. They have other assets, other claims. They keep on hand only a working amount of dollars. The same holds true for businesses.

As for governments, is it reasonable to assume that their only asset is gold?

In the economic report of the president, he says, "but the gap to be narrowed and eventually closed is not large, less than 10 percent of our goods and services and less than one half of 1 percent of our Gross National Product."

One can look at gold from two viewpoints. The first is the domestic home market where prices depend on the amount of money and the amount of goods, and very little on the amount of gold. In fact, some economists would say that the domestic market is not dependent on gold.

The other viewpoint is the international market. If by some political calamity we continue to lose gold and our defense structure fell down, even then the areas that would be affected are: 1. expenditures abroad, 2. investments, and 3. tourism.

Our economic structure is dependent upon international cooperation, and should that fail, the problem is no longer economic.

Final conclusions are that the flow of gold and the demands against it are overemphasized and are no cause for great alarm.

So put the buck in your pocket, it's still as good as gold.

What Should You Pay for Carpeting? $6 or $15 Yard?

That depends, to a great extent, upon where carpeting is to be used and what qualities are most desirable. Most carpeting is made for a specific purpose and meets certain requirements. It is usually impractical to purchase higher priced carpeting than is needed, and poor economy to buy low-priced carpeting when a higher quality is desirable.
For this reason—and many others—it is important that you have complete knowledge of carpeting. But if you don't, be sure you know the merchant from whom you buy!

At 7 p.m. Friday the YMCA will present trampoline artists and judo and karate matches.

Third Annual Gra-Y Relay Event Slated At West On May 19

The Hilltop Y's Men's Club will sponsor the third annual Gra-Y Relays on May 19 at 9 a.m. at West High School.

This year 12 elementary schools on the Hilltop will be participating. Last week each club had individual elimination trials with the best representatives of each club competing in the 10 events.

Each school will be allowed to enter three boys in each of the dashes, one relay team in each grade division, and two boys in each of the other events. In order to have more boys participating, no boy will be allowed to enter two events unless he is in the dashes and on a relay team.

John Brown, member of the Hilltop YMCA Board of Management, will serve as M.C. A public address system will be used with the entrants of all events being announced as they participate. A surprise celebrity will also be present to make the award.

Each boy participating will receive a special felt patch. Ribbons will be awarded to the winners of the top three places in each event. The winning team will be recipient of a trophy, which will be put on display in its school.

All plans are being handled by the Y's Men's Boys Work Committee in conjunction with the "Y's" Physical Committee.

Some of the records to beat this year will be the 7'-1½" standing broad jump set by Steve Brown of West Broad last year. Another record is the 60.6 time in the 440 yard relay. Westgate's relay team of Dave Agin, Bob Stephenson, Dave Everson, and Tim Weigand established it. The softball throw of Highland's Bill Garrett of 170 feet will indeed be a goal to shoot for this year.

The 50-yard dash record of 7.0 will be a dash time to beat. Mike Miller of Lindbergh set this record last year. Ovorn Miller's time of 13 flat in the 100 yard dash is a two-year standing record set in 1960.

Terry Meinberg's 50 yard low hurdle record of 9.8 will be one of the hardest records to break this year. Terry held the title for winning this event for two years in a row.

R. J. Dienst Handicap Is Saturday

Third running of the Robert J. Dienst Memorial Handicap will highlight the week's racing program at Beulah Park Saturday, May 19.

The race honors the memory of the man who served as Beulah Park's treasurer from 1933 to 1937 and then took over the presidency until his death in 1959. He has been succeeded by his son, Robert Y. Dienst.

Racing Secretary Charles W Smith believes that three or four horses may be shipped in from other racing points to compete in the Dienst and that eight or 10 of the top local performers will be in the lineup. This group includes such as Cocky Boy, Blazing Red, Shoregate, Shan Pac, Essay, Vic Jimmy, Candy Lane and Unnoticed.

Expert Speaks On Girls Participating In Sports

There were over 400 local girls performing in the third annual Girls' Track and Field and Olympic Development Saturday afternoon at Central High School but a Yugoslavian immigrant wished it were 400,000.

N. J. (Nick) Barack, director of the Columbus Recreation Department, stood near the rain-sprinkled track and did some theorizing. He's also Ohio's Amateur Athletic Union Secretary and the meet was under AAU sanction.

"I think it's wonderful that our Central Ohio girls have a chance for an athletic outlet like this," said Barack. "I wish we could have this kind of a meet every week."

NICK BARAK
Coaches (Female) Wanted

Even though girls' track teams are becoming more and more in vogue in local high schools, the sport doesn't come close to the competitive chances given young men.

Barack has been performing the task of encouraging young girls to participate in athletics for many years — with, of course, an eye on the Olympic games.

"Too many girls think it's unfeminine to be athletic," Barack added. "I don't know where they've gotten this idea but I'll tell you this: If I, for a minute, thought sports would make a girl unfeminine, I'd be the first one to stop it."

Barack Makes Dates . . .

An East High runner, Estelle Baskerville, had just finished breaking a record in the 50-yard dash event and was perched on the recognition stand ready to receive her Olympic development medal.

Barack walked over to her, introduced himself, and said, "Young lady, I'd like to make a date with you."

Personable Estelle (also a member of the Ohio Track Club for Girls and one of the leading high jumpers in this country) was understandably confused. Just kidding, she asked, "When?"

"In 1964," said Barack. "For the Olympic games in Tokyo, Japan. If God's willing I'll be there and it's up to you, Estelle, to work hard so you can keep our engagement."

Estelle said she'd make it.

Incidentally, the East High lass was the number one American high jumper (two were chosen) selected to participate on this country's squad during an international meet in Chicago against the Poland track team beginning July 30.

It looks like a bright future for her.

Takes Long-Range View . . .

Why is Barack so quick to urge women to participate in athletics? He takes the long-range view and thinks the girls will make America strong athletically.

"I don't remember where," he commented, "but I saw an ad in a sports magazine. It showed a picture of a housewife and underneath the picture was this caption: 'Coaches Wanted.' I think it delivered an effective message."

Barack sees the women as the guiding influence in any family. If a mother participated in sports she'll naturally influence her children to do likewise — and, they'll generally follow her example.

"All mothers should urge their children to enjoy recreation," added the AAU secretary. "It makes for a healthy balance and a happy family."

Of course, Barack sees the Olympic games as the ultimate end. He wasn't too happy about the female showing in the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome and hopes for better things to come.

He sees high school track teams for girls as a big start in that direction and encourages them all he can.

From the looks of things Saturday, most of his encouragement was taken to heart and this annual girls' meet gets progressively bigger year after year after year.

And, Barack's smiles follow suit.

Magic Show Set By Legionnaires

Franklin Post No. 1, American Legion, is presenting Ring No. 3 of International Brotherhood of Union Magicians at 8 p.m. Friday, May 18, in the third annual Festival of Magic. It will be held in the small auditorium of the Veterans Memorial Building.

Thirty children from the Franklin County Village will be guests. Proceeds are to be used for the post's child welfare programs. Tickets can be purchased from the members of the post or at the door (adults $1, children 50c).

Swimming pool paints are also good for coating cinder and similar concrete blocks. They resist both the acidity and alkalinity of the blocks and will also prevent rust stains.

Books On Golf Are Popular At Hilltonia Library

Pleasant, sunny days have brought a sharp increase in interest at the Hilltonia Library in books on golf, according to Librarian Joann Sopkovich.

Frequently requested is "Sam Snead on Golf," which offers advice on choosing clubs, understanding basic golf technique, and using the clubs properly.

Two other recently published books — "Advanced Golf" by Cary Middlecoff and David Camerer's "Improve Your Golf" — have also had special popularity.

Other recent books of advice for golfing enthusiasts include "Fundamentals on Golf," by Dow Finsterwald; "Golf Lessons From the Pros," by the editors of Sports Illustrated Magazine; "Better Golf in 5 Minutes," by J. Victor East; "Five Lessons: the Modern Fundamentals of Golf," by Ben Hogan; "Better Golf through Better Practice," by Jules Platte; "Golf Secrets of the Pros," by Larry Robinson; and "How to Think and Swing Like a Champion," by Dick Mayer.

Women golfers will appreciate "Golf Illustrated" by Patty Berg, and "This Life I've Led; My Autobiography," by Babe Didrikson Zaharias.

ON JUNE 3

Jets Will Join 1962 Sesqui Celebrating

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.
Hartley Sports Editor

Columbus Mayor Ralston Westlake and the local Jets are getting ready to put on their party hats to whoop it up together during this city's Sesquicentenial celebration.

They're not at all sure, at this stage of the game, just how they'll do their whooping, but they are sure that the sports-minded people here will benefit.

June 3 is the big day they're waiting for and, among other things, old Red Bird (Jets' predecessors) team members are expected to be on hand at the stadium.

It's really quite a logical mix-up. It would be called a "natural" on Madison-av. (Maybe it's even called a 'natural' on Broad-st, I don't know).

You see, Jet Stadium will be 30 years old on June 3.

The Jets and the Columbus Sesqui Committee, headed by Mayor Westlake, have made arrangements for an Anniversary Day on that day—at the stadium.

The local team will play the Atlanta Crackers a double-header that Sunday starting at 1:30 p.m.

During the middle of the twin-bill, all of the Columbus players who were on the team on June 2, 1933 and representatives from the four championship teams at the stadium (1933, 1937, 1941 and 1961) have been invited to attend this Anniversary Day get-together.

"The people of Columbus are sports-minded folks," said the mayor during a press meeting last week. "I'm sure the combination of this city's sesquicentennial with baseball will have much appeal."

Harold Cooper, general manager of the ball club, said that the idea has been thought about "for over a year."

He added that that first year in the stadium, 1932, "was one of the greatest heydays in baseball." A reunion such as this will be a first in Columbus baseball history.

And, the fans are in for a real treat.

COLUMBUS MAYOR Ralston Westlake, left, shakes hands with Columbus Jets' General Manager Harold Cooper showing that they'll work hand-in-hand in the upcoming Sesquicentennial celebration for this city. A special day at Jet Stadium will be held June 3 (the 30th anniversary of the ball park) in connection with Columbus' 150th birthday.

Oldtime favorites like Paul Dean, Bob Klinger, Carmen (Bunker) Hill, Nick Cullop, Burgess Whitehead, Otto Bluege, Billy Southworth, Nemo Leibold, Pat Crawford, Tony Rensa and Kenny Ash have already accept the invitation.

Enos Slaughter will represent the 1937 champions and it is hoped that Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, presently a Baltimore coach, will represent the 1941 Junior World Champs. Several of the 1962 Jet players will represent the 1961 winners.

International League President Thomas Richardson will attend as will Sue Zollinger, Columbus Sesquicentennial Queen. The Sesquicentennial Medallion will be on sale at Jet Stadium that day.

Just how the former Jet players will be recognized June 3 hasn't been established yet.

Cooper suggested that each one be introduced and "tell all that they've done since leaving the Columbus team."

A scribe on hand for the press conference quipped:

"Coop, if you have them tell ALL they've done since leaving Columbus, you'll have a packed house for that doubleheader."

Floor and furniture varnishes ordinarily will not stand up under exterior exposure. Check the label before you brush it on.

Whitehall Lass Is First 'Miss Jet'

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.
Hartley Sports Editor

A Whitehall High School graduate thinks gals who don't understand baseball are "big stiffs."

Betty Shade, [illegible] Elaine-rd, has been named Miss Columbus Jet — the first ever. She was graduated from Whitehall in 1961.

It's not all glamour for this glamour-gal, though. "I really am a very big baseball fan," she said. "Especially for the Jets. . . I wouldn't miss a game."

And, to make sure that she doesn't, the Jet front office presented her with a season pass —in the press box, boy! If nothing else, fewer sportswriters have been seen sleeping over their typewriters up there this year.

Actually, Miss Shade is surrounded by pomp and circumstance in her reign as queen. She must be on hand for most all official ceremonies at the Jet home on W. Mound-st.

For example, her most recent duty was taking part in the International League pennant raising ceremony a few weeks ago.

How did it all happen for this pretty Whitehall miss? She explained it this way:

"Everything started with a contest last August. The entrants were narrowed down to 15 finalists and our pictures were put up at Jet Stadium. Then, it was up to the fans—they voted for us and I came out on top."

The contest was sponsored by a local TV station and Miss Shade reports that they've decided not to run a contest in the years to come.

So, besides being "Miss Columbus Jet For 1962," she may be "Miss Columbus Jet Forever."

"This is the first time I've ever entered a contest," she said. "And I'm glad I entered this one. It's been a lot of fun and hasn't any definite plans representing the Jets this year . . . I love it."

The 18-year-old brown-haired about her future. She's currently working as a filist for State Auto Insurance.

While at Whitehall, she was active in the Girls' Athletic Association there, so baseball's old stuff with her. "I have learned quite a bit since I started attending all the home games, though," she said. "It's a great sport."

She's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Shade and has a sister, Sherri (16), and a brother, Jerry (24).

GAA Sponsors Track Session

A girls' invitational track meet will be held at Pleasant View High School at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, May 19.

The eight schools participating are Central, East, Upper Arlington, West, Bishop Hartley, Grove City, Franklin Heights and Pleasant View.

The objective of this meet is to give girls a chance to compete on their own level with others in the area.

Department Will Honor Local Teams

The Columbus Recreation Department will honor adult sports teams at its annual banquet at Whetstone Recreation Center on May 23, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Westinghouse, manager Robert McQueen, 308 Phillipi-rd; Police AA, manager Jim Blackburn, 2272 Minnesota; West Park Methodist, manager Will Herron, 325 S. Columbian; Columbus Water Heater Service, manager Louis Patterson, 675 Demorest-rd; Westinghouse, manager William Chappelear, 61 S. Davis.

ORIENTAL FLAVOR IN SESQUICENTENNIAL PARADE

FRANK SAUNDERS, 978 Front-st, owner of an antique shop and museum at that address, gives pretty Faye Parker, 380 W. Lane-av, a ride in the successor to the rickshs. This model's driven like a bicycle and is expected to be a highlight of the upcoming Sesquicentennial parade in this city. WHAT PRICE LITTLE FEET?

Some things really make me unhappy and one of my pet peeves right now is pointed toed shoes in small children's sizes. It isn't all right, but I can understand grown-ups following styles and wearing shoes that ruin their feet just to be in style, but, when babies two or three years old are put into pointed toed shoes and start developing corns and bunions, I think something should be done about it.

All of the better makes of shoes that I have seen confine their tapered toes to sizes above twelve and the small sizes have broad toes. In cheaper shoes of the variety sold in the shopping centers and in "cripple yourself" shoe stores, they try to make baby shoes look grown-up. Unfortunately baby feet have nice straight toes almost square across. Don't let looks ruin your child's feet. Foot troubles are so permanent.

munity in the form of youth-serving or community-improving projects. Not one cent from the newspaper sale (the club's chief fund-raising project) is used for administrative expenses, they declared.

Fagan expressed concern, that, despite the generous support of other service clubs and civic-minded men in the area, there might be a shortage of manpower to distribute all 15,000 papers quickly. He invited any men over age 19 who wished to help in this vital phase of the club's work to telephone his home and volunteer for the job of "Lions Tale" salesman. To enlist, telephone BR. 9-7669.

Co-chairman Foster added that there is no set price for the newspaper delivered to your door tomorrow evening. "Anything from a nickel to a $50 bill," he suggested. Then he added, "In fact, if you can't give anything, please accept our newspaper with a smile and read it carefully cover to cover. We know that you will want to contribute next year once you understand the scope of the good works your donation goes to assist."

Auxiliary Helping Too

Serving the hungry "newspaperboys" at West High School cafeteria before they are assigned their routes will be members of the Hilltop Lions Auxiliary. Chairladies of the serving program are Mrs. Melva Tipton and Mrs. Keith Householder. There will also be refreshments for the men when they return with their newspaper sacks and collections.

Vice-Presidents Moving Up

Omitted, by error, from last week's story of new officers elected by the Hilltop Lions Club for the club year beginning July 1 were all three of the vice-presidents. These are the men who will eventually "move through the chairs" and assume the presidency and are "keystones" of club progress for the coming four years, according to President-Elect Galvy Gordon.

Named first vice-president was John W. Garber, 1006 Savannah-dr. Garber, sales manager for Hilltop Westgate Realty Corp., has been exceptionally active over the years in the work of the boys and girls committee.

Moving up to the second vice-presidency was Edwin W. Eberhard, 2724 St. Joseph-av. Eberhard, who operates his own insurance agency at 2997 W. Broad-st, has served on most club committees and is a former secretary of the club.

The new third vice-president, Attorney Robert W. Phillips, has offices at 2494 W. Broad-st. A charter member of the club and veteran committee worker, he lives at 3509 Clime-rd.

Spring Favorites Now Abundant At Markets

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Vegetables — Greenhouse tomatoes, homegrown asparagus, potatoes, green onions.

Mrs. Franks

Fruits — Valencia oranges, rubarb, strawberries, canned peaches.

Protein Foods — Fryers, eggs, chunk roasts, round steak, Boston butts, dairy products, milk.

The spring crop of greenhouse tomatoes is here! Ohio greenhouse growers report peak harvest during the next couple of weeks and good supply for the most of June. So quality tomatoes are available to make beautiful salads, in fact, anyway you use tomatoes they add color and appeal to your springtime menus.

Actually, we are lucky consumers in Ohio. This state leads the nation in production of greenhouse tomatoes with nearly 600 acres under glass. Cleveland, Toledo and Cincinnati areas have the largest acreage, but many of the tomatoes you'll buy this weekend were produced in the Columbus area. Local growers report a good sized crop of fine quality and prices are now below early season levels.

As you shop, remember that greenhouse tomatoes are sold according to size and quality and are priced accordingly. "Unclassified" ones can be a good buy for such uses as tossed salads, if there is not too much waste. Keep in mind, too, that the color may be red or pink, depending upon the variety.

Asparagus is another spring favorite you can enjoy a few more weeks. Freshness is important for top quality, so take advantage of the local supply while you can. Local growers take great care in grading and cooling their asparagus before it leaves the farm so that it holds its freshness at the markets. There's still time to tuck away a few packages in your freezer.

Rhubarb is still regarded as a "spring tonic" by many folks. Supplies are at seasonal peak now, so you're smart to take advantage of locally-grown quality and prices. The stalks are unusually tender and colorful this year. Again, don't forget about the freezer; rhubarb is the easiest of all fruits to freeze.

Strawberries — surely one of the best of the many good things that come in the spring — are more plentiful and prices lower as harvest gets underway in new area. Arkansas, Tennessee and N. Carolina are now active shippers along with California and Louisiana. The local season is still at least three weeks away.

Pineapples are in fairly large supply, coming mainly from Puerto Rico and Mexico. Normal supply patterns have been changed somewhat by the ban on Cuban imports, formerly a major supply source.

In the weeks ahead you can expect more green beans, beets, sweet corn, cucumbers, radishes and green onions. The lettuce situation shows improvement with harvest of the spring crop now underway in California. Cabbage prices are lower than for sometime, but supplies are still below normal for the season.

Akron Thrills Await Local Derby Champ

Why? Because if he is the winner of the 1962 Columbus Soap Box Derby, conducted here on July 15, he will be eligible for four days of adventure, thrills and fun when he travels to Akron to compete in the Silver Anniversary All-American Derby, Aug. 4.

According to Derby Director Tom Hawk, the next "tech talk" clinic will be held this Saturday, May 19, at Sunshine Recreation Center 667 Sullivant-av. As before, Ken Holmboe, of Minerva Park, winner of the 1947 All-American Derby, will be on hand to guide the boys right as he talks on "Steering and Braking System."

To date, there have been more than 170 registrations for the local derby. A more accurate measurement is the number of wheel sets which have been sold by Chevrolet dealers. So far, 60 have been sold.

Hawk has also said that the Broad-st hill course is being measured and readied for action. According to Hawk, the 900-foot Broad-st hill run is "ideal" because it closely matches Derby Downs at Akron.

The trip to Akron to represent Columbus in the 25th running of the famed coasting classic is the top prize in the local derby. At Akron, the champion will vie with youngsters from all over the world for a share of $30,000 in college scholarships.

During Derby week at Akron, he will be entertained on a scale befitting his championship status. He will stay at Derbytown, a 205-acre boys' camp in the hills and woods near Akron. A round of sports, tryout of the famous Derby Downs racing slope, planned recreation, good food and a chance for last-minute adjustments on his racer will be arranged for the local winner.

Upon arrival in Akron, he will be taken down the main street with a police escort. After registration at derby headquarters, he will be taken to Derbytown to meet fellow champs and to enjoy the camping facilities.

Swimming and boating are provided at Lake Y-Noah and the camp is equipped with horse riding facilities, baseball diamonds, tennis courts, rifle and archery ranges, a recreation hall, a modern mess hall and a fully staffed medical unit. Trained YMCA counselors supervise all activities.

WATER ACTIVITIES: Swimming, diving, life-saving classes, boating, canoeing and fishing are daily activities in natural Lake Mac-O-Chee, of Camp Alfred L. Willson, the YMCA's summer camp for boys, which opens Sunday, June 17.

Y's Camp Willson To Open Its 50th Season June 17

The YMCA's Camp Alfred L. Willson opens its 50th camping season Saturday, June 17. All boys between the ages of eight and 17 are eligible to attend the 337-acre summer camp, which is about three miles from Bellefontaine, a short drive from Columbus.

Camp Willson lies in a scenic, wooded area, ideal for the outdoor needs of boys. Its sparkling, 70-acre Lake Mac-O-Chee affords swimming, boating, canoeing and fishing.

The buildings include modern dining and recreation halls, an up-to-the-minute dispensary headed by a registered nurse, screened sanitary facilities with adjacent showers, and substantial cabins housing 12 campers with a counselor.

A trained camp director is on duty at all times. The camp staff is made up of college graduates and undergraduates with previous camping experience. Each counselor is an outstanding leader carefully selected by camp officials.

Camp Willson's program "Adventure Through Nature," is planned to give each camper the experience of learning and doing together.

Recreational activities include archery, cookouts, chuckwagon feeds, and arts and crafts. Evening programs include camp fires, talent shows and others.

Food of the best quality is served attractively and in generous amounts.

Camp Willson is a non-profit operation. Funds from the United Community Council and camp fees are used to provide the best facilities and to maintain the camp.

Complete information on Camp Willson can be obtained by writing or calling Camp Headquarters, YMCA, 40 W. Long-st, CA. 4-1131.

Gandolf Will Suceed Keim

Stewart A. Gandolf, president of Gandolf Ford Sales, Inc., 2300 E. Main-st, has succeeded Robert Keim as the automobile dealers' representative on the board of trustees of the Greater Columbus Sunday Association.

Keim, of Gager-Keim Ford, Inc., was a charter member of the association board.

'Mystery Driver' Visits Heigle

Roy Heigle, who operates Heigle's Ashland Service Station at 2541 W. Broad-st, has received a cash bonus award.

He was visited recently by one of Ashland Oil's "mystery drivers," and as a result was awarded a cash prize for his good customer service and the cleanliness of his station by L. Gordon Walker, division manager for Ashland Oil.

Mystery drivers, who remain unknown except to one or two company representatives, travel Ashland Oil's entire 11-state marketing area visiting service stations. Driving unmarked cars, they at no time indicate to the service station dealer that they are checking station appearance and service.

Following each visit the mystery driver mails a report card to the company's headquarters in Ashland, Ky. Dealers who qualify promptly receive an award.

Heigle is now a seven-time winner.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

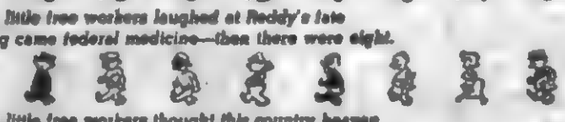
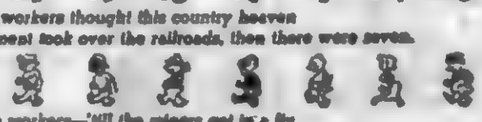
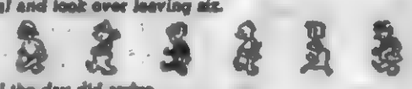
THE STORY OF TEN LITTLE FREE WORKERS



THESE ARE THE WORKERS

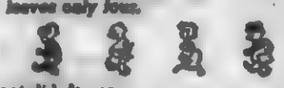


Ten little free workers in this country fine and fair.
But if you cherish your freedom—worker have a care!
Ten little free workers—Reddy was doing fine
Until the socialists got him—then there were nine.



Nine little free workers laughed at Reddy's fate
Along came federal medicine—then there were eight.

Eight little free workers thought this country heaven
But the government took over the railroads, then there were seven.



Seven little free workers—'till the miners got in a fix.
Uncle said coal's essential and took over leaving six.

Six little free workers 'till the day did arrive
The steel mills too were federalized—then there were five.

Five little free workers—but the farmers are free no more
The farms have been collectivized—that leaves only four.

Four little free workers till the government did decree
All must have free legal advice—then there were three.

Three little free workers—the number is getting few.
But with government groceries selling food—then there were two.

Two little free workers—our story's almost done,
With clerks at work in federal stores—that leaves only one.

One little free worker—the reporter son-of-a-gun
Mustn't criticize government—so now there are none.

Ten little workers—but they are no longer free
They work when and where ordered, and at a fixed rate you see.
And it all could have been prevented if they'd only seen fit to agree
And work together instead of saying "It never can happen to me!"

Yes . . . this could happen to you. This little story could come true unless each of us works to preserve free enterprise. What can you do? Write your Congressmen and ask him to keep government out of business.

Top-Flight Race Drivers To Compete At Scioto Downs

Much has been said about the quality of the trotters and pacers that will appear at Scioto Downs during the 1962 night harness racing season that runs from June 1 through July 31, and the responsibility for the lofty position of these outstanding standardbearers belongs to a group of the nation's finest trainers and drivers.

When the books closed on the early closing stake races at Scioto Downs last week, the top 10 drivers in the sport had entered their best racing stock for an appearance during the coming season. The 250 nominations coupled with the 319 entries in the challenge stakes swelled the number of horses entered this year to a record breaking [redacted].

Heading the list of top drivers is Bob Farrington, the nation's leading race winning driver, with 201 victories last year. Stanley Dancer, the sport's leading money winning driver last year with earnings of more than $600,000, will make first appearance on June 2 with Little Brown Jug winner Henry T. Adios.

Curly Smart, who ended the Scioto Downs season last year with an amazing .325 driving percentage to win the leading driver title, will be back this year.

Bob Seabrook, who won the MARA at Scioto last year, and finished third in the country behind Farrington and Stan Dancer, will campaign at Scioto.

Also on the list of outstanding drivers who will compete at Scioto Downs this summer are the names of Del Miller and Johnny Simpson, the only two drivers to win both the Hambletonian and the Little Brown Jug in the same year; Joe O'Brien, consistent leading grand circuit driver year after year; Billy Haughton, who has led the nation's drivers in money earnings for the past 10 years; Jim Hackett, who drove Lang Hanover to his season record of 1:57 4/5; Dick Buxton, a great central Ohio favorite; Jimmy Wingfield, Clint Hodgins, Harry Pownall, Carl Larsen, and Eddie Cobb.

HURRICANES TO COMPETE AT TULIP FESTIVAL

THE COLUMBUS HURRICANE Drum and Baton Corps, under the direction of Thomas E. Hartman, will carry Columbus' hopes for the 1962 Tulip Festival Senior Corps Championship in Holland, Mich., Saturday, May 19. They will represent Ohio in the Tulip Time Parade of Bands following the competition. The Hurricanes won the Capital City Open National Corps Championship in April. It was their first contest of the year in their new uniforms. They also will be featured in the West Side Jubilee Parade Monday, June 4, at 6:30 p.m., ending up at Sunshine Park.

COMIC VALET IN INTRIGUE

'Figaro' Is Coming To Mershon

Figaro, famous comic valet, will sing his way in and out of intrigues in the University Musical Production of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" opening at Mershon Auditorium Thursday, May 24.

But Figaro's problems began before he achieved fame in the Mozart farce. He is not an original Mozart character.

Figaro was created by the French playwright, Beaumarchais, in "The Barber of Seville". In the French work, Figaro, the barber who knew everyone in town, helps his friend, Count Almaviva, to woo and win the local heiress, Rosina.

As his reward for helping to bring the couple together, the count makes Figaro his valet.

It is here that Mozart picks up the thread of the story. In "The Marriage of Figaro" we see the couple some years later. The amorous count has lost interest in his wife and is pursuing Figaro's fiancee—his wife's maid.

The plot weaves in and out of entanglements as the foursome becomes involved in hilarious scenes of mistaken identity.

Yet underlying the farcical story is Mozart's insight into Rosina's unhappy situation, climaxed in the well-known aria, "Dove Sono." In this plaintive song, she asks where they have gone, the beautiful days when she and her husband were happy in their love.

"Figaro" will be presented in three performances at Mershon Auditorium Thursday, May 24, and Friday, May 25, at 8 p.m. and Saturday, May 26, at 2:30 p.m.

Wilson, gave the Falcons their

Tickets to "The Marriage of Figaro" are available at the Mershon Auditorium box office from 12:30 to 5 p.m. daily, and phone reservations can be obtained by calling CY. 3-2295. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Older Talent In Cap Play

Capital University will combine the elements of "town" and "gown" in its presentation of Kurt Weill's "Street Scene" May 19-20 in Mees auditorium on campus.

For the first time, Capital has invited experienced singers and actors from the community to fill some of the leads and small parts which require people older than college age. The combination of the community and student talent has resulted in a most fortuitous casting of such a large and demanding cast as "Street Scene" with its many types, ages and nationalities.

Under the musical direction of Professor Wilbur Crist, the opera will be staged at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 19, and 2:30 Sunday, May 20. Stage director is Patricia Gaines. Reserved seat tickets are available by telephoning BR. 5-6611, Ext. 31, or writing Box 628, Capital University.

At Ease . . .

TIMELY TIPS . . . FOR PLEASURE

By BEVERLY FLEISHMAN

Everybody tries to get in the act at the Clock Restaurant, 161 N. High. Its back room, hosted by organist Buddy Cotter, is a gathering place for the "Thwgstgussate Society"—translated to mean Talented Performers Who Had Guts Enough To Get Up and Solo at the Clock.

For the last seven years there has been a tradition of informal group and solo singing for anyone who feels so inclined.

Amiable Mr. Cotter encourages customers to use the rolling mike and vocalize their favorite tunes whether it be an Irish ditty or Italian opera.

Beverly

A stopping place for Columbus show people, the Clock boasts of some of their well-known clientele. When "Music Man" was in town, the cast entertained with tunes from the show.

There is often an international flavor when some of their annual visitors, including a tulip dealer from Holland, get together to sing in their native tongues.

As soon as he knows your song, Buddy will greet you with a few stanzas when you walk in the door. "We like to have a good time and make all feel at home," he comments.

The popular organist has been playing at the Clock for seven years. He gives out with old-time favorites, popular songs, and ballads — in short, anything you can sing to.

Wednesday night is traditionally Independent Players night. If you want to catch a sneak preview of some of the "Li'l Abner" music, stop there about 10:30.

Les Paul says his arrangements are born in basements or garages (never in recording studios).

The "How High the Moon" man and his wife, Mary Ford, bring their unique sounding arrangements to the Everglades, 4250 W. Broad, Friday and Saturday, May 17 and 18.

Their trademark sound is created by taping a melody over and over again, first bass rhythms, then chords, then harmonies.

With this technique, Les Paul's guitar and the voice of his wife are multiplied into many voices and guitars all singing simultaneously. Well, well, well, well.

JDC Principal To Lose Job In Reorganization

James W. Grant, Juvenile Diagnostic Center superintendent, has announced that the job of school principal will be abolished, along with "several of the positions."

Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, principal, was the target of many of the employe complaints that caused the March probe by the advisory council of the state juvenile division. Mrs. Miller denied most of the accusations.

However, Grant said Mrs. Miller was included in the general reduction of seven employes only because her job is being abolished. The number of teachers will be reduced from 14 to seven.

In the reorganization the emphasis on educational procedure will be more compliant with the youngster's length of stay, instead of the more standard approach.

This is the first major change in JUD's program since the probe.

Hearing, Speech Center Aids 81 From West Side

Fifty-five persons from the West Side and 31 persons from the Hilltop area were served by the Hearing and Speech Center in the past year. It was reported as a part of the "Better Hearing and Speech" observance being sponsored by the hearing agency which is supported by the United Appeal.

Beneficiaries include children and adults making use of the hearing and speech therapy programs.

In all, the Hearing and Speech Center served 1077 persons in the past year. The agency recently moved to a new location in the Children's Hospital Building, Donaldson-st, entrance.

During the observance, the Hearing Center is stressing preservation of hearing and speech faculties, and the importance of initial preventive measures.

The agency reports that according to national statistics about one out of every 10 persons suffer from some form of hearing loss. This means an estimated 60,000 in Franklin County. As for speech problems, it is estimated that 12 to 15 per cent of kindergarten age children are so afflicted; and four to five per cent of the people from fifth grade age through adulthood.

The Hearing Center welcomes visits to the agency as well as phone calls to ask for further information on speech or hearing problems. The phone number is [illegible].

WE RETIRED TO PORT CHARLOTTE FLORIDA On $215 A Month
"We love it." This was the sentiment expressed by one couple about Port Charlotte, Florida. And if you were to go there yourself you'd get pretty much the same answer from just about everyone there. The couple we questioned is living in a 2-bedroom home on an income of only $215 a month. In addition, because everything they want is right in Port Charlotte, they manage to save $10 a month. You, too can retire to Port Charlotte on a modest income, and enjoy vacation-time living the year round. Let us show you slide films, color photos. AD 61193 (E-1)

Old Guard Presentation To Be May 19 At Jet Stadium

Central Ohioans will have a chance to see a colorful Army unit when the 125-man Old Guard presents a free show at Jet Stadium on Saturday, May 19, at 8 p.m.

The Old Guard, ceremonial unit of the 3d Infantry, performed for President Kennedy's inaugural. The unit will highlight the Armed Forces Day - Columbus Sesquicentennial celebrations in Columbus this weekend.

Wearing costumes of the period, and performing maneuvers, the Old Guard recreates the entire history of America, and the role the Army has played in keeping the country free.

Not only will the Old Guard perform at the free Saturday show, but the unit will lead the Armed Forces Day-Columbus Sesquicentennial parade in downtown Columbus Sunday afternoon, starting at 2 p.m.

The unit performs such pageants as:

FLAG STORY. The unit honors the 50 state flags and Old Glory. America's history is told through marching formations with expert precision and vibrant color.

ARMY STORY. Using authentic uniforms, the major military campaigns the Army has engaged in during its 175 years are recalled. The U. S. Army has 146 battle streamers, each designating an armed fight.

COMBAT. A team of Judo experts will put on a thrilling exhibition of how Army troops are taught to defend themselves in hand-to-hand combat.

BLACK MANUAL. With the lights darkened, the unit will move through intricate maneuvers with only gloves, bayonets and leggings illuminated by fluorescent light. The appearance is striking.

BOND ISSUE?

Money Holds Back Traffic Flasher Plan

By JOHN AUBLE, JR.

City Traffic Engineer Jack Gallagher may get his winking-blinking city dream yet, but as things stand now, it could be up to the people to vote on it.

Gallagher is trying to get school flasher signals installed at all school zones in the city — both public and parochial. The cost of such a project has been estimated at $402,712.

Both the commission and city council think that that's a pretty "flashy" figure, too. So flashy, in fact, that the problem is now where the money will come from.

During a traffic commission meeting last week, Chairman William Neno indicated that Mayor Ralston Westlake felt that the program should be started by installing as many signal lights as possible under the Gas Tax Revenue monies.

Gallagher contended, however, that after operating costs came out of revenue there wouldn't be much left for traffic flasher installations.

But, there are some alternatives.

The commission, according to Assistant Traffic Engineer Roger Hatton, is thinking about raising the money through a bond issue.

"As it stands right now," Hatton said Tuesday, "we'd be hard-pressed taking care of maintenance charges of the lights. This is a sizable operation — something like 279 installations — and presents quite a problem."

If Gas Tax Revenue funds could be used, the lights would be put up on a "piecemeal" basis and this brings with it its share of headaches, too, Hatton explained.

"Once we start erecting a flasher here and a flasher there, we'll get calls from PTA groups demanding lights at their schools rather than at other schools."

The commission might be able to get something like $250,000 included in the Capital Improvement Budget but, Gallagher said, "we'd have a big selling job ahead of us."

It was suggested that it would be a good idea for the commission to get the various PTA groups behind the flasher light movement.

The police department, making speed studies in various school zones to learn the different needs, thinks that this would be a good idea, too, and a commission representative is expected to attend a meeting of the PTA presidents in "the near future."

Ralph Wolf, an advisory member of the commission, stressed that concentration should "be aimed upon the overall program so as to avoid the selfish interests of any one particular PTA group."

Our Jane

All the associates of our firm as well as hundreds of other people are saddened this week by the news of the sudden death of Jane Jones.

The first time I met Jane and Henry Jones was back about 1927 when I was part-time employe of The Hilltop Record when the offices of the paper were upstairs of what was then the old Cussins & Hartsough store, now the Beaver Press.

Soon thereafter Henry quit work as a railroad shop man and became our newspaper pressman, which job he held until a few years ago when he retired. In the meantime Jane was for many years one of our loyal employes in the classified department and even today people call for Jane.

Most people are at some time in their lives blessed with the very special friendship of someone. So it has been in our association with Henry and Jane.

No finer personal friends could one want. No finer associates can be found.

Many lives have been enriched by the contacts with Jane and Henry.

At this point it is difficult to give Jane up but it is wonderful to know that she will live on in the lives of many people.

Large Construction Projects Coming To West Side, Hilltop

A new building boom in the West Side and Hilltop was reflected in the agenda of the City Planning Commission Wednesday morning.

Up for review were four apartment buildings, a [illegible] million dollar nursing and convalescent home, a 40-lane bowling alley, and a new subdivision.

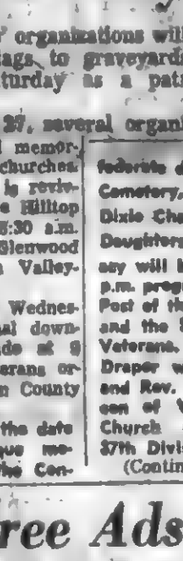
Favorable action by the commission was expected for construction of Columbus' first new nursing and convalescent home in 40 years. Construction of this 160-bed, one-story, three-wing fireproof brick structure is to start June 1. It will be erected upon a three and one-half acre tract facing on Greenlawn-av just west of the freeway.

The new nursing home will be owned and operated by GTD, Inc. whose principals are Warren E. Wittmann, Edward Walker and Otis Stewart. Virginia Homes, Inc., 3501 Moler-rd, will build it at a cost of $573,000. Warren E. Wittmann, Virginia Homes president, Central Ohio's largest builder of homes and apartments, called it "a major breakthrough in care for the sick and aged and private industry's answer to the long-felt need for better nursing homes."

"This is just the first of several which our organization is planning to build in Columbus and other communities," he [illegible]

The home will be named Murray Hill Manor and will be open to both men and women. Both private and semi-private accommodations will be available and all rooms will have adjoining baths. Among the other features will be guest and patient lounges decorated complete with television and air conditioning, hobby and game rooms, a beauty and barber shop, a snack bar, a spacious dining room, and a modern stainless steel kitchen.

A planned program of leisure-time activities including evening movies is to be directed by the nursing home administrator. A staff of 34 full-time employes will minister to the physical and social needs of the patients. Registered nurses are to be on duty 24 hours a day. Murray Hill Manor landscaping will include an outdoor patio, scenic pools and garden [illegible]



According to the planner, the project has been approved by all interested government and social agencies and will be completed before Nov. 1. It is being locally financed by Virginia Homes through Dollar Federal and Loan Associations.

Real Estate Broker George W. Schaaf petitioned the rezoning of four acres at 3779 Sullivant-av for a proposed Western Lanes bowling establishment. He represents Frank Yassenoff who also planned another bowling center on Georgesville-rd, less than half mile away. Harold and Elizabeth Derrer own the land.

The case was held for a traffic study and letter of intent.

Specifications outlined a two-story frame building to house 40 automatic lanes, a banquet room, lounges, office, and playrooms. Frontage is to be 425 feet

The site for the event will be the Sunshine Recreation Center. Right now the merchants of the West Side are distributing discount tickets which, with a dime, will be good for nearly any ride on the "midway" by the kids.

Starting the event will be a Monday evening parade of candidates for West Side queen.

"Hurry, hurry, hurry, girls, time's a 'wastin'," warned Don McCann, director at Sunshine Recreation Center. "You only have until Monday, May 28, to apply for entry into the West Side Queen contest. Get in touch with me at the center before that date."

According to Clarence Scott, chairman of the Jubilee Committee, any high school girl is eligible. There will be room for 25 candidates.

The girls will lead the Monday night parade which will officially open the 1962 Jubilee which extends until June 9. Girls will ride in convertibles donated by Wet Side auto dealers and owners, according to parade marshal Don Farrow.

Dick Rodenfels

Rodenfel's Chevrolet Marks 38th Anniversary

Automatic dashes, coil ignition, four wheel brakes—even the convenience of mechanically operated windshield wipers—hadn't made their appearance back in 1934 when Rodenfels Chevrolet opened its doors for business.

High pressure tires, carrying 60 to 70 pounds of air, were standard equipment, although there were rumors in the automotive world of the development of a new "balloon" casing, which would ease much of the pain of bumpy roads. Most speedometers gauged to 60 miles per hour. Higher speeds than that were just plain suicidal in the opinion of most folks.

It had only been a decade before Rodenfels established their agency at 2396 W. Broad-st that the new vehicle had been known as "the horseless carriage."

Under the guidance of Leo Rodenfels the firm prospered and in 1932 moved to more spacious quarters at 1162 W. Broad-st. Increased sales and the lush post-war market compelled the agency to seek even larger facilities and in 1948 occupied its new, modern building at 555 W. Broad-st.

In marking the company's 38th anniversary, Dick Rodenfels, president, paid tribute to the policies adopted by his father, which have been carefully followed throughout the history of the organization.

"His insistence upon a fair deal both for the customer and the firm has been a basic concept which we have faithfully followed. Our many repeat sales attest to the long-range wisdom of this policy," he said. "Some of our customers have purchased as many as 20 cars from us."

Howard Lloyd, general sales-manager, who joined the firm in 1930, commenting further, said: "The sale of an automobile by Rodenfels constitutes only the first phase of a transaction. Thereafter we make it our business to see that the customer gets full value from his purchase. We maintain a full-time customer relations department."

Compared to a scant half-dozen persons at Rodenfels in 1934, the firm now employs about 120 people.

Complete service facilities have always been maintained by the firm, which has now expanded to include both day and night operation.

Local Girl Scouts Preparing For July Roundup In Vermont

Ten days of camping in Button State Park, Vt., are in the the offing for five Hartley Newspapers area Girl Scouts this summer.

The International Girl Scout Senior Roundup will start July 18 for more than 10,000 young women from all over the world. The local girls will be among some 20 central Ohio Trefoil Council representatives.

The purpose of the roundup is to bring together teen-age girls of different nationalities, races and creeds to promote international understanding and friendship.

The scouters from the Hartley Newspapers area who will attend are Joan Von Jasinski, 3672 Patmer, Grove City; Karen Longhenry, 3209 Stephen-dr S. and Karen Predmore, 3217 Stephen-dr S., of Hilltop; Bambi Markham, 777 Pierce-av, Whitehall, and Betsy Brust, 816 S. Roosevelt, Bexley.

All five have been "cramming" for the campores, since November, studying the history, the geology, the natural resources, the industrial and sociological aspects of central Ohio and the Columbus area to arm them with enough knowledge of their home area to be able to discuss it with others from different parts of the country and the world.

They've also practiced camping and outdoor living techniques for the excursion.

From June 26 through July 1, a "shakedown" campout will be held at the Blendon Woods Metropolitan Park as a review and final preparation before going to Vermont. An open house will be held at the campsite Saturday, June 30.

The roundup will feature the celebration of the 50th anniversary of Girl Scouting in the United States.

The local girls were chosen according to personal characteristics as judged by a submitted application, and on their practical skill and ability as campers at a "Little Roundup" held last August.

Super Roads Can Pay Off

Total investment in Ohio highway improvements since January, 1959, will pass the billion-dollar mark in June, Highway Director E. S. Preston announced as National Highway Week opened May 20th.

Following the theme "Better Highways Now Save Lives, Time and Money," Preston released a study of the three-and-a half year highway investment program since 1959 that details the highway improvements provided by the program and the user benefits that can be expected from them. One local comparison was interesting, especially to those of us who consider our selves "Mr. Average Motorist."

A trip from Mound-st to Goodale-st on old Sandusky-st formerly took seven minutes and there were eight stops. Now it's done in four, there are no stops, and the distance is a little shorter. The average speed was 24 mph, now it's 45. Stops and slow driving are costly. Each freeway trip now saves the driver three minutes and an estimated 21 cents. What's especially significant is that the daily mileage now amounts to 64,482, compared to the former average of 34,130.

"It would take nearly 17 years," Preston said, "to recover a billion dollars invested at 6 per cent interest, but Ohio highway users will get their billion highway dollars back in about 10 years."

He refers to savings to the motorist accruing from reduced operating costs and accident losses.

This is all well and good. We are for saving money any way it can be done. But, these savings could have been far greater, it would appear, had there been better advance planning and coordination on the part of Federal, state and local people.

Here again, the Sandusky-st expressway is a good example. The concrete was hardly dry when word came that the overpasses were too low, and failed to satisfy Federal specifications for transport of missiles. The pavement was torn up, excavations made and new concrete poured — all at great additional expense o the taxpayer.

And now, only a couple of years after the road was built it has been declared too narrow. More lanes and ramps are scheduled to be added in 1965, involving, no doubt, much duplication of the original construction effort .

A money-saving road, yes. But at what a cost!

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK:

It's Good Ole Strawberry Time Again

By ESTELLE B. FRANKS

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits — Strawberries, Valencia oranges, rhubarb, frozen orange juice.

The season of many good things is here, and surely one of the best is the appearance of juicy, red, luscious strawberries. This year's heavy production of strawberries is now moving to market in volume — well over half of the annual supply is marketed during May and June.

Mrs. Franks

During these months, strawberries come to our markets from many areas. Arkansas, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and California are supplying our markets now. By next week and through early June, strawberries from Ohio, Maryland, New Jersey and Kentucky will be available, while late season supplies will come largely from Michigan and California.

Ohio berries usually come to market in heaviest volume during the first three weeks of June. At present, prospects for this year's Ohio crop are good and first harvest is expected late this month. Weather during the next few weeks will influence the beginning and duration of the season and the size of the crop. At this writing, rain is badly needed.

Retail prices during the strawberry season should be reasonable this year, if present prospects materialize. You can expect prices to be lowest in June, during peak season in Kentucky and Ohio.

Quality and condition of strawberries varies a great deal, making careful selection important. Low prices sometimes are merely a reflection of poor condition. Select strawberries that have a fresh, clean, bright appearance and a full red color. Avoid those that are overripe or decayed. They should also be free from moisture, dirt and trash and should have the cap attached.

Since strawberries are quite perishable, they should be used within a day or two after purchase. Store them unwashed in the refrigerator and wash them just before using.

Frozen Orange Juice

This year's pack of frozen orange concentrate is expected to reach a record high—probably 96 to 98 million gallons. By comparison, last year's pack totaled 86½ million gallons. Present stocks are about a fourth larger than a year ago. Processing of the Valencia oranges continues heavy in Florida. In fact, May 1 crop estimates have revised the Valencia forecast upward from earlier, indicating even larger supplies for fresh use and processing than thought. A supply of this size will mean relatively low retail prices in the coming months. Demand for the frozen concentrate has been good and is rising, however. Recent U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates say nearly a third of all families buy orange juice in this form.

State Parks, Forests Offer Tranquility

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

Spring is the time to visit the Mohican country and Pleasant Valley.

Other seasons are good, but if you have not been to this section of Ohio you should not hesitate further. For people interested in the outdoors the area around Mohican Memorial State Forest, Ashland County; Clear Fork State Park; Pleasant Hill Reservoir and the scenic hemlock-lined gorge below the dam; Malabar Farm and Kingswood Gardens hold a great deal of appeal. A Sunday afternoon's drive would not be nearly enough time for all of these, but it would be a start.

From this area, the best route to take is the freeway north, Route 71, to State Route 97 which goes through Bellville to the state forest. Scenic drives wind through pine plantations and on a hilltop is the memorial which houses a great book containing names of all of Ohio's World War dead. The dogwoods bloom brilliantly on this hilltop in the spring, and it is a humbling experience to go there.

Ideal For Hikers

The forest is large and you may hike here to your heart's content. In the center is Clear Fork park with picnicking facilities and the like. A public camping area has been established along Clear Fork Creek, in a gorge, and campers watch the sparkling waters from their tents.

Pleasant Hill Reservoir is a long narrow body of water under the management of the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District. There is a park here and a boat concession, although admission is by fee during the season. This lake has made something of a name for itself among walleye fishermen in recent years, as a result of a Division of Wildlife fish stocking program. There is a good beach here for later on in the season.

Part of the Pleasant Hill land is leased by Malabar, and all at once you find yourself in Pleasant Valley, the famous valley that became them home of Louis Bromfield. Happily the farm was saved, and Bromfield's ghost still walks these fields preaching the gospel of conservation. Upon the author's death, the Friends of the Land, a conservation group which Bromfield strongly supported, began to look for ways to acquire Malabar. This was accomplished and the farm was turned over to the Louis Bromfield Malabar Farm Foundation, which manages it now as an ecological and educational center. Former Columbus resident Dr. Floyd B. Chapman is the resident director and other area people have been active in the program. Dr. Jonathan Foreman is one of the three foundation trustees.

At Malabar you will find the multiflora rose hedges, ponds, flowering trees, fields with their gullies healed and "cows standing belly-deep in grass," that Bromfield wrote about and talked about so often. Also you will see the Doris Duke Woods that was saved from the ax and saw.

Lilacs bloom at the Big House, and no visit would be complete without seeing the Big House. It has remained as the Bromfields left it —scratches from half a dozen big boxer dogs are still in the front door, the place is filled with French and Early American antiques, scrapbooks are still on the tables, the study is lined with books, files hold rough drafts and first editions, but the big desk no longer holds manuscripts. A guided tour is given by the foundation for 25 cents per person.

At nearby Mansfield is Kingswood Gardens, an estate left to the city as a horticultural and cultural center. Here you will find a riot of color in the spring that seems to last all summer. Daffodils begin the season, then come the tulips, followed by iris, roses and others. Any person who can walk will enjoy wandering through these formal gardens.

It would be easy to spend a week in the Mohican country and Pleasant Valley, especially in the spring.

ONE WOMAN'S Opinion . . .

Voters May Be Cool To Some School Planning

Where will my children go to school? What kind of an education will they get? These questions have bothered me for several years, but have been especially prominent in my thoughts since Election Day.

Patty Hartley

A quick glance at the election results shows that many school bond issues failed. This was to be expected, as people, through necessity, are tightening their pursestrings against any taxes they control.

There are many sides to this question. We desperately need schools; this has been a known fact for many years. Classrooms are crowded and teachers are harried. It isn't fair for one teacher to have to be responsible for half a hundred children six hours each day as a babysitter, much less as a developer of minds.

Many schools have "solved" their space problems by reverting to halfday sessions. This may relieve the immediate pressures, but what is it doing to the pupils? As a college student I've recently been exposed to competition with students from all over the nation. I've come to realize how little I know and how much I won't be taught in my years of formal education. If we expect to "keep up" educationally then we must work toward longer or fuller hours in schools, not half-day sessions.

One part of the bond issue question bothers me greatly: What does the money go for when a bond issue does pass? In the acquiring of land, I admit it's nice for schools to have large playgrounds, but if the children can only attend school four hours a day how much time is going to be spent in recreation, and how much land is needed for a play area? We have parks established for recreational purposes; why should our dollars be earmarked for education be spent on this?

It would also save land space if buildings went up, instead of out. I'm sure these energetic youngsters can make it up and down a few flights of steps! Some folks may object because of a safety factor in the event of a fire. Most buildings today are built almost completely fireproof. With their wide, easily evacuated corridors and stairways, three-story structures built today are safer than some of the presently used wooden-floored firetraps.

But the thing that sends my blood rushing is the "frills" that eat up bond issue dollars today. A few years back the kiddies used open air plumbing facilities. Today there are drinking fountains and separate boys' and girls' restrooms in each room. A beautiful fountain in the front of a school may add to the scenery, but the dollars spent on it would go a long way toward a couple more classrooms.

Some people may resent that a person of my age would question those who distribute bond issue dollars. But it's my generation that will be faced with the impact of the school problem. The way things look now, I have reason to worry!

—Patty Hartley

AROUND EDUCATIONAL CIRCLES

SHARING . . .

Mrs. Martha Fabrion thinks her first graders at the Lincoln Park Elementary School can carry the practice of sharing a bit too far. Recently one of the youngsters who had been out of school for a tonsillectomy, brought her tonsils to school to share with the other children.

NOW A TEEN . . .

Roosevelt Junior high school teacher Richard Radcliffe overheard a discussion on social affairs between two seventh graders. One youngster said to the other, "Well, you'll never see 12 again."

'READINESS' . . .

Readiness and the power to think as well as subject matter can be taught by the schools, says a Chicago University professor.

Today's Life Noisy But Nice

Today's staunchest member of our "consumer-oriented society" is likely to be the most vocal in longing for the "good ole days."

He speaks longingly of an era he never knew when the only noise on a Sunday summer morn was the pealing of church bells and the chirping of the crickets.

Now he laments the rude roar of power lawn mowers and the neighbor who is tuning up the old outboard engine for the afternoon of family fun.

Our friend is also likely to speak nostalgically of the iceman and lemonade stands run by enterprising kids on the block.

Phooey on our friend. We, too, deplore the noise that accompanies our age of technology in the home as well as in factory. But we certainly wouldn't trade a three-day backache from pushing a human-powered mower over three-quarters of an acre of tall grass for the roar of today's engined brute that does the job in jig time with no blisters.

Nor, come to think of it, would we hold out too strongly for the rowboat, speaking of blisters. (We still hold a little sentiment, however, for the easy drift-like swiftness of the canoe.)

And you can have the iceman, too. He messed up the floor in the kitchen and added the mop to our daily chore of emptying the water pan. He also caught us one day when we were attempting to chop a sliver of ice off a 150-pound block in the back of his wagon while he was delivering a block to the family next door. You shoulda heard his language!

Give us the "good ole days." But give them to us on television in an air conditioned living room.

Of course, summer would be a little nicer if it weren't quite so noisy . . . . .

A Boost For Youth

To the Editor:

May we say a belated "thank you" for publishing our story of the Horizon Club 'kidnapping.'

Certainly this was an opportunity to tell the public that all our youth of today are not 'juvenile delinquents' but fun-loving kids that enjoy those things that are truly wholesome, yet entertaining.

As an Horizon Club advisor, I appreciate and commend your efforts, especially those of your excellent photographer who traveled with us at dawn.

Organizations Grateful

The publicity committee of Mu Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi thanks you and your staff for the publicity you have given our chapter meetings, social events and other activities throughout the year.

We have appreciated the special help Mrs. Richard DeWitt and Jack Allen have given.

Our organization is new in Reynoldsburg and the excellent coverage your paper has given us has helped us become better known.

On behalf of the American Cancer Society may I express our thanks to you and the Hartley Publications for the fine cooperation given us during our Cancer Crusade. Of course, we're not through with it yet; we have some 36,500 homes we still want to visit before the month is out.

We also would appreciate using your columns to thank the thousands of Crusaders who each year work so diligently to make the Crusade a success.

Without such help from you and from the Crusaders we might never find the cancer answer.

Sincerely,
Paul L. Walker
Executive Director

It is the sincere wish of the Committee for the Health, Medical and Child Care Levy that the Hartley Newspapers be thanked for helping us in our efforts to tell the community about critical health, medical and child care needs.

We are grateful to the media of this community for their outstanding cooperation.

A Valley Stream, N.Y., woman will be more cautious with her next clarion call. It seems firemen had to be called upon to extricate her finger from between the valves of her trumpet.

Big Headache

The Camden, N.J., board of elections ended one of the fringe benefits for its 39 employees; they removed bottles of free aspirin. It seems that the employees used 5,500 aspirin last year.

Happy Birthday

A New York man received an expensive car for his birthday with a card saying, "May you always be as happy as you are today." The greeting did not come true, however. He was arrested by police on charges of sending himself stolen goods—namely, the car.

A child is the only known growing object that can be both fresh and spoiled at the same time.

Figures show that man has 12 million brain cells; what figures don't show, however, is how many are unemployed.

Some say the difference between a scientist and the average man is that the average man knows something about everything while a scientist knows everything about something.

Time to Pray...
Life can be so full and active . . . There are the school hours, time for study, and for a growing child there must be recreation. Also a time for eating is necessary, and a time to be with the family. One of the most needed times is to be with God in prayer. There are times that we should give thanks to God for our food, and times to seek his guidance and watch-care, and there are times to pray with others. This we can do by attending church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

'62 Almanacs On Shelves Of Libraries

New additions of "World Almanac", and "Information Please Almanac", often called the two most valuable reference books published, have been added to the Hilltop and Hilltonia libraries.

Information in the almanacs range from a list of major events of 1961 to reports on the first year of John F. Kennedy's presidency. Included are facts on actors and actresses, achievements in space, operas, presidents of the U.S., rainfall, sports, Berlin crisis, strikes, prizes and awards, and thousands of other topics.

The work of the 87th Congress and of important government departments is reported. Sports had a big year in 1961, and the almanacs give statistics about baseball, football, basketball, horse racing, track, and other sports. The religious sections provide information about special feast days and holidays, and the astronomy categories forecast eclipses, tides, and sunrise and sunset.

In addition, facts are given on such matters as the hours the White House may be visited, which state has the largest state fair, and what it costs to send a letter to various international cities.

MEETING SET TUESDAY—

Clean-up, Fix-up, Plan Is Outlined

A second meeting has been set for 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 29, at 1290 W. Mound-st to expand plans for a six-block clean-up, fix-up campaign in the West Side.

West Side Neighborhood Council's Health Committee has again invited all residents in the area north of Jet Stadium to attend the Tuesday night session.

The neighborhood is bounded by Nace-av on the east, the B&O Railroad on the West and Mound-st on the south.

Last Wednesday, major clean-up, fix-up, possibilities were discussed.

Several suggestions were advanced. These included attempting to secure a fire hydrant in the Thomas-Princeton-av area; requesting the B&O Railroad to clean the brush from the right of way; and discussing with the railroad the possibilities of a walk underpass for children going to and from Dana Avenue School and seeking the patching and cleaning of the area streets and alleys.

No Change in Taxes

Some residents expressed fear of increased taxes resulting from improvements. Glen Beach, chairman of the health committee of the council, stated that no increased taxes had resulted from the cleanup in the north of Broad-st areas in 1961, since the services rendered by the city were part of their normal services to city neighborhoods. The only difference is that the services are requested to be concentrated within a month's time, rather than spread over the year.

High School Band. Featured will be the Columbus Hurricanes Drum and Baton Corps, under the direction of Thomas E. Bertman. The Hurricanes competed in the 1962 Tulip Festival Senior Corps Championship in Holland, Mich., May 19.

To Start At Starling

The parade will originate at Starling Junior High School, and wind its way north along Central to Broad, east, and then south to Sunshine Recreation Center at the intersection of Sandusky.

There will be Boy Scout troops, some floats, old cars and a covered wagon, all under police escort.

After the parade, Hugh De-Moss of WLW-C will emcee the queen contest and the winner will be crowned by last year's lovely Pat Sullivan, 255 Dana-av, of Central High School. The winner will receive $25 and a trophy; runner up $10; and all others, five dollars.

After that, kids who have picked up their discount tickets can start with a row of dimes and ride the many rides which are being provided by the Gooding Amusement Company.

Featured will be the Mad Mouse, a hit at the World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. A ride that is said to give the thrills of a roller-coaster and a few of its own besides.

"So be prepared for the fun and frolic that will be on the West Side June 4 through June 9," chairman Scott said. "Mark your family calendar now."

Committee members are Chuck Ater, Lowell Shroyer, Sam Alford, Bob Morton, Bob Miller, Mel Dodge, Pete Block, Gene Roach and Don McCann.

Ahoy, There, Sailor.

We are pleased to announce today that another trip on the ship, Aquarama, on Lake Erie, will be scheduled by Hartley Newspapers, this summer.

From time to time our newspapers have sponsored special promotions and this one last year was one of the most successful. A good time was had by all.

Fun was predominate from the time the busses shoved off, early that morning until they returned late at night. High spot was, of course, the cool, comfortable lake cruise and the attending shipboard festivities.

Full details of the cruise are contained in this paper today. If you are looking for a pleasant summertime interlude it will pay you to investigate our Aquarama cruise.

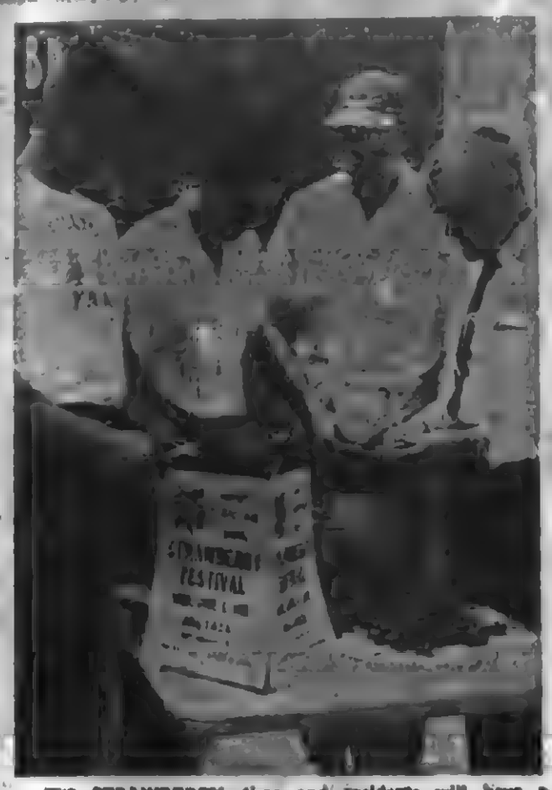
Strawberry Festival Tickets Now Being Sold By Hilltop 'Y'

The First Annual Hilltop Y's Men's Strawberry Festival will be held June 6 from 5 to 9 p.m. at the Hilltop YMCA, 2879 Valleyview-dr.

Club president, Dr. James A. Hardie, is serving as chairman of this event and will be assisted by John Scott and Harry Grashel. The public is urged to purchase tickets now for 50 cents from any club member or at the Hilltop "Y."



The tickets entitle the bearer to one serving of fresh strawberries over ice cream, a piece of cake, and coffee or milk.

All proceeds from the sale go toward furthering the work of the Y's Men for the Hilltop YMCA. This project, together with the annual Christmas Tree Sale, are the two major money raising activities for the club. Past proceeds have gone toward tiling the "Y" basement floor and installing acoustical ceiling tile. Last year's project was building backstops and fences for the two "Y" ball diamonds on Valleyview-dr.

Other projects sponsored by the Y's Men include the annual running of the Gra-Y Relays, Gra-Y Talent Contest, Tall Tale Contest, assist in sponsoring Indian Guide Match Box Derby, annual bunny hunt for boys and girls, selection of a "Boy-of-the-Month" and assistance in various other aspects of "Y" program. The Y's Men's Club has also financially assisted the High Winders Auto Club and Westmoor Jr. Hi.Y for help rendered at the tree sale.

Members of the Hilltop YMCA Mother's Council will hold a bake sale at the Strawberry Festival. The Hilltop "Y" Menettes, auxiliary of the Y's Men, will also assist with the Festival. Plans call for a fish pond for children and several other contests.

Serving on the publicity committee are Harry Miller and Bert Korte. Chairmen of the ticket committee are Bud Morrison and Harold Buchanan. Roy Agin, Don Dodson, George Hughes and Stan Ruoff are serving on the material committee. Arrangements for the fish pond are being handled by Don Ebern and Roger Chrisman. John Hutchinson, Bud Martin, Ralph Murphey, and Howard Reber will be responsible for set up and decorations. Liaison chairman will be Vic Karl.

IT'S STRAWBERRY time and residents will have a chance to gobble as many as they wish at the Hilltop Y-Men's First Annual Strawberry Festival on June 6 from 5 to 9 p.m. Committee members from left are seen preparing a few of the tasty treats for the event. They are: Bert Korte, John Scott, Roy Agin and Dr. James Hardie, club president. The festival will be at the club on Valleyview-dr. Admission is 50 cents.

STUMP OR STATUE?

THIS UNUSUAL FREAK piece of art, shaped by the steel blade of a woodsman's axe, and fire, is causing heads to turn as motorists heading out of the city, east on U.S. 40, glance to their right. The precariously balanced stump looks like a transplant from the Grand Canyon, and stands in a vacant field. Several other less arty tree stumps occupy space in the same field. Viewed from different angles, the stump times taking on the look of an animal's head in the sunset.

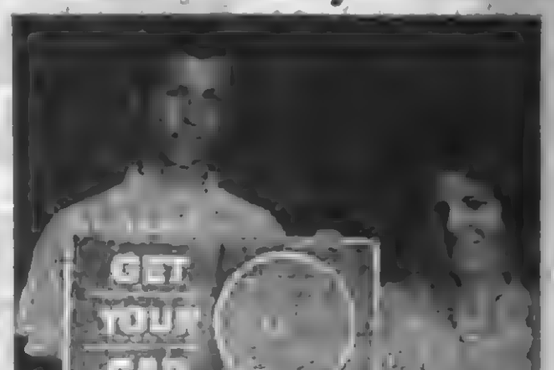
Free Automobile Inspections Given In Annual Safety Check



The annual Vehicle Safety Check Program is under way in Columbus and Franklin County providing automobile owners with the opportunity of having their cars inspected, free of charge, for mechanical and other defects which are safety hazards.

Columbus Postmaster Allen M. Rowe is honorary chairman of the safety check sponsored by the Motorists and Pedestrian Safety Committee of which Chet Long, news broadcaster, is chairman.

Actively cooperating in the safety campaign are MAPS members, service stations, automobile dealers, members of the Catholic Youth Council and selected students from Columbus public high schools. The two latter groups received special training for the inspections from MAPS and the Ohio Department of Highway Safety.

The 10-point check of each car includes headlights, taillights, brakes, tires, windshield wipers, exhaust system, glass, mirrors, steering and horn. When a car passes all the tests successfully, the owner is given a safety check sticker for its windshield. Those failing to pass the tests will be issued stickers only if indicated repairs are made and the autos rechecked at any safety lane.

At Ease . . . TIMELY TIPS . . . FOR PLEASURE

By BEVERLY FLEISHMAN

Everybody has a week. Secretaries, flowers, libraries, dogs and now — vacations. Governor DiSalle has proclaimed May 20-26 as Ohio's Annual Vacation Week.

The announcement brings up an interesting question—namely what is there of interest to do and to see in our fair state. The answer is, surprisingly enough, a lengthy one.

Beverly

For those who like to prowl around historic spots, there is the Schoenbrunn Village, the first settlement in Ohio, which has been restored by the Ohio Historical Society. It is located near New Philadelphia.

Marietta, the first permanent settlement in the Northwest territory, is surrounded by dozens of spots which played important roles in American history. Fort Recovery, Fallen Timbers Battleground, Greenville and Fort Meigs are all worth a visit.

Closer to home are the Olentangy caverns—good for a Sunday drive if, for nothing else, a tour of the 54° caves. A cool contrast to the current weather.

If fishing is your forte, Lake Erie, particularly in the area of Marblehead Peninsula and the islands has some of the best smallmouth bass fishing in the world. A fact to store away: Ohio has more than 20,000 miles of fishable streams and 15,000 farm ponds for anglers.

For scenic driving, the Hocking State Park area near Logan includes Old Man's Cave, Rock House, Cedar Falls, Ash Cave and Conkle's Hollow.

Have we made our point?

Selby Says Ballads Favored For Dances

Chuck Selby has seen dances come and go. From his vantage point on the stand of Columbus' Valley Dale, the "big band leader" has observed dance trends for the last 11 years. He has seen the fox trot remain the steady favorite, the cha-cha push out the mambo, and, most recently, the twist top them all.

"They each have a purpose in keeping the people interested in dance," commented Selby. "Yet it's the old ballads people like to dance to." Some of the popular standbys in the Dale's repertoire are "Tenderly," "September Song" and "Golden Earrings."

The dance that has caused the latest turmoil is the twist. Its dance floor gymnastics have roused verbal turmoil as well.

"Yet people had the same reaction to the black bottom," reminisced Selby. "In fact almost every dance gets criticized until it catches on."

This year Selby, who believes in playing to his audience, has revitalized the standard hokey-pokey by giving it a twist of the twist music. "Novelty keeps us young," he asserted.

Some of the constant favorites on the Saturday night dance floor are the Latin American numbers, with the merings vying for a comeback this year.

What will be new in dance? Selby confided that two new South America numbers, the pachanga and the chranga, are "big" in New York. But it will be a while before they arrive on the Columbus dance scene, he said.

When they do, you can be sure that Selby will play them.

The Valley Dale, Columbus' only public dance hall, is now in its 39th season. Chuck Selby, his 11-piece band, and singer Ann Young are featured every Saturday. During the summer months they play in the Starlight Gardens. Rooms are also available for private parties.

Christie Gets Away With Murder In Her Best Selling Crime Fiction

Agatha Christie has been getting away with murder for years. For the past 30 years her detective novels have been the best selling crime fiction stories ever known.

Now MGM and Miss Christie join forces in "Murder She Said," a crime-and-punishment story based on her book "4:50 From Paddington."

The movie, currently playing at the World Theater, stars Margaret Rutherford, Arthur Kennedy, Muriel Pavlow and James Robertson Justice.

Although her first mystery had been published in 1920, it was not until six years later that Miss Christie made her impact on the literary world with "The Murder of Roger Akroyd," the first of eight books which have been dramatized.

Since then she has maintained a steady average of two books a year. Although her total sales have never been computed, it has been said that she has made more money out of murder than Lucrezia Borgia. One statistician arrived at a figure of 50,000,000 copies.

In England she followed George Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells as the third author to have a million copies of her books published in one day.

Varied Shows Are Offered On Aquarama

Entertaining on shipboard is not new to Bill Boehm, director and master of ceremonies aboard the SS Aquarama. Boehm, who will supervise the entertainment program for the huge Cleveland-Detroit cruise ship, served as cruise entertainer for, both the Cunard and Italian lines.

Under Boehm's direction, the Aquarama will offer special stage shows featuring talented members of the ship's crew, puppet shows, movies, audience participation games, dancing and community singing. Boehm will also double as an entertainer in the Aquarama's stage shows.

His previous experience includes staging director and singing star at Musicarnival, the Alpine Village, and for several industrial shows. He has also sung with the Mutual Network's Theater of the Air.

The SS Aquarama begins its 1962 season on June 28.

Music At OSU

Maid Of Roses To Be Chosen In Colorful Ceremony June 10

June, the glorious month of the rose, is about here and among senior high school girl students there is a stir of excitement. Who will be the Maiden of Roses for 1962?

On the evening of June 10, the annual, colorful ceremony will take place at the Columbus Park of Roses, 4015 N. High-st, when the present Maiden of Roses, Julie Byrd of Worthington, will crown her successor. In addition, this year, a court of four will be selected for additional honors.

For the fortunate maiden, there will be a number of awards: a $300 scholarship to the college of her choice, a wrist watch, a trophy for her own and one for her school, and, an added item this year, a course in modeling.

The members of the court will receive trophies and all of the entrants will receive carved ivory rose necklaces as reminders of the occasion.

Judges include: George Theurer, chairman; Miss Fern Sharp, Mrs. Hazel Rawlins, Gordon Harris, Clyde Long, Lawrence McLean and Dean Lewis. Mrs. W. Ralston Westlake will be an honorary judge.

Preliminary judging will take place on Monday, June 4, at the Whetstone Recreation Center when the candidates will qualify on the basis of poise and activities as well as physical beauty.

TO DISCUSS CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

OSU Stadium Theater Announces '62 Productions

Roy H. Bowen, director of Ohio State University's Stadium Theater, has announced the production schedule for the 13th annual season at Gate 10 of the Ohio Stadium. The four-sided arena theater under the stadium's breezeway will open on Wednesday, June 20, and end the season on Sunday, Aug. 12.

The season of two musicals and four plays will include "Kiss Me Kate," "The Threepenny Opera," "All the Way Home," "The Philadelphia Story," "Hotel Paradiso," and "The Play's the Thing."

Opening the stadium season for an 11-night run from June 20 to June 30 will be the world famous Weill-Brecht musical "The Threepenny Opera." This musical has only recently completed a record breaking run of 2,611 performances in New York City.

Following second from July 3 to 7 will be the Ferenco Molnar comedy "The Play's the Thing." It is a comedy set on the Italian Riviera.

The wild French bedroom farce by Georges Feydeau called "Hotel Paradiso" will be presented for five nights from July 10 to 15.

One of the most popular sophisticated comedies of the modern American theater, Philip Barry's "The Philadelphia Story," will run from July 17 to 21.

"All the Way Home," which won the 1961 Critic's Circle of New York and the 1961 Pulitzer Prize for Drama, was an adaptation for the stage of the late James Agee's Pulitzer Prize winning novel, "A Death in the Family." It will play from July 24 to 28.

Cole Porter's "Kiss Me, Kate" is brimful of well-loved popular melodies — such as "Wunderbar," "So in Love," "Kiss Me, Kate," etc. Dates for "Kiss Me, Kate" are from Aug. 1 to 12.

Season strips for Stadium Theater are now on sale by mail. Send orders to: Stadium Theater Box Office, 154 N. Oval-dr, Columbus, 10. The box office at Gate 10 of the stadium will open on June 11 for sale of both strips and individual tickets. Hours are 12 noon to 6 p.m. and the phone number is CY. 3-2295.

AUBLEGRAPH

Always Sail Familiar Waters Learned Whitehall Official

Whitehall's City Solicitor was fuming abit last week and his huffing and puffing created more verbal white-caps than will ever be raised by the crafts zipping up and down the moody, muddy Scioto.

The East Columbus suburb official Paul Haytcher, an attorney by trade, isn't ordinarily the target of a sports column but one of his experiences recently is good enough for a laugh from any boating enthusiast.

And, what with the boating business booming in the warm, summertime atmosphere, his salty tale is told herewith.

The whole episode started when Haytcher was invited to attend an informal gathering of the exclusive Yacht Club which abounds close to the Scioto and is usually a gathering place for local, influential sports men.

Haytcher readily accepted the invitation with the understandable feeling of pride and honor likened to being asked to play the lead in your high school's May Day pageant.

Nice Atmoshpere, Anyway . . .

"Everyone was sitting around in white coats downing their whiskey sours," Haytcher said, "while I sat there quietly sipping my 7-up."

What a feeling surged through him! "Imagine me, Paul Haytcher, being asked here to the Yacht Club, boy. Wow-ee," he thought to himself.

But, as the evening progressed, the solicitor was to get an even bigger surprise.

"One of the guys came up to me," Haytcher continued, "and asked me if I'd like to join the club.

"Why do you want me to join, I told them. I haven't even got a boat," he said.

"Don't worry about that," he was told. "You're the type of man we want in our club."

"Sonofagun," Haytcher replied.

"Sure," the man urged. "We've got a lots of crafts here who need men to help on them. We're tired of having kids work them, we thought maybe you'd work out fine, and . . .

"Just a minute," Haytcher snapped. "I don't think I'd be interested."

The pride feeling subsided. He felt like a broken man. "Imagine that!" he thought to himself. "They want me to pay dues just to be a deck hand."

The weekend ended and Haytecher was back in his office, working the 9 to 5 grind and finding a bit of comfort in the fact that he had at least brushed elbows with real "seamen."

All thoughts of sailing the blue waters to far off places have vanished now. The adventure and glamour have gone. It's all so sad.

Lest We Forget . . .

Regardless of what they say about no rest for the wicked, our good guy Columbus Jets will miss a few winks as they wind up their longest trip of this season with a twi-night doubleheader on Memorial Day.

The May 30 event starts at 6:30 p.m. and the gates will open at 5 p.m. Brief Memorial Day Services will be held between games with trumpeters Ray and Henry Cincione blowing Taps.

The Jets will play 11 games in nine days during their third homestand of this year. This includes four games with Richmond, Atlanta and three with league-leading Jacksonville.

JET TRAIL(S)—June 3 — Jet Stadium will be 30 years old on this Sunday and the Jets are bringing back members of the 1932 team as guests that day and as part of the Columbus Sesquicentennial Celebration. Larry MacPhail, 1932's general manager, will also attend.

JUNE 7 — This will mark the first time Westgate Methodist Brotherhood has had a night at the stadium. O. D. Lehman is in charge of ticket sales.

SOCCER KNOCK-OUT

CAROL RENEE THOMPSON, 22, 291 Kellner-st, has been named queen of the seventh annual Soccer Cups Games sponsored by the Columbus Recreation Department. Pretty Miss Thompson will present trophies to the winners following the action this Sunday, May 27. Games start at 10 a.m. on the Sunshine Recreation Center land, 677 Sullivant-av. A banquet will be held at the Germania Club, 423 E. Front-st, following the games.

Westgate Wildcats Whip To Win In Hilltop Gra-Y Relay Event

The Wildcats from Westgate tore up the cinders Saturday to win the third annual Hilltop Y's Men's Grey-Y Relays.

The Westgate track squad made up of fourth, fifth and sixth graders, scored 21 points, broke one relay record, and tied one.

Westgate's [illegible] tied the relay record of 13 seconds in the 100-yard dash set by Owens-Miller of Highland in 1960.

Westgate's 440-yard relay team for the fourth and fifth grades set a new relay record of 1.05:7 to beat last year's record of 1.05:8.

Second was West Broad with 18 points, and third place went to Highland with 17 points. Although Highland was third, their sixth grade 440 yard relay team set a new relay record of 60.5 to top last year's record by one-tenth of a second.

The youngsters of the 12 Hilltop YMCA Gra-Y Clubs participating in the Saturday events were pleased to have the awards presented to them by the Ohio State football team.

Local Scouters Ring Up Year Of Achievement

Professional Scouters and a professional school man had some good words about Boy Scouting here Monday night. The occasion was the annual Southwest BSA District meeting at Westgate Methodist Church, attended by 100 adult leaders and their friends.

"Scouting teaches youngsters to experience emotional satisfaction with things of nature," said guest speaker Paul Hayes, superintendent of the South-Western City School District. "Despite the fact that we have grown from an agrarian society to one that is principally urban, we still are dependent on the soil for life," he pointed out. "In making this leap we have failed to take the time to adjust to bigness. The Scouting program helps our youngsters to bridge this gap."

Central Ohio Council representative Roc Lutz commended the district for contributing $16,417 against a goal of $13,500 in the recent nine-county Capital Development Campaign. The district was a pace-setter in the drive, he said.

Summarizing his first year here, Everett Bacon, district executive, listed the following accomplishments: three camporees, with attendance exceeding 800 boys and leaders; a Cub kite-flying contest attended by 150; a substantial growth in trained leaders; 10 new Eagle Scouts; a gain in membership and five new units in the first five months of this year. He reported that 31 per cent of the units were active in camp-ing.

Newspapers Honored

Committee Chairman James Matheny presented the Jerry Spears Plaque for Service to Boyhood to Hartley Newspapers. It was accepted by Marcus T. Orr, managing editor. Matheny said the district appreciates the extensive coverage of Scouting activities given by the Hartley press, not only in the Columbus area, but also at Greenfield, London and Plain City.

Other special recognitions went to Matheny; his assistant, Merle V. Weaver; and Robert Dings, district commissioner.

Two Scoutmasters received camperships to Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimarron, N. M. William Neff of Troop 275, Grove City Methodist Church, will go as representative of all council scoutmasters as a grant from the Sears Foundation, encouraging city-rural relationships. Eugene Long of Troop 186, St. John Lutheran Church, will represent all Lutheran scoutmasters in seven councils.

Service pin were presented to the following: Dr. C. O. Miller, 30-year veteran; Paul Schofield, 15 year; Joe Hutt, 15 years; John Birle, 10 years; and Eugene Long, 10 years.

Cub traning awards were earned by Mrs. Evelyn Gatwood, Mrs. Bernice Hutchison, Mrs. Opal Blake, and Mrs. Gladys B. Carey, denmothers of Pack 43, Burgess Avenue EUB Church; and Mrs. Norma L. Gleich, Pack 114, St. Timothy Lutheran Church.

Scouters Award was earned by John Birle.

MECHANICAL MONSTER GOBBLES GARBAGE

A DOUBLE TRUCK in newspapermen's language means two full pages of something, but to the City Division of Sanitation this unique Dumpster Dumpster means a saving in time and manpower. In less than a day it removes all the garbage from Westgate Manor—a job that formerly took three days. Costing in excess of $42,000, the 42-foot long machine consists of a tractor, trailor and hydraulic lift using a loading hopper of 18-cu. yd. capacity. It will pack away 36,000 pounds of garbage and trash for disposal. Two men operate it, and also service Westgate Manor, University Arms, Southgate, Mayfair apartments and will use it at the State Fair, said Sanitation Superintendent Arthur Seiler.

Pencil And Paper Important Tools For Home Builder

Getting ready to build or remodel your home? If you are, you'll find that pencil and paper are the two most important tools, according to many builders and contractors who are daily consulted for advice and assistance in home planning projects.

Turn to pencil and paper first, they say, and plan exactly what you want to achieve. One good way is to make a check-list, starting with the following eight items:

1. Electrical outlets.
2. Lighting.
3. Telephones.
4. Heating, ventilation and plumbing.
5. Built-ins and storage areas.
6. Doors and windows.
7. Floors, walls and ceiling.
8. Color and decor.

Whether you do the work yourself or have most of it done for you, these experts say, make sure that the first four items are scheduled at an early stage in the work. Plan for enough electrical and telephone outlets, not only for immediate use, but for future plans. Find out the proper type of lighting and light-levels before you schedule the lighting installations, and check your home heating plant to be sure that your present unit will heat the new room.

Should Be Concealed

These first four items should be installed when the walls are open—before the inside walls go up, to permit concealed wiring and recessed fixtures. Consult your local electrician, telephone company, utility and heating and plumbing contractors before going ahead.

In planning for a properly telephoned home, find out the types of equipment that will best serve the needs of your family. You may want the new home interphone system that lets you communicate throughout the home, answer the front door and mind the baby, all through use of the telephone.

If you have young children, or are hard of hearing, you may wish to plan for a volume control phone to amplify sound. If your children are older, you'll want to plan a telephone outlet in their room, for one day, a private line to a teen-age daughter's room will free the other phone for the rest of the family.

Stock Standard Sizes

In planning for doors and windows, be sure to lay out your plan so that these will be of standard or stock sizes. And, before you start on the framing of the room, decide on the type of floors, walls and ceiling you want, so that the studding or lathe strips will be placed at the right intervals for affixing these interior coverings. Don't forget insulation for the outside walls. Your local lumber dealer can provide you with information on doors and windows, as well as on the many types of interior coverings for your floors, walls, and ceilings.

Decide on the color and decor of the room before you order the floor, wall and ceiling coverings, so that your interior finishes and room furniture will blend in pleasantly. Keep the interior finish colors in mind as you select your furniture and blend in your accessories, including draperies, rugs, lamps and telephones. All of these are available in a variety of colors to match or complement any color scheme you may select.

By keeping these eight points in mind, and setting down your requirements on paper, you will make sure that your remodeling job is done better, faster, and more economically.

Who Plants Most, Husband or Wife?

There are more than twice as many husband-and-wife "teams" who share equally in planting and beautifying the home property with trees and shrubs, than there are families in which the gardening is predominantly the wife's or the husband's interest, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

Apparently planting and beautifying the property is a family affair. The tendency for husbands and wives to share interest and responsibility and companionship in gardening was strongly evident in the studies, it is stated.

Gardening is considered healthy exercise by many, that does more for both husband and wife, or either one, than it does for the plants.

In 15 per cent of the cases where homes had been landscaped according to a plan, husband and wife "teams" shared the pleasure of drawing up their own planting plans, while about 66 per cent had the plantings drawn up by nurserymen.

Free Money-Management Slide Rule Is Offered

All readers of this newspaper are invited to cut out the coupon in the Main Federal Savings ad in this tabloid section, bring it to any of the three Main Federal Savings offices, and receive, without charge, a very handy money-management slide rule. This slide rule realistically lets you ascertain what happens to your money. For example, a person with a gross monthly income of $1,000, having five people in the family, will have $130 withheld for Federal taxes and $12.50 for Social Security, leaving a net monthly income of $857.50. The slide rule further breaks down how much should be allocated for clothing, food, shelter, etc.

Main Federal Savings' objective in making available this money-management slide rule is to emphasize the point that "wise spending and saving of today's income is the key to tomorrow's security." This slide rule should help a family plan for better living through pleasant and profitable budgeting.

Harold Esper, president of Main Federal Savings, pointed out that this slide rule giveaway is just one means of letting Main Federal's many customers and friends know that it is ready to help them in planning for a better and brighter future.

In the vein of preparing for a more secure future with up-to-date housing, Main Federal has funds available for home-construction and home-improvement. Mr. James in the main office at 24 E. Main, Dick Scott in the office next to the Plaza Shopping Center at 891 S. James-rd, and Ernest Walder in the Central Point office, are the three helpful representatives of Main Federal Savings, who will be pleased to discuss your needs with you.

Wilbur Morrison, executive vice president of Main Federal Savings, pointed out that in 1961, 560 families were made home-owners, with loans totaling over seven and three-fourths million dollars, and Harold Esper, president, further attested that 277 families improved their homes with loans from Main Federal's Home-Improvement Loan Department. Esper further affirmed that Main Federal's goal for 1962 is to substantially increase the number of families being assisted to acquire homes or improve ones they own.

PATIO PHONES

Patio owners report that the ultimate in luxurious outdoor living is the portable telephone which eliminates those interruptive and often futile dashes to answer an inside phone. According to Ohio Bell, outdoor outlets can be provided where desired to make outdoor living more enjoyable.

They Don't Build 'Em Like They Used To . . . They're Better

Modern building "know-how" has made today's new home the best built home in history.

It is a tightly built home, constructed of durable materials that are easily maintained. Its excellent insulation means savings in air conditioning bills in summer and heating bills in winter. The house is built to last for years.

Moreover, today's new home is designed with the comfort, convenience and living habits of its potential owners in mind. It was planned for people. It no longer is a mere enclosure of rooms.

The graceful lines and open living space of today's new home reflects the popular trend toward informal living, with the line between indoors and outdoors all but vanished at will.

There has been an immense increase in use of standardized components in the building of a house. This is a distinct advantage to the home buyer, for use of components rather than small pieces which means a saving in labor costs in the building of the home. Use of components that are standardized means they have been precision made for tighter fitting.

But while the use of standardized components has risen, there is no "typical" American home. The one-story rambler or ranch house is popular in some areas. But Colonial styles also have their followers. In high-cost urban areas, the two or three story "Town house" is enjoying a dramatic revival. This is particularly true in areas of urban renewal. Contemporary homes, which invite variations in style, frequently are the characteristics of a new residential areas.

Regardless of the type of house, the average new home today provides more than 1,200 square feet of living space. The majority of them have three or more bedrooms, and the two-bathroom house is on the increase.

The best way to judge the new homes is to visit those on display during the "New Homes" month of May.

HOME ANSWERING SERVICE

Like to get away from it all without missing anything? A telephone Automatic Answering Set provides an effective solution to the dilemma faced by people who often need to be in two places at once. Compactly built and attractively styled for home or office use, it records messages which can be played back at a later time.

We do not count a man's years until he has nothing else to count. . . Emerson.

New Home Briefs

Today's new kitchen is bright, cheerful and a pleasant place in which to work. But it still must be a kitchen in which it is easy to work. It should have an efficient work triangle. It should have ample storage space in the right places and in the right amounts. Pots, pans and dishes in constant use should have storage space that is easy and safe to reach.

Mingo Estates Offer Rural Setting Near Reynoldsburg

Mingo Estates, a new development project just south of Reynoldsburg on State Route 256 is just far enough away from the hustle and bustle of the city to give its residents an air of peaceful living.

Most of the homes in this beautiful rural atmosphere are of ranch style. The residents are within walking distance of the Stony Creek Country Club. Spring Lakes Fishing Club is nearby. Several other recreational projects are taking shape in the area which is in neighboring Fairfield County.

The residents have all the advantages of city services such as water, sewage, gas and electricity. Most of the lots have 100 or more feet of frontage.

Property Damage By Lightning Can Be Prevented

Lightning causes over $125,000,000 annual property fire loss and damage in the U.S., according to the Lightning Protection Institute.

Yet, lightning loss to property can be prevented. With correct materials, properly designed and installed, a lightning protection system rarely, if ever, has failed to carry out its protective function.

A lightning protection installation is not a do-it-yourself job. This is a job for the expert who produces or uses Underwriters' labeled materials and supervises or installs according to the code requirements of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., for lightning protection.

In order to be entirely safe, metallic bodies on structures require interconnection with the system or separate grounds for such items as vent pipes, television antennas, etc.

Consult your local Home Builders Association if you have questions about where and when to see the new homes displayed this month.

FEATURED ATTRACTION for the carnival fun of the West Side Jubilee is the Mad Mouse. The event runs from Monday, June 4, through 9. Mad Mouse is recognized as the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry.

West Side Jubilee Begins Monday

West Side Board of Trade's annual week-long welcome to summer will be kicked off Monday, June 4.

A big June Jubilee Parade starts the event at 6 p.m., complete with Central High School Band, 25 queen candidates riding in convertibles, the Columbus Hurricane Drum and Baton Corps, a covered wagon drawn by horses, a motorcycle color guard, antique cars and Boy Scouts.

The marchers will begin at Starling Junior High, go north on Central to Broad, east on Broad to Grubb, and south on Grubb to Sunshine Recreation Center, 667 Sullivant-av.

At Sunshine, the queen will be picked from the 25 beauties by Judge Robert M. Draper, Judge William T. Gillis, Jack Young, first assistant city attorney and Frank Reda, chief counsel of the city attorney's office.

Hugh DeMoss of WLW-C will emcee the event. The girls will parade in front of the judges in party dresses.

So far, Don McCann, director of Sunshine Recreation Center, has announced 10 Jubilee Queen candidates. They are Cheryl Johnson of 26 N. Hartford-av, Rose Ott of 991 Scott-st, Lucille Bolen of 34 N. Hartford-av, Martha Talbott of 286 S. Souder-av, Wanda Morris of 90 Dana-av, Lynda Stephenson of 1257 Sullivant-av, Vickie Hessler of 140 West Park-st, Ruth Bocook of 91 W. Hartford-st, Bernice Spencer of 902 W. Rich-st and Katha Miller of 868 Sullivant-av.

Gooding Amusement Co. Inc., which is headquartered on Valleyview-dr, will supply the rides for the carnival. The "midway" will feature the Mad Mouse, the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry. It requires a space of more than 150 by 80 feet and cost in excess of $65,000. It was introduced at the recent World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. Resembling a giant size roller coaster, it affords all the thrills of the dips and speeds of the giant coaster and furnishes a few new thrills of its own.

Other attractions will include a Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Flying Scooters, Roleplane, The Whip, The Scrambler, The Frolic (which was introduced at the State Fair last year) and The Paratrooper.

The kiddie rides include the Jet Flyers, Circus Train, Fire Engine and a brand new ride this year, The Umbrella Ride.

The West Side Board of Trade has put out 150,000 tickets for rides for the kids. These tickets can be obtained at any of the merchants of the area. A ticket and a dime will entitle the bearer to any ride on the midway.

According to police estimates there were 3000 to 5000 people at the opening at Sunshine Park last year. No figures were available for the parade.

Cooling Units Adaptable To Any House

Homeowners want to keep summer heat where it belongs — outside the house.

To satisfy this demand, cooling engineers have developed a variety of systems so that cooling can be installed in any type house, regardless of the type of heating system used.

Thus, engineers say that today there is no "right type" of heating system for adaptation to air conditioning. Some cooling equipment can be combined with the heating system. Combination type heating-cooling equipment is available for both warm air and hydronic (hot water) systems, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council.

However, if the cooling part of a combination system is to be "added later," special provision for cooling must be made when the house is constructed. If these provisions are not made, then a separate cooling system may be required.

Separate Systems

A separate chilled air unit can be used with any type heating system since it functions independently of the heating system. The cooling unit may be installed in the attic, garage or a centrally located closet or hall, with fiber-type ducts distributing the cool air.

A separate chilled water unit can also be used with any type heating system. It also functions independently of the heating system, and can be easily installed in homes that are located in those parts of the country that don't require heating.

The unit is suitable for central cooling for new construction or modernization, but especially for multi-story or rambling designs in which zone control is required.

Combined Systems

Heating-cooling convectors, in a combination hydronic system, are installed in each room of the house. The central "power" source — a boiler and water chiller — is usually located in the basement.

Hot water and chilled water are circulated to the units through a common piping system. Each convector unit has a fan, filter, cooling-heating coil and a thermostat for room by room temperature control.

Heating Cooling duct system, in a combination warm air system, uses a furnace and cooling unit, usually located in the basement, as the "power" source. Warm air and cool air are circulated through the same duct system. It's important, however, that ducts be accurately sized. Cooling requires larger ducts than those used for heating alone. If ducts are sized for heating only, the cooling system may not operate efficiently.

PROPER INSULATION PAYS

Good insulation in a home pays for itself by cutting fuel bills. A house fully insulated with mineral wool is warmer in winter and cooler in summer, requiring far less energy than a poorly insulated home for both heating and air conditioning.

Savings on fuel bills can pay for the insulation within a few years. After that, the savings mean extra money in your pocketbook.

New Book Contains Plans For Your Home Improvement

Whether you are planning to build new or remodel your present home, you will find some helpful ideas in a 48-page book of home improvement plans now available from Ohio Agricultural Extension Service engineers.

J. D. Blickle, an extension engineer at Ohio State University, says the book contains a collection of top-notch building ideas from engineers and home economists of 13 universities. It includes suggestions for every room in the home, with ideas illustrated for the design, arrangement and improvement of storage space.

Space requirements are given for such activities as dressing, cooking, serving and sewing. A play table, work bench, tool tray, and serving cart are some of the items detailed in working drawings. One section of the book includes information about the materials you will use.

The book is published by the Midwest Plan Service, widely-known as a publisher of equipment plan books for use in building facilities for swine, sheep and beef and dairy cattle.

The book on home improvement plans is designed to meet the growing needs in urban and suburban areas as well as in rural sections, Blickle says.

You may receive the book for $1 by writing to the Ohio Extension Agricultural Engineering Office, Ives Hall, 2073 Neil Ave., Columbus 10, O.

MORE FOR RADIATORS

When calculating how much paint you'll need for a room, don't forget to allow for radiators which require seven times as much paint as a similar area of wall space. The formula is simple: multiply the height of the radiator by its width and then multiply this product by seven. Divide this figure by the number of square feet a gallon of paint covers, as listed on the label. This gives you the fraction of a gallon needed to paint the radiator.

Simple lines mark today's new homes. Gone are the bay windows, recesses, jogs and odd angles of 40 years ago. Such "gimmicks" only mean wasted materials, extra labor and added costs.

The Prairie House

The Prairie House was named and popularized by Frank Lloyd Wright in the early 1900's. It had the long horizontal lines of the prairie, horizontal bands of windows, and roof projections which continued out as porte-cocheres and pergolas. These large homes required servants, and all too often now are divided into series of apartments.

Dream Of Home Ownership Is A Reality For Six Out Of Ten American Families

Every family in a home of its own . . .

Today, more than six out of every 10 families own their own homes. This is an abrupt increase since 1940 when four out of every 10 families were home owners. Now, more families than not have homes of their own, while 20 years ago, just the reverse was true.

Some economists estimate that, considering the steady climb in family incomes, virtually every family will be able to own its own home by 1970.

There has been a tremendous economic revolution in the United States in the last two decades. It has created a huge financially-secure middle class. One of the healthy aspects of the mounting income of these families is that they have directed their growing funds to better living. Wise investments have been the rule.

Thousands of families have used their extra income to buy homes. For most of them, this has been the biggest investment of their lives, as well as the one that has given them the greatest sens of pride and joy.

Along with the increase in home ownership, the home has regained its position as the center of family life. The emergence of indoor-outdoor living, the popularity of recreation rooms and the convenience of today's homes have all had a part in this wholesome trend. More teenagers and more couples look to their homes today as the place where they prefer to do their entertaining.

A mark of the times, too, is the fact that more newlyweds than ever before are starting their married lives in their own homes. Surveys disclose that many couples start buying their own homes at age 25. This is in direct contrast to a generation ago, when the purchase of a home was a step taken comparatively late in the life of a family.

New home ownership in recent years has been made available to lower and middle income groups through smaller down payments, longer maturity periods for mortgages, lower interest rates and lower monthly payments. In fact, many families have found that the monthly payments on their homes have amounted to little more—and often less — then they used to pay out in rent. The big difference, from the standpoint of the purse, is that they now have something to show for their money—not just a collection of worthless rent receipts.

President Kennedy recently urged the construction of new homes so that the nation can "move ever closer to the goal of decent home in a suitable living environment for every American family."

Sharp Upturn In Real Estate Market Noted

A sharp rise in the real estate market was noted in the monthly report of some 575 savings and loans to the Ohio Savings and Loan League.

Joseph E. Linville, league executive secretary, said the S&L associations reported that loans for the construction or purchase of homes were 18 per cent more than in April of 1961.

Mr. Linville also said that the report revealed that the loans for both new construction and home purchases were 10 per cent more than they were in March of this year.

"This is an excellent indication that the home buying and home building business is coming out of the slight slump evidenced earlier in the year," Mr. Linville said. "If the increase continues, the industry should end the year in good shape," he added.

Mr. Linville said that he expects continued improvements in the home building and buying industry. "At this time last year," he said, "mortgage loan demand was on the down grade. The current upward trend if continued will show more substantial gains in later months."

MECHANICAL MONSTER GOBBLES GARBAGE

A DOUBLE TRUCK in newspaperman's language means two full pages of something, but to the City Division of Sanitation this unique Dempster Dumpster Dumpster means a saving in time and manpower. In less than a day it removes all the garbage from Westgate Manor—a job that formerly took three days. Costing in excess of $42,000, the 42-foot long machine consists of a tractor, trailer and hydraulic lift using a loading hopper of 18-cu. yd. capacity. It will pack away 36,000 pounds of garbage and trash for disposal. Two men operate it, and also service Eastgate Manor, University Arms, Southgate, Maytoin apartments and will use it at the State Fair, said Sanitation Superintendent Arthur Seiler.

A Better Home At Lower Cost Is Home Builders Research Goal

BY RALPH J. JOHNSON
Research Institute
National Association of Home Builders

Not all research happens in a white tiled laboratory full of test tubes.

In the home building industry, the research specialist is more likely to be found out on the building site, stop-watch in hand. His objective is to help the home owner to build a better house at a lower cost.

At the heart of the housing industry's research efforts is the Research Institute of the National Association of Home Builders. The Institute works to achieve its objectives in a number of ways. One is through the building of Research Houses to test new procedures and materials. Four such houses have been built and a fifth experimental house is to be constructed this year in Rockville, Md. To pinpoint the work, here are some of the things we believe can be done first on an experimental basis and then, in home building throughout the country:

Reduction of the total amount of on-site labor.

Cutting the total construction time.

Lessening the total weight the structure.

Improving production engineering management of the construction process.

Improving the handling of materials.

Increasing the use of component construction, that is use of large parts instead of small pieces.

Definite progress has been made, and more is expected this year. In the last decade, more change has been made in the character of home building than in all of history. Even greater changes are due in the next 10 years.

Many of the improvements are not readily apparent to the eye of the home buyer. But they are there, for his benefit and comfort. For instance, we have made progress in combining the functions of materials and equipment.

We can no longer afford the luxury of a single function for a single house part. An exterior wall is a good example. An exterior wall over the years has been composed of 12 to 14 layers. This was necessary because each layer served a separate function.

Should You Trade Up?

It is becoming almost as easy to trade in a used house for a new home as it is to trade in an old car for a new model.

Thousands of families throughout the country are switching homes in this manner.

Generally speaking, there are three types of families who own their own homes but want to trade them for new and more modern homes.

The group is comprised of those who have been married 10 to 15 years and have growing families. They need more space. Sometimes they are motivated by a desire to move to a better neighborhood where the children, particularly, will have more social advantages. In any event, the parents want better homes for themselves and the children.

Another group is composed of elder couples whose children are married and have homes of their own. The elder couples want new homes with more conveniences and less space. Modern new homes provide them with a new adventure in living.

A third group is made up of successful families who are improving their living patterns and can afford more expensive homes.

There is no set pattern for house trade-ins because of the varying nature of the transaction. Your home builder can advise you of the details of the plan that would be best for you.

Once a family has owned a home, it is easier to acquire a new and better one. The equity in the used home becomes a substantial down-payment on a new one, regardless of the manner in which the old home is sold.

KEEP ANTS OUT

Using a residual spray of roach and ant killer every month around cracks and crevices, near doorsteps will discourage ant invasion.

Spatter Floor Finishes Can Provide Utility And Beauty

Every housewife dreams of a colorful floor that does not show dirt, scuff marks, spilled foods and beverages, and which requires a minimum of maintenance. Spatter finishes, sometimes called spatter-dash, provide an easy way to fulfill this dream.

This finish consists of a coat of tough quality floor enamel in the color of your choice, which is spattered at random with one or more other colors of this durable finish.

If your present painted floor is in good condition, and the colors bright and true, there is no need to repaint. But be sure that it is free of dirt, wax, polish and grease. Mop it clean and let it dry before proceeding. If the floor has not been painted previously or if the old paint is in poor condition, then apply floor enamel in the manner to be described later on.

To get the spatters, here's what you do. Dip a brush in a can of the first color you want for the polka dot effect. Holding the brush in your right hand with the bristle pointed up, strike the metal band that holds the bristles — the technical name is ferrule — against a stick held in the other hand.

For small spatters, the brush should not be fully loaded and the stick against which it is struck should be held about a foot from the floor. For larger spatters, fill the brush fully and hold the stick three feet or so above the floor.

Be sure to protect the walls and baseboard with newspaper held in place with masking tape.

If you want the spatters to consist of several colors, wait until each color dries before going ahead to the next one. You may want the spots of the first color to be large and those of the second to be small, so vary the height accordingly.

If it is necessary to enamel the entire floor because it is unpainted or in poor condition, here's the way to go about it after making sure that it is completely clean. Where paint has worn away, sand the surrounding edges so that the spot priming will not raise the level of the finish. Then apply the enamel to these bare spots thinned in accordance with label instructions. Thin the enamel the same way if you are doing the entire floor. After the first coat has dried, apply one or two coats of the chosen color.

Floor enamels can be applied with brush or roller. The easiest way is to use a long-handled roller that makes it unnecessary to bend or kneel. Apply the enamel in two foot strokes running the length of the room, overlapping slightly. Be sure that you paint with a door behind you so that you don't paint yourself into a corner.

STARMOUNT

FEATURED ATTRACTION for the carnival fun of the West Side Jubilee is the Mad Mouse. The event runs from Monday, June 4, through 9. Mad Mouse is recognized as the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry.

West Side Jubilee Begins Monday

West Side Board of Trade's annual week-long welcome to summer will be kicked off Monday, June 4.

A big June Jubilee Parade starts the event at 6 p.m., complete with Central High School Band, 25 queen candidates riding in convertibles, the Columbus Hurricane Drum and Baton Corps, a covered wagon drawn by horses, a motorcycle color guard, antique cars and Boy Scouts.

The marchers will begin at Starling Junior High, go north on Central to Broad, east on Broad to Grubb, and south on Grubb to Sunshine Recreation Center, 667 Sullivant-av.

At Sunshine, the queen will be picked from the 25 beauties by Judge Robert M. Draper, Judge William T. Gillie, Jack Young, first assistant city attorney and Frank Reda, chief counsel of the city attorney's office.

Hugh DeMoss of WLW-C will emcee the event. The girls will parade in front of the judges in party dresses.

So far, Don McCann, director of Sunshine Recreation Center, has announced 10 Jubilee Queen candidates. They are Cheryl Johnson of 26 N. Hartford-av, Rose Ott of 991 Scott-st, Lucille Bolen of 34 N. Hartford-av, Marsha Tolbott of 286 S. Souder-av, Wanda Morris of 90 Dana-av, Lynda Stephenson of 1257 Sullivant-av, Vickie Hessler of 140 West Park-st, Ruth Bocook of 91 W. Hartford-st, Bernice Spencer of 903 W. Rich-st and Katha Miller of 868 Sullivant-av.

Gooding Amusement Co. Inc., which is headquartered on Valleyview-dr, will supply the rides for the carnival. The "midway" will feature the Mad Mouse, the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry. It requires a space of more than 130 by 80 feet and cost in excess of $65,000. It was introduced at the recent World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. Resembling a giant size roller coaster, it affords all the thrills of the dips and speeds of the giant coaster and furnishes a few new thrills of its own.

Other attractions will include a Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Flying Scooters, Roleplane, The Whip, The Scrambler, The Frolic (which was introduced at the State Fair last year) and The Paratrooper.

The kiddie rides include the Jet Flyers, Circus Train, Fire Engine and a brand new ride this year, The Umbrella Ride.

The West Side Board of Trade has put out 150,000 tickets for rides for the kids. These tickets can be obtained at any of the merchants of the area. A ticket and a dime will entitle the bearer to any ride on the midway.

According to police estimates, there were 3000 to 6000 people at the opening at Sunshine Park last year. No figures were available for the parade.

Grange Mutual Has Assets Of $24 Million

Founded in Columbus during the depression year of 1935 the Grange Mutual Casualty Co. has achieved a considerable stature in the insurance field.

The company still maintains its home office at 671 S. High-st here although it is licensed to write insurance in a number of other states. The company opened a regional office in Orlando, Fla., in 1959.

From its small beginning the company has increased its assets to $24 million and has a surplus of over $8 million. Over 300,000 policies are now in force on the company's books. The company employs over 300 persons, most of them living in the Columbus area.

Throughout this rapid expansion, the company was constantly broadening its coverage to policyholders and increasing the compensation to its agents. Through corps of approximately 450 highly trained and well qualified agents, the following forms of insurance protection are offered: (Automobile (Liability, Property Damage, Medical payments, Comprehensive, Fire and Theft, and Collision), Comprehensive Personal Family Liability, Farmers Comprehensive Personal Liability, General Liability, Garage, Personal Accident and Hospitalization, Fire and Extended Coverage, Homeowner's, and Inland Marine. Contracts are offered to give protection at a very reasonable cost.

Gas Units Give True Comfort

When you install a central gas heating-air conditioning system, you control the climate inside your home so that a condition of comfort may be maintained the year round.

Outside and inside air is mixed in the unit and passed through a filter. From this point the air is either heated as in a conventional gas heater and sent on through the duct system into the home, or it is passed over the cooling unit, where excess moisture is removed and the air is cooled and then sent through the duct system.

The operation is a rapid one with the warm or cool air continuously being circulated throughout the entire home. For in-between seasons when neither heating nor cooling is necessary, the air can still be filtered and circulated.

The cooling system in a modern gas air conditioner is much the same as that used in gas refrigerators. There are no moving parts in either the heating or cooling cycles. This pays off in noiseless, trouble-free operation and adds to the life of the equipment.

Basically, there are two types of gas air conditioners: a central system which provides cool, filtered air in the summer and warm, filtered air in the winter; and an "add-on" air conditioning unit which can generally be hooked-up to an existing warm air furnace.

Both types can be installed either indoors in a basement, utility room or closet, or out of doors providing it is close enough to ducts to allow a short connection. An attached garage or carport are possible locations.

Gas air conditioning units, like most other gas appliances, are usually more economical to operate than any other type of equipment. They are also the most efficient and dependable.

Most people buy air conditioning for the comfort it offers. After living with it for a season or two they are amazed at the countless bonuses they never dreamed they were buying: better sleep, more energy, improved appetites, less housework, little or no heavy cleaning, fewer colds, all-around better health and greater enjoyment of family life.

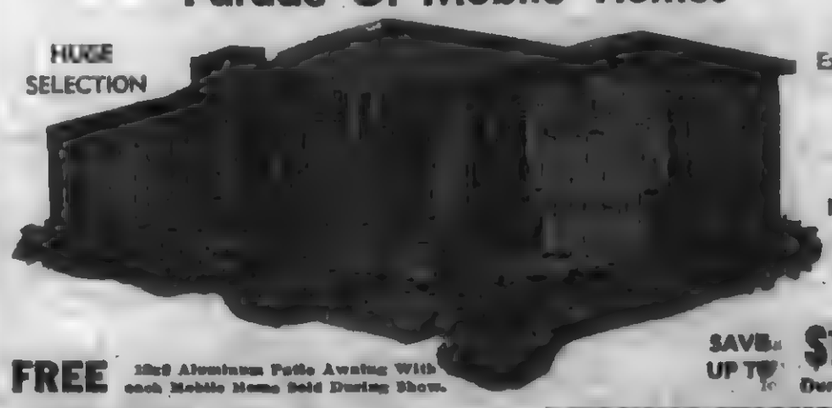
The 1st of every air conditioning system is its ability to control the air inside the home at the exact degree of coolness desired regardless of outside temperatures. The ideal system does this quietly, efficiently and economically. Only gas excels in meeting all these requirements.

When all considerations are taken into account, gas air conditioning pays for itself. It's the nation's newest necessity for healthier, better living the year round.

Stains Have Three Uses

Wood stains are used for three purposes. The first is to increase the color contrast of the natural wood grain pattern and make it more attractive.

The second function is to get a more uniform color, while the third is to produce imitations of more costly woods.



After the stain has dried, several coats of lacquer or varnish are applied to increase the beauty of the wood further and to protect it against damage while in use.

A well-drained sandy or silt loam soil is best for sweet potatoes, according to OSU Extension horticulturists.

FEATURED ATTRACTION for the carnival fun of the West Side Jubilee is the Mad Mouse. The event runs from Monday, June 4, through 9. Mad Mouse is recognized as the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry.

West Side Jubilee Begins Monday

West Side Board of Trade's annual week-long welcome to summer will be kicked off Monday, June 4.

A big June Jubilee Parade starts the event at 6 p.m., complete with Central High School Band, 25 queen candidates riding in convertibles, the Columbus Hurricane Drum and Baton Corps, a covered wagon drawn by horses, a motorcycle color guard, antique cars and Boy Scouts.

The marchers will begin at Starling Junior High, go north on Central to Broad, east on Broad to Grubb, and south on Grubb to Sunshine Recreation Center, 697 Sullivant-av.

At Sunshine, the queen will be picked from the 25 beauties by Judge Robert M. Draper, Judge William T. Gillis, Jack Young, first assistant city attorney and Frank Reda, chief counsel of the city attorney's office.

Hugh DeMoss of WLW-C will emcee the event. The girls will parade in front of the judges in party dresses.

So far, Don McCann, director of Sunshine Recreation Center, has announced 10 Jubilee Queen candidates. They are Cheryl Johnson of 35 N. Hartford-av, Rose Ott of 991 Scott-st, Lucille Bolen of 34 N. Hartford-av, Marsha Tolbott of 286 S. Souder-av, Wanda Morris of 99 Dana-av, Lynda Stephenson of 1257 Sullivant-av, Vickie Hessler of 140 West Park-st, Ruth Bocook of 91 W. Hartford-st, Bernice Spencer of 903 W. Rich-st and Katha Miller of 868 Sullivant-av.

Gooding Amusement Co. Inc., which is headquartered on Valleyview-dr, will supply the rides for the carnival. The "midway" will feature the Mad Mouse, the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry. It requires a space of more than 150 by 90 feet and cost in excess of $65,000. It was introduced at the recent World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. Resembling a giant size roller coaster, it affords all the thrills of the dips and speeds of the giant coaster and furnishes a few new thrills of its own.

Other attractions will include a Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Flying Scooters, Roleplane, The Whip, The Scrambler, The Frolic (which was introduced at the State Fair last year) and The Paratrooper.

The kiddie rides include the Jet Flyers, Circus Train, Fire Engine and a brand new ride this year, The Umbrella Ride.

The West Side Board of Trade has put out 150,000 tickets for rides for the kids. These tickets can be obtained at any of the merchants of the area. A ticket and a dime will entitle the bearer to any ride on the midway.

According to police estimates there were 5000 to 6000 people at the opening at Sunshine Park last year. No figures were available for the parade.

CHECK THIS LIST BEFORE YOU BUILD

Which is more important in choosing a home for your family — the house or the neighborhood?

The United States Savings and Loan League suggests that each may be equally important, but that the wise home buyer probably will select a neighborhood suiting his family's needs and desires before looking for an individual house.

In the Check List the League warns that too many families find the right house and neglect to inquire about the neighborhood in which they will be living.

Here are some of the suggestions made in the Check List:

The careful home buyer should look to see whether street and lot patterns in the neighborhood are arranged for appearance, convenience and safety and whether the site plans and designs of the neighborhood homes are attractively varied. He and his family should also decide whether the neighborhood landscaping is pleasing and will continue to be so over a period of years.

The home buyer wishing to protect the value of what may be the biggest investment of his lifetime should satisfy himself that zoning laws protect the residential character of the neighborhood and that most homes in the neighborhood, including the one he considers purchasing, are in the same general price range.

Adequacy of community services is another fundamental in choosing a neighborhood. For example:

Are streets paved and well maintained?

Is there a proper sewage and storm drainage system?

Are water and electricity, gas, telephone service and other utilities provided at reasonable cost?

Is there mail delivery, garbage pick up and police and fire protection?

Part of the economics of buying a home includes calculation of the community tax level in the family budget. Taxes should be consistent with the services provided, the League warns.

Looking to the future, the home buyer's budget must be flexible enough to meet the expenses of special assessments or new bond issues in the community.

Accessibility is another critical factor in judging a neighborhood. Families with children will want to be close to the proper schools and to parks and playgrounds, and most families will prefer convenient local stores, athletic and entertainment facilities and a church of their own denomination.

In addition to nearby facilities, the home buyer needs fast and frequent bus or train transportation to his place of employment, larger shopping and business areas, cultural attractions and inter-city transportation terminals.

Another, less tangible, but vital aspect of picking a neighborhood is the question of congeniality.

Generally, neighbors with similar educational and social backgrounds and those in a common income bracket get along better than people who vary widely in such characteristics. Neighbors of the same age and with children in the same age groups are also usually preferable.

When the home buyer has found a friendly, convenient and economically suitable neighborhood in which to live, then it's time for him to pick out the one house which best suits his family's needs and desires, according to the League's Check List. The Check List divides the necessary requirements of a home into those which are basic for every family and those which are different for each family.

The average person must seek expert advice to determine whether a house meets proper standards of construction. A reputable builder or real estate agent is the number one guarantee that the home buyer will make a proper choice in this respect. However, observation and common sense will answer some of the construction questions that a home buyer should ask.

For instance, does the house have adequate protection against termites, including the complete separation of wood from the ground?

The cause of large cracks and signs of seepage may be more important than their existence itself, but they are warning signs which should be investigated. Also check to see if insulation and weather stripping are adequate and if the trim fits neatly around doors and windows.

The home buyer should ask the builder or real estate agent whether the drain and storm sewage system will prevent basement flooding and whether the roof is free of leaks. He should also determine whether the heating, hot water and electrical systems are adequate for his family's needs.

Another important question, often overlooked, is whether a vapor barrier has been built into the walls of the house to help prevent paint from peeling or blistering.

Appreciation of the design of a home is a personal thing. Obviously, no family should buy a home which it finds displeasing in appearance. Nevertheless, when they have satisfied their own tastes, there are a number of more objective questions that need to be asked.

Among them is whether the design is convenient to the normal traffic pattern of every day living. A step saving kitchen and the separation of bedrooms from living area for privacy and silence will prove of immense benefit over the years.

In most cases, design should take advantage of sunlight and natural ventilation.

As a personal requirement of each particular family, the home they choose should be appropriate to whatever furnishings and household goods which they have or expect to purchase.

In terms of market value, it is best to avoid house designs which may rapidly go out of fashion and economically decrease the resale price of the home.

Closely related to home design is the question of space, and here the requirements are closely tied to individual family needs.

The League recommends that a home buyer ask himself the following questions:

Can the whole family be seated in the living room without crowding and are there enough bedrooms for parents, children and children to court?

Are bathroom facilities sufficient for periods of peak use by the family?

Parents with small children are aware of the value of adequate space for children to play indoors.

Experts suggest that there should be at least four feet of clothes closet rod space for each member of the family, three feet of closet rod space near the front entrance and adequate utility space.

Growing families should consider whether additions can be built at reasonable cost on the home they are thinking of buying.

Another important consideration in house buying is lot size and orientation.

If possible, the lot on which a house is built should be large enough to insure privacy, including the possibility of adjacent construction after the family moves in.

Another aspect of the same question is whether the view from the house is pleasant and likely to remain unchanged.

It is preferable in most climates that the house be orientated so that the living room and bedrooms are not exposed to the hot afternoon sun.

A lot graded to drain rain water away from the house is a real trouble saver for the home owner.

In choosing a house, every family must be guided by its present and potential income. Within the limits of sound financing, the home a family buys is one of the best investments possible if it is carefully

MECHANICAL MONSTER GOBBLES GARBAGE

A DOUBLE TRUCK in newspaperman's language means two full pages of something, but to the City Division of Sanitation this unique Dempster Dumpster Dumpsion means a saving in time and manpower. In less than a day it removes all the garbage from Westgate Manor—a job that formerly took three days. Costing in excess of $42,000, the 42-foot long machine consists of a tractor, trailer and hydraulic life using a loading hopper of 18-cu. yd. capacity. It will pack away 36,000 pounds of garbage and trash for disposal. Two men operate it, and also service Eastgate Manor, University Arms, Southgate, Mayfair apartments and will use it at the State Fair, said Sanitation Superintendent Arthur Beller.

MECHANICAL MONSTER GOBBLES GARBAGE

A DOUBLE TRUCK in newspapermen's language means two full pages of something, but to the City Division of Sanitation this unique Dempster Dumpster Dumpster means a saving in time and manpower. In less than a day it removes all the garbage from Westgate Manor—a job that formerly took three days. Costing in excess of $42,000, the 42-foot long machine consists of a tractor, trailer and hydraulic life using a loading hopper of 18-cu. yd. capacity. It will pack away 36,000 pounds of garbage and trash for disposal. Two men operate it, and also service Eastgate Manor, University Arms, Southgate, Mayfair apartments and will use it at the State Fair, said Sanitation Superintendent Arthur Seiler.

Simple Rules For Young Budgeters

It doesn't take a calculus major to figure that after-we-get-married budget.

"There is a simple rule for those who have never had to consider a budget before," said Virginia Pegram, director of the Home Furnishings Industry Committee.

"Allocate one week's income for one month's rent or house payment. Estimate about one year's rent as an approximate amount to furnish the first home." No matter what the amount, it is the wisdom with which it is spent that makes for satisfaction. After the basic necessities, allow enough leeway in the budget to buy at least one piece of furniture that gives you both extra pleasure and pride, she suggested at a recent conference of young homemakers.

Fewer dates on the town and more entertaining at home is usually the just-married pattern. Hobbies and [illegible] some office work may require [illegible] types of furniture the [illegible] should cover.

Check List—

Two of the most widely quoted rules of thumb for home buyers, according to the League, are that (1) a family can afford to purchase a home costing roughly two and one-half times its total annual income and (2) a family can afford roughly one week's salary for each month's total housing expenses.

Perhaps the second maxim is the most useful, since it is the monthly outlay which most immediately affects the family's standard of living.

In budgeting monthly housing expenses, the family must include the monthly repayment of the loan made to buy the home, including principal, interest, insurance and taxes. The family should also include an estimate of monthly expenses for repair and maintenance and the monthly cost of heat and utilities. It may also add monthly payments on furniture or household goods purchased with credit.

In addition to monthly payments, the family budget must include the outlay for initial housing expenses, including the down payment and closing costs and any immediate repair and modernization. Furniture, appliances and household goods purchased with cash, and taxes and insurance paid at the outset are also among the initial expenses.

Newlyweds Off To Better Start With Dishwasher

An automatic dishwasher that converts from a portable to a built-in makes an ideal wedding present. Newlyweds can use it as a portable when they first set up housekeeping, and then install it permanently as a built-in under-the-counter unit when they move into their own home.

As a portable dishwasher, it rests on wheels that make it easy to move about — even to the dining room where it can be loaded directly from the table.

After the dishes are washed, rinsed, and dried automatically, the dishwasher can be moved from the sink to the most convenient spot in the kitchen—or even another room.

When a family buys or builds a new home, their convertible dishwasher can be installed as a built-in with a minimum of trouble in the same space a standard kitchen cabinet would occupy.

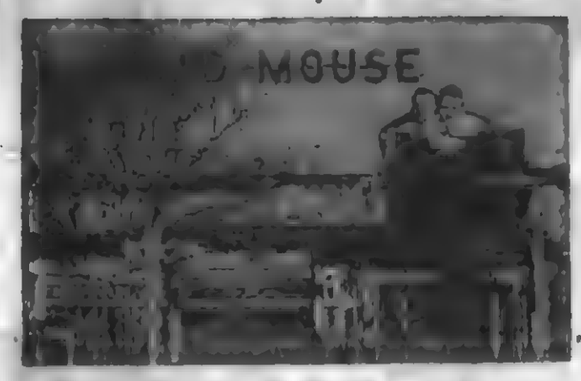
We don't like to crow . . . but
The Wall Street Journal indicates
GROWTH OF SUBURBAN PRESS HAS BEEN PHENOMENAL



This growth in home news publications throughout the country is reflected in the progress of Hartley Newspapers.

With three newspapers and a modest circulation of 25,000 less than ten years ago, 75,000 copies now reach the homes of Columbus area residents each week through the medium of seven Hartley newspapers.

Why this phenomenal growth in home newspapers here and throughout the nation? Polls clearly indicate that the reading trend is toward factual reporting—in depth—of the affairs of the community—its schools, churches, local government, civic and fraternal organizations, etc.—The close-to-home happenings that are so important to our people today.

No, we don't like to crow, but we're awfully proud of the wonderful acceptance of our newspapers in the Columbus area—by both readers and advertisers.

FEATURED ATTRACTION for the carnival fun of the West Side Jubilee is the Mad Mouse. The event runs from Monday, June 4, through 9. Mad Mouse is recognized as the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry.

West Side Jubilee Begins Monday

West Side Board of Trade's annual week-long welcome to summer will be kicked off Monday, June 4.

A big June Jubilee Parade starts the event at 6 p.m., complete with Central High School Band, 25 queen candidates riding in convertibles, the Columbus Hurricane Drum and Baton Corps, a covered wagon drawn by horses, a motorcycle color guard, antique cars and Boy Scouts.

The marchers will begin at Starling Junior High, go north on Central to Broad, east on Broad to Grubb, and south on Grubb to Sunshine Recreation Center, 667 Sullivant-av.

At Sunshine, the queen will be picked from the 25 beauties by Judge Robert M. Draper, Judge William T. Gillie, Jack Young, first assistant city attorney and Frank Reda, chief counsel of the city attorney's office.

Hugh DeMoss of WLW-C will emcee the event. The girls will parade in front of the judges in party dresses.

So far, Don McCann, director of Sunshine Recreation Center, has announced 10 Jubilee Queen candidates. They are Cheryl Johnson of 36 N. Hartford-av, Rose Ott of 301 Scott-st, Lucille Bolen of 34 N. Hartford-av, Martha Tolbott of 286 S. Souder-av, Wanda Morris of 93 Dana-av, Lynda Stephenson of 1257 Sullivant-av, Vickie Reasler of 140 West Park-st, Ruth Bocook of 91 W. Hartford-st, Bernice Spencer of 902 W. Rich-st and Katha Miller of 868 Sullivant-av.

Geeding Amusement Co. Inc., which is headquartered on Valleyview-dr, will supply the rides for the carnival. The "midway" will feature the Mad Mouse, the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry. It requires a space of more than 150 by 50 feet and cost in excess of $65,000. It was introduced at the recent World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. Reassembling a giant size roller coaster, it affords all the thrills of the dips and speeds of the giant coaster and furnishes a few new thrills of its own.

Other attractions will include a Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Flying Scooters, Roleplane, The Whip, The Scrambler, The Frolic (which was introduced at the State Fair last year) and The Paratrooper.

The kiddie rides include the Jet Flyers, Circus Train, Fire Engine and a brand new ride this year, The Umbrella [illegible].

The West Side Board of Trade has put out 150,000 tickets for rides for the kids. These tickets can be obtained at any of the merchants of the area. A ticket and a dime will entitle the bearer to any ride on the midway.

According to police estimates there were 5000 to 6000 people at the opening at Sunshine Park last year. No figures were available for the parade.

One Million Homes Heated Electrically

The phenomenal growth of electrically heated homes is one of the outstanding trends in American home building today. As recently as 1960, fewer than 850,000 homes were heated by electricity. By 1961, the figure had risen to more than a million and, according to an educated prediction, the total should reach five million by 1970.

Unlike Topsy, the use of electric heating didn't just grow. There are sound reasons for it that are easily traced. Of prime importance, of course, is the fact that an increasing number of families have recognized the advantages of electric heating, and have demanded it in their homes.

Equally as important is the fact that home builders like to equip their homes with electric heat—not as an optional extra but as a standard feature. There are several reasons for this growing builder preference.

For one, the cost of installing electric heat, including both labor and equipment, is considerably less than for other heating systems. This saving, figured in the selling price of his houses, gives the builder an advantage in a very competitive market. At the same time, he knows he's supplying his clients with the most modern, efficient heating system available today.

In many areas, progressive electric power suppliers have worked closely with builders to promote the use of electric heating. Favorable rates have been established and estimates of operating costs have been backed up strongly. Often these estimates have proved conservative, and have exceeded actual cost.

Because electricity is such a flexible energy course, several basic electric heating systems have been developed. This variety assures that whatever the particular heating needs of the individual family, there's an electric heating system available. These include:

Baseboard Units. Baseboard electric heating units are installed along the outside walls of each room. They blend into baseboards, take up little room and make room decoration and furniture arrangement easy.

Ceiling Cable. The only sign of a heating system is the thermostat. Heating cable is stapled to ceiling board and then concealed completely with plaster or plasterboard. Heat radiates gently from the ceiling throughout the entire room.

Wall Panels. A number of wall panel types are available. One radiates best from a thin glass panel, either surface-mounted or recessed in a wall. Another type combines both convection and radiation. Some employ a fan for air movement.

Electric Furnace. A compact central unit that draws air over heated resistance coils and then distributes the warmed air via ducts throughout the house.

Cool Kitchens

Yellow is often recommended for enameling kitchens because it is a cheerful sunny color. But pure yellow is also a warm color, and even air-conditioned modern kitchens can become too hot. If you paint your kitchen yellow, select a pale tint that is cheerful without creating the feeling of heat. Pale blues and greens are often preferred because they are cool colors.

New Home Financing Is Easier Than Ever Before

By WILLIAM KERWIN
Director of Information
National League of Insured Savings Associations

Planning to buy a home? It's easier than ever before.

In fact, the availability of homes—as well as the financing—are so attractive that it might pay in the long run to consider whether this is the time to buy that larger home a growing family requires.

The Cold War debate over rocketry sometimes obscures the fact that the United States excels the Soviets in many important fields. Housing is one of those fields.

Americans are better housed than any other nation—both in terms of quality and quantity of our stock of homes. Equally important, our supply of housing—already the envy of the world—is constantly being improved.

A key factor in this achievement has been the availability of home financing. Thanks to refinements in our home financing techniques, home ownership is within the reach of practically every family.

For example, there are more than 6,000 savings and loan associations in the United States devoted almost exclusively to the financing of homes. With their resources of more than $80 billion, these associations finance almost half the homes purchased every year in this country, and are the foundation of our home ownership program.

In addition, there are thousands of other financial institutions equipped to provide home mortgage loans such as mutual savings banks, insurance companies, and commercial banks.

Although there is a variety of sources for home financing funds, there are only three basic types of home loans available to the public: (1) conventional loans; (2) loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration; and (3) the GI home loan which is guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

Conventional loans. Six out of every 10 home loans are made conventionally, making it the most popular loan plan in use. Characteristically, the conventional home loan is based on a sound appraisal of the property with the amount and terms of the loan set according to banking regulations. The conventional loan differs from the FHA-insured or VA home loan in that the lender is not insured against the risk of possible loss.

However, the term and downpayment requirements for a conventional loan are similar to those under the FHA and VA programs and may carry an interest rate equal to or below the total cost to the buyer under the FHA program.

For example, Federal savings and loan associations are authorized to make 30-year loans up to a maximum $26,500 with a cash downpayment of 10 per cent of the appraised value. Recently, the nationwide average conventional loan interest rate has been approximately six per cent.

FHA-insured home loans. In passing the Housing Act of 1961, Congress authorized the Federal Housing Administration to liberalize the terms under which a home may be purchased under the FHA program. It must be pointed out that FHA merely insures a loan made by a private lending institution against future loss.

Under the program, a home buyer is presently required to pay an interest rate of 5¼ per cent plus an additional one-half of one per cent to cover the cost of the insurance for a total charge of 5¾ per cent. The term of loan may run as long as 35 years.

FHA requires a minimum downpayment of three per cent on the first $15,000 of appraised value, 10 per cent on the next $5,000 and 25 per cent on the remainder above $20,000. The maximum home loan FHA will insure is $25,000.

GI Home loan program. For many years, the GI Home loan program of the Veterans Administration has helped many World War II and Korean War servicemen obtain necessary shelter for their families. In recent years, the GI loan program has been diminishing due to an unrealistic interest rate and a growing desire in Congress to terminate the program.

Under present regulations, the VA does not require a cash downpayment on a GI home loan but it is likely that the lending institution would require a small downpayment from the home buyer. The term of the loan may run for 30 years and the interest rate is fixed at 5¼ per cent.

In the case of each mortgage loan program, the home buyer is required to make monthly payments sufficient to reduce the indebtedness by a certain amount so that the loan will be "amortized" or repaid during the time specified in the contract.

Years of experience have shown that the amortized home mortgage loan—which was pioneered by the savings and loan industry—is the surest, fastest route to home ownership. It has proven successful for millions of Americans and it will work for you.

CLOSE-QUARTER TIP

When a regular saw frame will not fit into a work area requiring a hacksaw cut, split a heavy dowel in half lengthwise. Insert blade and wrap dowel and sandwiched blade with friction tape, to provide a workable temporary handle.

PREVENT SPLITTING

To keep the far edge of a board from splitting off while you're planing across the end grain, clamp board in a vise with a piece of scrap tight against it. Any splitting will occur on the scrap.

In late May tent caterpillers leave their tents and crawl up the sides of homes and shade trees looking for a place to spin cocoons.

FEATURED ATTRACTION for the carnival fun of the West Side Jubilee is the Mad Mouse. The event runs from Monday, June 4, through 9. Mad Mouse is recognized as the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry.

West Side Jubilee Begins Monday

West Side Board of Trade's annual week-long welcome to summer will be kicked off Monday, June 4.

A big June Jubilee Parade starts the event at 6 p.m., complete with Central High School Band, 25 queen candidates riding in convertibles, the Columbus Hurricane Drum and Baton Corps, a covered wagon drawn by horses, a motorcycle color guard, antique cars and Boy Scouts.

The marchers will begin at Starling Junior High, go north on Central to Broad, east on Broad to Grubb, and south on Grubb to Sunshine Recreation Center, 667 Sullivant-av.

At Sunshine, the queen will be picked from the 25 beauties by Judge Robert M. Draper, Judge William T. Gillie, Jack Young, first assistant city attorney and Frank Reda, chief counsel of the city attorney's office.

Hugh DeMoss of WLW-C will emcee the event. The girls will parade in front of the judges in party dresses.

So far, Don McCann, director of Sunshine Recreation Center, has announced 10 Jubilee Queen candidates. They are Cheryl Johnson of 28 N. Hartford-av, Rose Ott of 901 Scott-st, Lucille Bolen of 34 N. Hartford-av, Marsha Talbott of 286 S. Souder-av, Wanda Morris of 69 Dana-av, Lynda Stephenson of 1287 Sullivant-av, Vickie Hessler of 140 West Park-st, Ruth Bocook of 91 W. Hartford-st, Bernice Spencer of 902 W. Rich-st and Katha Miller of 868 Sullivant-av.

Gooding Amusement Co. Inc., which is headquartered on Valleyview-dr, will supply the rides for the carnival. The "midway" will feature the Mad Mouse, the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry. It requires a space of more than 150 by 50 feet and cost in excess of $65,000. It was introduced at the recent World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. Resembling a giant zinc roller coaster, it affords all the thrills of the dips and speeds of the giant coaster and furnishes a few new thrills of its own.

Other attractions will include a Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Flying Scooters, Roleplane, The Whip, The Scrambler, The Frolic (which was introduced at the State Fair last year) and The Paratrooper.

The kiddie rides include the Jet Flyers, Circus Train, Fire Engine and a brand new ride this year, The Umbrella Ride.

The West Side Board of Trade has put out 150,000 tickets for rides for the kids. These tickets can be obtained at any of the merchants of the area. A ticket and a dime will entitle the bearer to any ride on the midway.

According to police estimates there were 5000 to 6000 people at the opening at Sunshine Park last year. No figures were available for the parade.

Self-Storing Snack Tables Asset For Casual Parties

If you're the hostess with the biggest hospitality heart, you've conjured the problem of where to store away enough snack tables for informal entertaining. Furniture designers' wives ... have had the same problems, and presented them to the "head man."

In furniture stores you'll see many neat and graceful solutions. One unit appears as a small four drawer commode or chest. Its drawers pull all the way out, and are in reality four well ... snack tables with folding legs.

... under which hide four smaller ... can be drawn out for refreshments or be used as stools, are available in several different styles. A long low table to companion an overscale sofa, has a pop-up center compartment holding smaller folding tables.

If folding and unfolding little table legs are not for you, choose a pair of lamp tables that have two or three smaller tables nesting under them.

Seal Hardboard

Hardboard, which is sold under a variety of trade names, is a versatile material popular with home craftsmen and can be painted as attractively as real wood if the proper method is used. Because of the uneven density of hardboard, the surface face must be sealed to prevent blotches in the decorative topcoat. Recommended sealers are latex paints, enamel undercoaters alkyd primer-sealers and similar.

MECHANICAL MONSTER GOBBLES GARBAGE

A DOUBLE TRUCK in newspapermen's language means two full pages of something, but to the City Division of Sanitation this unique Dempster Dumpster means a saving in time and manpower. In less than a day it removes all the garbage from Westgate Manor—a job that formerly took three days. Costing in excess of $42,000, the 42-foot long machine consists of a tractor, trailer and hydraulic lift using a loading hopper of 18-cu. yd. capacity. It will pack away 36,000 pounds of garbage and trash for disposal. Two men operate it, and also service Eastgate Manor, University Arms, Southgate, Mayfair apartments and will use it at the State Fair, said Sanitation Superintendent Arthur Bellar.

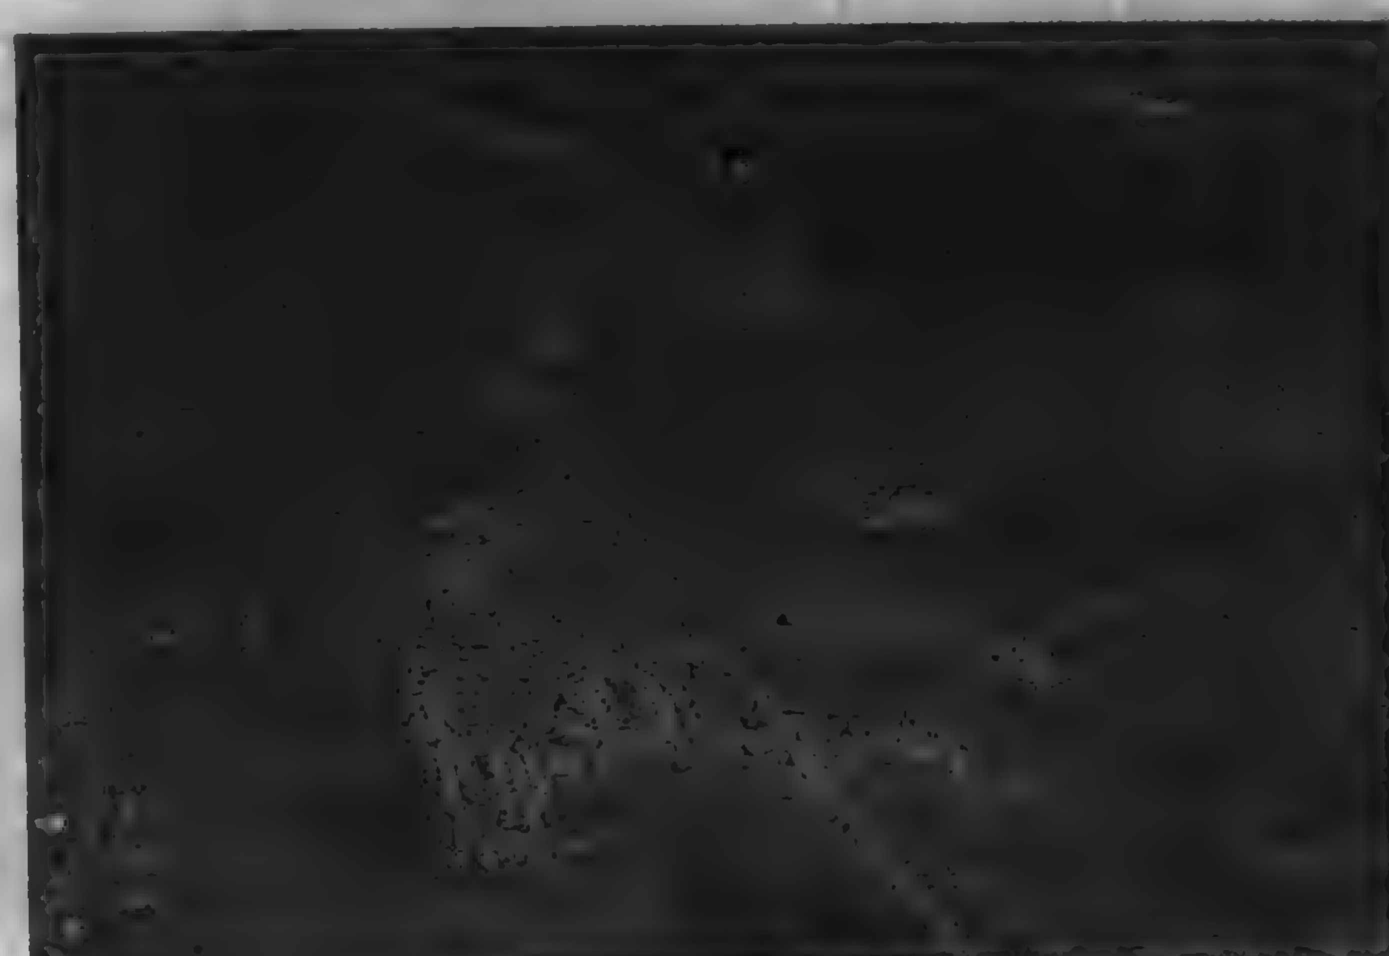
Phone Services Aid Family Convenience

Developments in telephone services for the home have been so rapid in the past few year that today many families are unaware of the number and variety of telephonic servants at their beck and call.

Families could benefit in greater comfort and convenience by reviewing their telephone needs in terms of newly available services.



Perhaps the most revolutionary new service available today is Home Interphone. This new system permits a wide range of intercom services from answering the front door to minding the baby, plus the handling of outside calls from every phone in the house.

It is particularly useful in emergencies, such as reporting a fire or accident, or calling for help.

For those who would like a telephone chime instead of a ring, Bell Chime is available. At the flick of a switch, Bell Chime provides a choice of three sounds—a loud bell, a low bell or a melodic chime.

Today's homemaker also has

Bedroom Needs Installed Lighting

If you spend one-third of your life in the bedroom — and most folks do—you have eight reasons for providing proper installed lighting, says the American Home Lighting Institute:

—To select clothing.
—To dress and groom.
—To see into drawers.
—To lighten cleaning and bedmaking.
—To protect against accidents.
—To read in bed.
—To care for the sick.
—To enhance wall colors, fabrics and furniture.

What it comes to lighting, the bedroom is one of the most neglected rooms in the home, according to the Institute.

Simple Steps To Rose Success

No magic is needed to obtain beautiful roses in your garden. Select quality bushes and then follow these simple and easy planting steps recommended by All-America Rose Selections.

1. Dig a hole 18" wide and about 12" to 15" deep. Replace several inches of loose, prepared soil (soil mixed well with a cup of balanced rose food and several spadesful of peat moss, leaf mold, compost). Form a mound in center.
2. Place rosebush on mound and spread its roots naturally down slope. Position plant on mound so that bud union (knotlike, swollen area) is at about ground level.
3. Cover the roots with soil, working in the soil around roots to eliminate air pockets. Fill hole three-fourths full and tamp down firmly. Pour several pailsful of water into hole and allow to drain.
4. After water has completely settled, fill in remainder of hole with soil and mound up around canes to a height of about eight inches. Remove protective mound after a week or ten days.

How Much Home Can You Afford To Buy Today?

Buying a new home? Decide first the price you can afford to pay in keeping with your present financial situation.

Many present day buyers are either wishful thinkers or ultra-conservative and both mental attitudes can lead to unhappiness.

Buying too much house and hoping that income will increase or other expenses will remain at a minimum makes one a financial slave to the monthly mortgage payments. Buying too small a house might make the family unhappy with its lack of space.

There is a pretty fair formula which can safely determine your price bracket. Decide first how much money you have available for both the down payment and immediate expenses.

Down payment is extremely important. The larger it is and the smaller the monthly payments the more house you can afford. Don't, however, skimp or overlook such initial costs as landscaping a new lawn or residing an older home with insulating siding to buy such items as appliances and storm windows. Consider such outlays as closing costs and moving expenses.

After you have the down payment established you must then determine how much of your income you can budget for the monthly principal, interest, taxes and insurance payments. Don't use your gross income as a basis or even your net take home pay. Although 25 per cent of your gross income for the housing payments is a fair rule-of-thumb, you can figure it much closer.

Add all anticipated house-hold expenses, food, clothing, medical, entertainment, fuel, transportation, savings etc. Subtract these from your take home pay. This becomes the amount you can afford for monthly mortgage payments.

A word of caution, base these computations on your own and immediate income. Don't include the raise you've been promised or such temporary income as the money other members of the household are making, or short term dividends.

New Home Deserves Best New Features

Several new types of furniture pieces can be used to create architectural interests in otherwise ordinary rooms. Mouldings, window framing, panelling and other details the building trade calls "trim" are usually eliminated. Also due to high building costs many new houses are short on storage space.

The new furniture types solve storage and decorative problems. To establish a key style for a plain room such pieces of furniture are invaluable.

Decide the function you require, such as storage for books, magazines, stereo, TV or hobby equipment. In the furniture style you want, you will find pieces to work for you as well as beautify the room.

A Pair Of Cabinets

A pair of tall slim bookcases with base cabinets have a deceptively large amount of storage. In brown mahogany or cherry, placed on either side of a living room door or window, they might set the tone for a contemporary or traditional room. In Early American design, placed on either side of a window, they would create the effect of the deep window sills typical of Cape Cod houses.

More practical, more handsome, than a plain wood panelled wall is a series of matching units. Cabinets and small drawer chests with open or closed shelf units stacked on them give color and style. While the effect is that of costly built-in cabinet work, such a grouping has infinite flexibility. They may be changed to fit one wall length currently, but can be reassembled to fit another, or even two others.

A DOUBLE TRUCK in newspaperman's language means two full pages of something, but to the City Division of Sanitation this unique Dempster Dumpster means a saving in time and manpower. In less than a day it removes all the garbage from Westgate Manor—a job that formerly took three days. Costing in excess of $42,000, the 42-foot long machine consists of a tractor, trailer and hydraulic life using a leading hopper of 18-cu. yd. capacity. It will pack away 36,000 pounds of garbage and trash for disposal. Two men operate it, and also service Eastgate Manor, University Arms, Southgate, Mayfair apartments and will use it at the State Fair, said Sanitation Superintendent Arthur Beller.

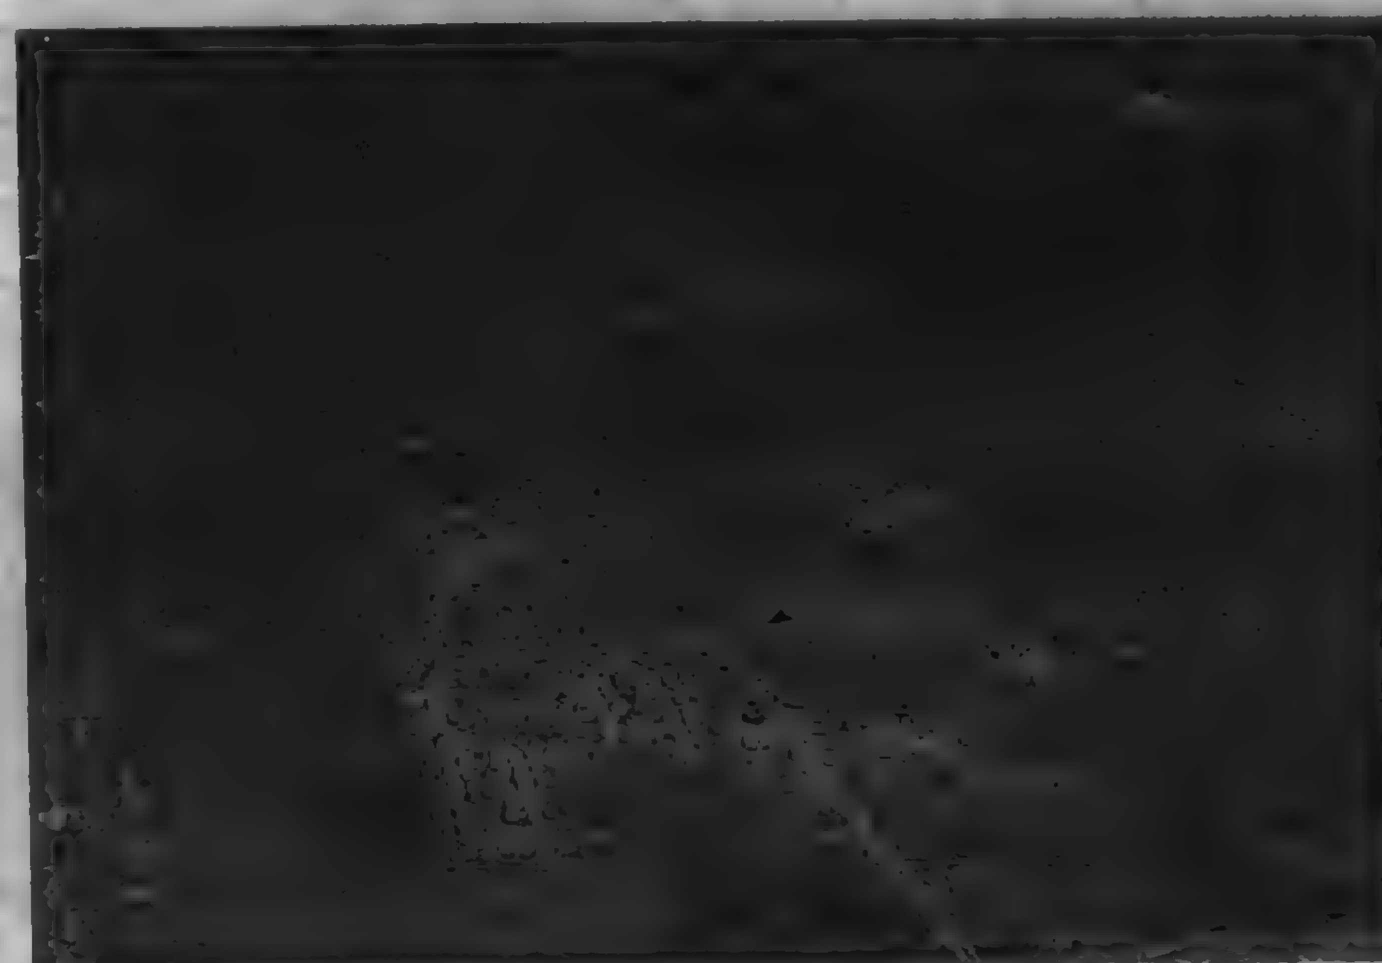
Phone Services Aid Family Convenience

Developments in telephone services for the home have been so rapid in the past few year that today many families are unaware of the number and variety of telephonic servants at their beck and call.

Families could benefit in greater comfort and convenience by reviewing their telephone needs in terms of newly available services.



Perhaps the most revolutionary new service available today is Home Interphone. This new system permits a wide range of intercom services from answering the front door to minding the baby, plus the handling of outside calls from every phone in the house.

It is particularly useful in emergencies, such as reporting a fire or accident, or calling for help.

For those who would like a telephone chime instead of a ring, Bell Chime is available. At the flick of a switch, Bell Chime provides a choice of three sounds—a loud bell, a low bell or a melodic chime.

Today's homemaker also has

Bedroom Needs Installed Lighting

If you spend one-third of your life in the bedroom — and most folks do—you have eight reasons for providing proper installed lighting, says the American Home Lighting Institute:

—To select clothing.
—To dress and groom.
—To see into drawers.
—To lighten cleaning and bedmaking.
—To protect against accidents.
—To read in bed.
—To care for the sick.
—To enhance wall colors, fabrics and furniture.

What it comes to lighting, the bedroom is one of the most neglected rooms in the home, according to the Institute.

FEATURED ATTRACTION for the carnival fun of the West Side Jubilee is the Mad Mouse. The event runs from Monday, June 4, through 9. Mad Mouse is recognized as the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry.

West Side Jubilee Begins Monday

West Side Board of Trade's annual week-long welcome to summer will be kicked off Monday, June 4.

A big June Jubilee Parade starts the event at 6 p.m., complete with Central High School Band, 25 queen candidates riding in convertibles, the Columbus Hurricane Drum and Baton Corps, a covered wagon drawn by horses, a motorcycle color guard, antique cars and Boy Scouts.

The marchers will begin at Starling Junior High, go north on Central to Broad, east on Broad to Grubb, and south on Grubb to Sunshine Recreation Center, 867 Sullivant-av.

At Sunshine, the queen will be picked from the 25 beauties by Judge Robert M. Draper, Judge William T. Gillie, Jack Young, first assistant city attorney and Frank Reda, chief counsel of the city attorney's office.

Hugh DeMoss of WLW-C will emcee the event. The girls will parade in front of the judges in party dresses.

So far, Don McCann, director of Sunshine Recreation Center, has announced 10 Jubilee Queen candidates. They are Cheryl Johnson of 35 N. Hartford-av, Rose Ott of 901 Scott-st, Lucille Bolen of 34 N. Hartford-av, Marsha Tolbott of 236 S. Souder-av, Wanda Morris of 90 Dana-av, Lynda Stephenson of 1297 Sullivant-av, Vickie Hessler of 140 West Park-st, Ruth Bocook of 91 W. Hartford-st, Bernice Spencer of 903 W. Rich-st and Kathe Miller of 868 Sullivant-av.

Gooding Amusement Co. Inc., which is headquartered on Valleyview-dr, will supply the rides for the carnival. The "midway" will feature the Mad Mouse, the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry. It requires a space of more than 150 by 80 feet and cost in excess of $65,000. It was introduced at the recent World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. Resembling a giant size roller coaster, it affords all the thrills of the dips and speeds of the giant coaster and furnishes a few new thrills of its own.

Other attractions will include a Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Flying Scooters, Roleplane, The Whip, The Scrambler, The Frolic (which was introduced at the State Fair last year) and The Paratrooper.

The kiddie rides include the Jet Flyers, Circus Train, Fire Engine and a brand new ride this year, The Umbrella Ride.

The West Side Board of Trade has put out 150,000 tickets for rides for the kids. These tickets can be obtained at any of the merchants of the area. A ticket sells a dime will entitle the bearer to any ride on the midway.

According to police estimates, there were 5000 to 6000 people at the opening at Sunshine Park last year. No figures were available for the parade.

Simple Steps To Rose Success

No magic is needed to obtain beautiful roses in your garden. Select quality bushes and then follow these simple and easy planting steps recommended by All-America Rose Sections.

1. Dig a hole 18" wide and about 12" to 15" deep. Replace several inches of loose, prepared soil (soil mixed well with a cup of balanced rose food and several spadesful of peat moss, leaf mold, compost). Form a mound in center.
2. Place rosebush on mound and spread its roots naturally down slope. Position plant on mound so that bud union (knotlike, swollen area) is at about ground level.
3. Cover the roots with soil, working in the soil around roots to eliminate air pockets. Fill hole three-fourths full and tamp down firmly. Pour several pailsful of water into hole and allow to drain.
4. After water has completely settled, fill in remainder of hole with soil and mound up around canes to a height of about eight inches. Remove protective mound after a week or ten days.

How Much Home Can You Afford To Buy Today?

Buying a new home? Decide first the price you can afford to pay in keeping with your present financial situation.

Many present day buyers are either wishful thinkers or ultra-conservative and both mental attitudes can lead to unhappiness.

Buying too much house and hoping that income will increase or other expenses will remain at a minimum makes one a financial slave to the monthly mortgage payments. Buying too small a house might make the family unhappy with its lack of space.

There is a pretty fair formula which can safely determine your price bracket. Decide first how much money you have available for both the down payment and immediate expenses.

Down payment is extremely important. The larger it is and the smaller the monthly payments the more house you can afford. Don't, however, skimp or overlook such factual costs as landscaping a new home or residing an older house with insulating siding to buy such items as appliances and storm windows. Consider such outlays as closing costs and moving expenses.

After you have the down payment established you must then determine how much of your income you can budget for the monthly principal, interest, taxes and insurance payments. Don't use your gross income as a basis or even your net take home pay. Although 25 per cent of your gross income for the housing payments is a fair rule-of-thumb, you can figure it much closer.

Add all anticipated house-hold expenses, food, clothing, medical, entertainment, fuel, transportation, savings etc. Subtract these from your take home pay. This becomes the amount you can afford for monthly mortgage payments.

A word of caution, base these computations on your own and immediate income. Don't include the raise you've been promised or such temporary income as the money other members of the household are making, or short term dividends.

New Home Deserves Best New Features

Several new types of furniture pieces can be used to create architectural interests in otherwise ordinary rooms. Mouldings, window framing, panelling and other details the building trade calls "trim" are usually eliminated. Also due to high building costs many new houses are short on storage space.

The new furniture types solve storage and decorative problems. To establish a key style for a plain room such pieces of furniture are invaluable.

Decide the function you require, such as storage for books, magazines, stereo, TV or hobby equipment. In the furniture style you want, you will find pieces to work for you as well as beautify the room.

A Pair Of Cabinets

A pair of tall slim bookcases with base cabinets have a deceptively large amount of storage. In brown mahogany or cherry, placed on either side of a living room door or window, they might set the tone for a contemporary or traditional room. In Early American design, placed on either side of a window, they would create the effect of the deep window sills typical of Cape Cod houses.

More practical, often more handsome, than a plain wood panelled wall is a series of matching units. Cabinets and small drawer chests with open or closed shelf units stacked on them give color and style. While the effect is that of costly built-in cabinet work, such a grouping has infinite flexibility. They may be chosen to fit one wall length currently, but can be re-assembled to fit another, or even two others.

'Complete Home' Idea Stressed As First Ryan Homes Open In Columbus

A new concept in area building—"the complete home"—will be the main selling point as Edward M. Ryan, prominent Pittsburgh builder, opens his first suburban home June 3 in Karl Meadows.

An outspoken advocate of cost reduction in building, Ryan has built 1000 homes in the Pittsburgh area in the last two years, all with "complete home" facilities designed to end large expenses of homeowners after they have purchased a new house.

Included in these features are complete gas or electric kitchens; screens on all windows; Sanitas wall coverings in baths and powder rooms; and in most cases, range hoods.

"We feel that there is great potential in the Columbus area for the type of home we build," states Ryan. "In our price range from $16,000 to $32,000 we are able to offer a full year guarantee. During this time, any defects attributable to us will be repaired free of charge."

Backing up the Ryan image of quality and responsibility, Better Homes and Gardens recently editorialized: "Ed Ryan represents the builders of this country who are dedicated to giving the home buyer his money's worth.

Part of Ryan's success story in the Pittsburgh area has been his insistence on including the finest in materials. Each home contains a Bryant warm air furnace and water heater, General Electric or Caloric range, Andersen wood windows, natural birch kitchen cabinets, cast iron bath tubs, No. 1 red oak flooring, heavy duty aluminum gutters and downspouts, and American-Standard plumbing fixtures.

Each home is adaptable to add on air conditioning.

In addition to Karl Meadows, Ryan is building homes in Kendale, Hills and Dales, Arlington and Worthington Estates, all scheduled to open later this spring and early summer.

The four models offered range from three to five bedrooms and feature brick and heavy duty aluminum siding exteriors. Some models include family rooms, slate center hall, Thermal-pane picture window, and large walk-in closets.

For Mildew-

If mildew forms on the enameled walls of your kitchen or bath, here's what to do. Wash the walls with a solution of sodium hypochlorite made by adding one and one half cups of a household bleach such as Chlorox or Purex to a gallon of water. Brush this on the affected areas and let remain for five minutes. Then rinse with clean water. Ask your reputable paint dealer for a mildew resistent enamel or for a mildewicide which can be added to the enamel.

PREVENTS SHINE

One way to prevent navy blue or black trousers from becoming shiny is to use a pressing cloth that has been dampened with a solution of one teaspoon of bluing in a pint of water.

KEEP THE GLOSS

Don't use cleaners for washing glossy enamelled surfaces unless you want to remove the gloss. Instead, use a detergent solution or one of the products designed for washing painted surfaces without dulling the gloss. Start at the bottom of the wall or woodwork and wash upwards.

Phone

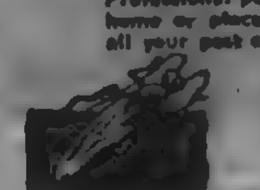
her choice of new, streamlined telephone instruments. With the one-phone rapidly becoming a thing of the past, families are striving to integrate the style of extension phones to the decor and needs of special locations.

The compact Princess phone, with built-in night light on the dial, is most often found in the bedroom, while the handy wall model is especially appropriate for kitchen or basement use.

TWO'S COMPANY

Two ovens are in demand today by particular cooks. The 1962 lines of electric ranges offer double-ovens in built-in models as well as in free standing units.



SPATTER MATTER

A paper bag tied around a lighting fixture will protect it from being spattered when a ceiling is painted.

SPACE SAVER

Roses, Imagination Key To Landscaping

GOLDEN SLIPPERS — Floribunda

CHRISTIAN DIOR — Hybrid Tea

What's the secret for lifting the landscaping of your home out of the ordinary? The solution is simple. Plan now — with spring planting approaching — to stock up on the many new and modern roses and then let your imagination run rampant.

A recent cross-country sampling by All-America Rose selections, the national trade group of garden rose nurseries, confirms that it is the imaginative plantsman who has set the pace with the many ingenious new ways roses can serve in landscaping.

YOU HAVE ONLY to look at the stunning "do-it-yourself" effects created by average home gardeners to see that formal displays are plantings of the past. Liberal portions of their own imagination, combined with concepts borrowed from the professional landscape architect, have fashioned striking visual designs as well as a warm and welcoming atmosphere for their homes.

Some of the "home-owner inspired" landscaping ideas found in this AARS survey will fit your needs perfectly. Still others will help inspire adaptations or even new concepts. In either case, free reign to your creativity and a free use of roses can perform the right magic.

TAKING THE CUE from professionally landscaped gardens, amateur rosarians are mixing and matching roses with perennials, annuals and bulbs to create brilliant effects. As beautiful as roses are alone, their loveliness, color and form are often enhanced with other species, producing that just right look. Even in this arrangement individual blooms can still be enjoyed for close-up inspection.

The two 1962 All-America roses, Christian Dior and King's Ransom — both classic hybrid teas — blend ideally in this concept.

Try Christian Dior, with its stunning iridescent crimson blooms, with a white carpet of Snow Alyssum as its foreground. The large chrome yellow flowers of King's Ransom would make a cheerful combination with a planting of tawny snapdragons.

Use Gloss

If you are planning to enamel furniture, it's better to use a semi-gloss or gloss enamel than a flat wall enamel or paint. The shinier types of enamel can be washed more frequently than the flat.

GOES WHERE YOU GO

A portable dishwasher is a good traveling companion. It's not for every weekend jaunt, but if you're making a permanent move, or even a temporary one of some duration—to a cottage for the summer, for instance—you can take a portable electric dishwasher along.

True Love And Beauty Symbolized By Roses

Home owners can be proud of their roses, which lend an aura all their own to the home property. Few flowers add so much as the rose in beautifying the property from spring to heavy frost.

In the "language of flowers" different types of roses symbolize true love, freshness, beauty or virtue. In Christian symbolism, the rose is emblematic of "a person without peer."

Rose gardens or fences or specimen plants on the property add much to its attractiveness. The planting of a half-dozen rose plants each year, in time returns a lovely garden of all the newly developed varieties. Growers have gone to great pains and heavy expense to hybridize ever lovalier blooms. A grower may gamble on growing 10,000 or more seedlings to find not even one improved variety. Once he does find a wonderful new rose, however, he has the thrill of a lifetime. His next step is to test it in all climatic areas of the country. On the basis of reports from these tests, he may gamble on producing many thousands of new plants, hoping that home owners will take to their beauty as he did. It often takes up to ten years or more in developing a new variety.

From this constant improvement and testing come new hybrid teas, floribunda, grandiflora, climbing or miniature roses to beautify home properties. Grandiflora is a comparatively new classification of large growing rose plants with quality flowers used as specimen plants on the property, or in gardens. Floribundas are somewhat smaller, but covered with blooms, sometimes in clusters. Climbing roses offer cascades of flowers beside a porch, garage or over a trellis. Hundreds of blooms are produced.

Use roses for a particular purpose, nurserymen advise, whether in a garden, or a beautiful "living fence," as specimen plants, or border plants. Good nurserymen everywhere will advise the varieties to plant for each purpose. Rose mail order catalogues, too, describe what varieties to use for particular purposes.

Try For All-Year Color In Planting

In planting the home grounds, home owners should strive for all-year color. Evergreens will keep their green throughout the winter and summer months, while there are many other trees and shrubs which have interesting characteristics, such as colorful barks, berries and branch or twig structures which can be very attractive, even without leaves in winter.

There are five considerations the home owner should take into account in selecting shrubs: (1) are they easy to grow; (2) are they attractive all year; (3) will they bloom at a good time; (4) can they be used in flower arrangements in the home, and (5) are they hardy for the location desired.

A considerable number of evergreen plants are desirable to assure green foliage on the property all year. Some evergreens will flower, while in others the flowers may not be notfceable, but the foliage may be so attractive that they are very much in demand by home owners. This includes such plants as the junipers, cedars, arbor vitae, yews and similar plants.

Flowering evergreen shrubs include the rhododendrons, azaleas, laurels, pieris, and many others that can be spectacularly beautiful in flower. There is a long list of those, particularly in the less severe climates. Consult a nursery catalogue, or talk over with your nurserymen the different species that will grow in your location.

The deciduous shrubs are those which shed their leaves in winter. Many of these, such as forsythia, viburnum, roses, and hundreds of others can be exceptionally beautiful. Some, like roses, will flower from spring to heavy frost. Others have attractive branch structure in winter, or flaming foliage in fall, like the winged enonymous. Cotoneaster may be evergreen or deciduous, depending on the climate, while it has beautiful red berries from fall on. Pyracantha likewise has attractive red or orange berries. One should consider planting a variety of shrubs which will, in total, give all the desirable characteristics at various times during the year so there is continuous interest and beauty at all times.

When To Buy?

By LEONARD L. FRANK
President, National Association of Homebuilders

When is the best time to buy a home? This is a good question—and one that quite naturally arises frequently.

In all honesty, I could say that yesterday was the best time—or last year, or 10 years ago. Think of how much of your mortgage you would have paid off by now had you bought your home when you first talked about it.

So, from the standpoint of having something to show for the money you spend on a place to live, I would say the earliest time possible in the life of a family is the best time to buy a home.

But, let's look at the homes of May, 1962. There has never been a better supply and selection of homes than now. This is true of homes in all price brackets. They represent the best-value-for-the-money that has ever been offered.

To my mind, one of the most gratifying projects of the National Association of Home Builders has been the encouragement it has given to the production of homes for lower income families. Builder members of the NAHB in all parts of the country have responded by increasing their output of low-priced homes.

These are fine homes, well built, attractive, usually with three bedrooms, often with a carport. Yet they cost $10,000 or under.

It is often said that the "miracle of America" is the high percentage of private ownership of homes. We certainly are proud that in this country, home ownership is not the exclusive privilege of the comparatively few.

It is the purpose of the National Association of Home Builders to broaden and expand the opportunities for this achievement for all families.

Housing economists estimate that in view of the rise in family incomes there are more than 24 million families who could qualify under FHA to pay at lease $12,000 for a new home. More than 12 million families could qualify to pay at least $17,000, according to the economists.

We are in a time of steadily mounting prices. Rents and living costs are more likely to go up than down. But the mortgage on the home you buy now cannot be increased. This means that you can plan intelligently for your family's needs for years ahead instead of on a month-to-month basis. More individuals got their start on the road to financial independence through owning their own home than in any other way.

FEATURED ATTRACTION for the carnival fun of the West Side Jubilee is the Mad Mouse. The event runs from Monday, June 4, through 9. Mad Mouse is recognized as the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry.

West Side Jubilee Begins Monday

West Side Board of Trade's annual week-long welcome to summer will be kicked off Monday, June 4.

A big June Jubilee Parade starts the event at 6 p.m., complete with Central High School Band, 25 queen candidates riding in convertibles, the Columbus Hurricane Drum and Baton Corps, a covered wagon drawn by horses, a motorcycle color guard, antique cars and Boy [illegible].

The marchers will begin at Starling Junior High, go north on Central to Broad, east on Broad to Grubb, and south on Grubb to Sunshine Recreation Center, 867 Sullivant-av.

At Sunshine, the queen will be picked from the 25 beauties by Judge Robert M. Draper, Judge William T. Gillie, Jack Young, first assistant city attorney and Frank Reda, chief counsel of the city attorney's office.

Hugh DeMoss of WLW-C will emcee the event. The girls will parade in front of the judges in party dresses.

So far, Don McCann, director of Sunshine Recreation Center, has announced 10 Jubilee Queen candidates. They are Cheryl Johnson of 26 N. Hartford-av, Rose Ott of 901 Scott-st, Lucille Bolen of 24 N. Hartford-av, Marsha Tolbott of 286 S. Souder-av, Wanda Morris of 90 Dana-av, Lynda Stephenson of 1257 Sullivant-av, Vickie Hessler of 140 West Park-st, Ruth Bocook of 91 W. Hartford-st, Bernice Spencer of 902 W. Rich-st and Katha Miller of 868 Sullivant-av.

Gooding Amusement Co. Inc., which is headquartered on Valleyview-dr, will supply the rides for the carnival. The "midway" will feature the Mad Mouse, the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry. It requires a space of more than 150 by 50 feet and cost in excess of $65,000. It was introduced at the recent World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. Resembling a giant nine roller coaster, it affords all the thrills of the dips and speeds of the giant coaster and furnishes a few new thrills of its own.

Other attractions will include a Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Flying Scooters, Roloplane, The Whip, The Scrambler, The Frolic (which was introduced at the State Fair last year) and The Paratrooper.

The kiddie rides include the Jet Flyers, Circus Train, Fire Engine and a brand new ride this year, The Umbrella [illegible].

The West Side Board of Trade has put out 150,000 tickets for rides for the kids. These tickets can be obtained at any of the merchants of the area. A ticket and a dime will entitle the bearer to any ride on the midway.

According to police estimates there were 5000 to 6000 people at the opening at Sunshine Park last year. No figures were available for the parade.

Built-In Range Is Popular In New Home

Built-in components.

Free-standing model.

High-oven range.

One-piece drop-in.

The built-in look is one of the most vital trends in home building and remodeling today—especially in the kitchen. Most everyone likes the integrated, uncluttered appearance and added convenience built-in appliances provide.

Popular built-ins are the modern, 1962 electric range models consisting of a cook-top and a separate oven. This permits extra freedom in planning a kitchen designed for maximum efficiency, since the cook-top and the oven can be located where each is most convenient and suitable.

Surface cooking units are installed neatly in a counter-top, and the oven is placed in a storage cabinet or wall at eye-level height. Ovens at this height are easier to cook with and easier to clean, since there's no bending or stooping.

Double ovens are becoming increasingly popular. Separate heating elements and controls help housewives prepare extra-course meals with ease, as they can bake and broil at the same time.

Electric ovens require no flues or vents. This means they fit into smaller spaces than other types of ovens with similar inside dimensions. In addition, since electric ovens are well insulated on all sides, and top and bottom, they help keep kitchens cooler.

One reason built-in versions of major appliances, such as the electric range, dishwasher and refrigerator-freezer, are so popular is that they may be financed under FHA-insured home improvement loans.

Four basic types of new, 1962 electric ranges now are available to families planning to build a new home or remodel an outdated kitchen. The new electric ranges differ chiefly in the way they're installed and are alike in that they all provide the basic advantages that make electric cooking the modern way to cook.

Here are the major features and advantages of each type:

1. Built-in. The modern built-in electric range provides the widest latitude in kitchen design because the cook-top and the oven are separate units. This makes it possible to place each unit where it will be most convenient. Surface cooking units are set in a counter top, while the oven may be placed at eye-level in a wall or cabinet.

2. High-oven range. This type looks built-in but can be used as a free-standing model. It may be placed on top of a storage cabinet or hung on a wall. In either case, the single or double oven and its controls are at eye-level—above the surface cooking units.

3. One-piece built-in. This is similar to a conventional free-standing range, but is designed to fit on a low base between standard-size cabinets. Low back-splash, squared corners and flush mounting all contribute to a built-in look. Carome trim unites adjoining cabinets with range.

4. Free-standing. Traditional in appeal, modern in styling, new free-standing models are designed to look built in. A free-standing electric range can be moved to another location without difficulty.

A garage or carport can provide storage space for tools, gardening equipment, trucks, bicycles and lawn mowers. It's a good idea to set aside specific space for designated tools.

SOMETHING EVERY REAL ESTATE BUYER SHOULD KNOW

When you buy a home you are usually making the most important investment of your life. That home is "real estate." The validity of your ownership depends entirely on the "TITLE" to that real estate. This "TITLE" therefore, becomes the most important part of your deal. Now—how do you protect yourself in such a transaction? The answer is OWNER'S TITLE INSURANCE. No doubt you have noticed that the most experienced real estate investors and mortgage lenders insist on TITLE INSURANCE protection when they buy or lend money. If your title is insured you, too, have used good business judgment. OWNER'S TITLE INSURANCE is the only kind of insurance that protects a buyer in his future ownership of real estate against the consequences of what may have happened before he owned the property. This TITLE INSURANCE is issued after a careful investigation has been made into the past history of the title. The purpose of this investigation is to determine, so far as possible, whether or not the title is complete and valid and the extent to which it is encumbered when the investigation is made. No annual premiums are involved. Once you have it, it protects you forever. It is the only sure way to protect against title loss because of mistakes of the past. When you buy real estate, always ask: "Is my title being protected by OWNER'S TITLE INSURANCE?" Most knowledgeable real estate investors INSIST on it. When you buy real estate always DEMAND Owner's Title Insurance for YOUR title protection—no real estate investment is better than the TITLE. What's more, you can always prove your good title, later, if your wish to sell or mortgage it. It's the best way to protect your real estate investment.

FEATURED ATTRACTION for the carnival fun of the West Side Jubilee is the Mad Mouse. The event runs from Monday, June 4, through 9. Mad Mouse is recognized as the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry.

West Side Jubilee Begins Monday

West Side Board of Trade's annual week-long welcome to summer will be kicked off Monday, June 4.

A big June Jubilee Parade starts the event at 6 p.m., complete with Central High School Band, 25 queen candidates riding in convertibles, the Columbus Hurricane Drum and Baton Corps, a covered wagon drawn by horses, a motorcycle color guard, antique cars and Boy Scouts.

The marchers will begin at Starling Junior High, go north on Central to Broad, east on Broad to Grubb, and south on Grubb to Sunshine Recreation Center, 667 Sullivant-av.

At Sunshine, the queen will be picked from the 25 beauties by Judge Robert M. Draper, Judge William T. Gillis, Jack Young, first assistant city attorney and Frank Reda, chief counsel of the city attorney's office.

Hugh DeMoss of WLW-C will emcee the event. The girls will parade in front of the judges in party dresses.

So far, Don McCann, director of Sunshine Recreation Center, has announced 10 Jubilee Queen candidates. They are Cheryl Johnson of 38 N. Hartford-av, Rose Ott of 901 Scott-st, Lucille Bolen of 34 N. Hartford-av, Martha Tolbott of 286 S. Souder-av, Wanda Morris of 90 Dana-av, Lynda Stephenson of 1237 Sullivant-av, Vickie Hessler of 140 West Park-st, Ruth Bocook of 91 W. Hartford-st, Bernice Spencer of 902 W. Rich-st and Katha Miller of 868 Sullivant-av.

Gooding Amusement Co. Inc., which is headquartered on Valleyview-dr, will supply the rides for the carnival. The "midway" will feature the Mad Mouse, the largest portable ride in the outdoor industry. It requires a space of more than 150 by 80 feet and cost in excess of $65,000. It was introduced at the recent World's Fair in Brussells, Belgium. Resembling a giant size roller coaster, it affords all the thrills of the dips and speeds of the giant coaster and furnishes a few new thrills of its own.

Other attractions will include a Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Flying Scooters, Roloplane, The Whip, The Scrambler, The Frolic (which was introduced at the State Fair last year) and The Paratrooper.

The kiddie rides include the Jet Flyers, Circus Train, Fire Engine and a brand new ride this year, The Umbrella Ride.

The West Side Board of Trade has put out 150,000 tickets for rides for the kids. These tickets can be obtained at any of the merchants of the area. A ticket and a dime will entitle the bearer to any ride on the midway.

According to police estimates there were 5000 to 6000 people at the opening at Sunshine Park last year. No figures were available for the parade.

But Who Remembers The Forgotten Ones?

By Ed Churchill

In Everytown, USA, the school band will march, the American Legion will place a wreath in recognition of those Americans who died for the cause, families will decorate cemetery plots with flowers for mother or father.

Flags will be flown at half-mast—people will go on picnics, and melancholy will shade every heart that remembers one departed.

In most of the burial grounds visited on Memorial Day, 1962, the grass will be freshly mown, flowers will be blooming, and miniature American flags will flutter in the breeze.

But who will remember the "forgotten ones?" Who is going to remember those who died many, many years ago, and now rest in overgrown, rundown cemeteries?

The "forgotten ones" didn't have to die so many years ago to have passed into oblivion. There is a small cemetery, something like "Boot Hill," at the rear of 1601 W. Broad-st, where people become forgotten.

1601 W. Broad-st is the State School for Mentally Retarded and the cemetery is for residents of the school who lived and died there, and had no family to claim their bodies. Or—worse yet—a family who wouldn't claim them.

There will, however, be a Memorial Day service for these people. The school chaplain will say a prayer; the school band will play an appropriate selection, not all too well, but from the heart anyway; a wreath will be placed and the

Confederate Rites June 3

Boys in gray who are buried in Camp Chase Confederate Cemetery, 2900 Sullivant-av, will be remembered at a special service four days after traditional Memorial Day.

The Army-maintained cemetery will be the site of an address by Judge Robert M. Draper at 8 p.m. Sunday, June 3. In charge of the program are Camp Chase Post, American Legion; United Daughters of the Confederacy; and Sons of Ohio Union Veterans.

Rev. Sydney C. G. Everson will officate and the 37th Division ONG Band will play.

Tomorrow, Memorial Day, the following cemetery rites are scheduled for shortly after the traditional downtown parade which gets underway at 9 a.m.:

SUNSET, ALTON

Camp Chase Post will hold rites at Sunset Cemetery, 6959 W. Broad-st, at 11:30 a.m. and at Alton Cemetery at noon, according to Commander John C. Wolfe. The grave of Howard M. Harrison at Sunset will be visited at 10:30 a.m. by the VFW post bearing his name.

GEORGESVILLE

Westway Post 3461 Veterans of Foreign Wars, will serve at Georgesville Cemetery at 2 p.m.

GREEN LAWN

Recognition will be made between the twin-bill scheduled this Sunday.

40-Lane Bowling Site Picked

Following presentation to the City Planning Commission last week, Frank Yassenoff has announced definite plans to build a large new bowling establishment in the West area.

Construction is to start immediately on Western Lanes, a 40-lane facility complete, with luxury appointments, on a site now occupied by Sullivant Avenue Lumber Co.

Purchase of three acres at the northeast corner of Georgesville-rd and Sullivant-av was consumated Monday morning. The property owner, Ray Highfield, of 3284 Wicklow-rd, was represented by R. W. Phillips. Yassenoff, who has built other lanes in Columbus, was represented by J. B. Eisenberg. Ed Walker and Dale Stewart, of Stewart and Neff, handled real estate details for both sides but did not reveal the sale price.

Yassenhoff said he had two locations under consideration to insure a selection and construction in time for fall leagues. He said he already has bookings from Westinghouse. The other site was at 3779 Sullivant-av, which is not now zoned "commercial." He said the lumber yard has the necessary zoning. Its buildings are to be torn [illegible].

In other action the commission:

Approved preliminary plans for a new sub-division, Brookshire South, to be built on the south side of Briggs-rd, between Harris-av and Brownyn-av.

Denied because of possible congestion a request from Bessie Zurafsky to permit three apartments on the east side of Binns-blvd, south of Rosedale-av, in a single-family area.

Okayed the southeast corner of W. State-st and McDowell-av

S. S. AQUARAMA CRUISE FINE ONE-DAY VACATION

You can enjoy a one-day budget vacation on beautiful Lake Erie by taking advantage of the Hartley Newspapers' package cruise on the fabulous pleasure ship Aquarama, sailing out of Cleveland.

Sunday, July 22, is the date set for this second annual Aquarama trip. Last year nearly 200 persons availed themselves of the economy package and had a ball. Many of these folks are planning a repeat trip.

Many already have made reservations for the one-day cruise which will take readers from Cleveland to Detroit and back aboard the multi-million dollar, nine-deck luxury liner.

Because of the great number of responses during the first week, it has become apparent that space aboard the chartered buses will be limited.

Adult fare for the cruise is $12.50, while full child's fare is $12.50. These prices include round trip transportation to Cleveland by bus.

This is a trip you won't want to miss. The S.S. Aquarama features movies and bingo, comfortable deck chairs for lounging in the warm sun, a ship's library, clean restroom chaplain will say another prayer to end the ceremony.

It all sounds simple and nice enough, but one would have to see the cemetery to realize the pity.

Stones, 12 inches high and six inches wide, some of them leaning, others completely fallen over, will indicate only by a number that there is someone buried below.

Of course it is all for the protection of involved parties that the forgotten ones become not only forgotten, but nameless and faceless as well: numbers in a small, rather unkempt graveyard behind the State School.

The tragedy though, is that the institutionalized people aren't the only forgotten ones on Memorial Day, or any other day of the year.

Handouts Bring Handcuffs

Just about everyone has heard the old saying that "he who pays the piper calls the tune."

A perfect example is found where government does the paying — and it's true of small matters as well as big.

Oregon, for instance, once used yellow dividing stripes on its highways. These, most motorists found were easier to see at night and under bad weather conditions. They were distinctive, too, and acted as guides to tourists.

No more. For the federal government is paying most of the costs of major highways — and Uncle Sam says that all highway stripes must be white. Uncle—taxpayer-filled pocketbook in hand—is the [redacted].

It's also been proposed, in order to brighten the landscape, that Oregon bridges be painted in bright colors. But Uncle, with his 50-state rule book, wouldn't accept that either. This could extend on and on, most assuredly in big things such as medicare and aid to education.

The point is that handcuffs come with the handouts.
